Some Air On The Air Question

Isn't it so that you know two growers that grow exactly the same thing in exactly opposite ways, and both get exactly as good results?

How do you account for it?

Is it, or isn't it so, that there is always one best way?

Take ventilation, for instance—here's a grower who wants his roof lines all operated on long runs so he can stand in the middle cross walk, and close the entire house.

His neighbor breaks his runs up in 75 or 100 foot lengths.

One man wants all the side ventilation he can get, and is always complaining because the sash opening isn't wide enough to suit him.

His neighbor doesn't want any side ventilation at all, and if he has it, never uses it, except in the Summer when things are off-crop.

One man wants a ventilator across both gable ends; while his neighbor laughs when you mention it, and says: "Oh, well, Tom's a bully good fellow, but he sure has some queer notions."

The truth of the whole matter is that no one thing is solely responsible for any man's success. One thing he does wrong is more than offset by the others he does right.

When it comes to ventilation we will give you exactly what you want; but first we will tell you how the most up-to-date men in the business have it figured out.

Based on a wide range of experience in meeting all kinds of growing conditions, we will recommend what we believe is best for you.

If you are building a wide rose house would surely give the question of gable ventilation serious thought. So far we are the only builders who have advised and used it.

Xmas Novelties and Supplies

ARTIFICIAL POINSETTIAS. A POPULAR CHRISTMAS NOVELTY

No Christmas Decoration can be complete without Poinsettias—they add that attractiveness and artistic reality impossible with any other decoration. These Poinsettias placed amid sprays of Southern Smilax, Boxwood or Lycopodium produce extraordinary pleasing effects.

Poinsettias are the best selling Christmas flowers on the market. We list here below 9 different sizes.

GRAFTED ROSES

FOR GREENHOUSE PLANTING

We shall begin to graft roses the week of December 1 and shall start on orders already on our files. After these orders have been completed, we shall be ready to graft your requirements. Orders needed for delivery the last of February and early in March must be placed NOW if deliveries are to be prompt. We have our usual supply of Manetti from our usual sources of supply and at better prices than have prevailed for some years. This saving in Manetti costs will be reflected in our prices for plants.

Pilgrim and Crusader entail more losses of stock than any other varieties. On these two sorts our price will be $25.00 per 100; $240.00 per 1000.

Columbia
Mme. Butterfly
Milady

Ophelia
My Maryland
Premier

Double White Killarney
Mrs. Aaron Ward

are the best Roses of commerce. Our price for these varieties, grafted, will be $25.00 per 100; $220.00 per 1000.

Grafted Roses pay and the grafting of roses for the commercial trade is a big industry in itself here at Cromwell. We shall put 10,000 per day into the cases and the question is—when do you want yours?

OUTDOOR ROSES

We have available 50,000 home-grown Multiflora Japonica stock which is just right for grafting out-of-door sorts. We have, in addition to the varieties mentioned above:

Radiance
Jonkheer Mock

Red Radiance
Lady Alice Stanley
Los Angeles

Mrs. Charles Bell

and other good out-of-door roses. We can graft these for you for spring shipment on Multiflora Japonica or on Manetti, as you prefer, and deliver them as early as you want them after March 1, or when the ground opens and you are ready to plant. Our price for these sorts on either root stock from 2¼-inch pots will be $25.00 per 100; $220.00 per 1000.

BABY RAMBLERS

We have propagated, this fall, thousands of own-root Baby Ramblers:

Mrs. Cutbush
Triomphe Orleanais

Orleans
Edith Cavell
Erna Teschendorff

Jessie
Ellen Poulsen

These, for winter or spring delivery, from 2¼-inch pots, at $10.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1000.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

These are a big feature of our young plant department.

There has been no better new one in years than "White Surprise." It is a large, fine commercial white, ready to cut November 5 to 10. Rooted cuttings, for February and later, $2.00 per dozen; $15.00 per 100.

December Beauty
Rose Perfection

Sunbeam

are the best of the other new commercial, large-flowered sorts. Rooted cuttings, $5.00 per 100; $45.00 per 1000.

The Chadwick family, Golden Chadwick, Chadwick Supreme and Indian Summer, are the four finest varieties in existence for those who want late Mums and who can grow them well. We are always booked to the limit on these sorts in spite of the 20,000 stock plants of these varieties alone. Rooted Cuttings, from February until June, $5.00 per 100; $45.00 per 1000.

POMPON VARIETIES

We have seen the possibilities in these sorts and have followed the market very closely. Our own seedlings and the varieties selected and introduced by us have held to the top of the cut flower market for years and this season our seedlings have carried an average price on the market nearly 50% above the price of the named sorts of commerce. We planted 45,000 plants of seventy seedlings. Some will, naturally, be discarded, but we shall save 50 of these for another year's growing in quantity. Four of these have been named and will be offered to the trade. Hundreds of visiting florists have seen them and approve the selection. They have been widely exhibited and are in a class by themselves—the best four varieties for the commercial grower that we know:

New York
Louise Davenport
Sarah Townsend

make a succession of the bronze button type that will hold the market from November 1 to December 1. November Gold, the finest yellow of them all, is a strong-stemmed, upright grower that is equaled by no other variety. It flowers from November 1 to 15 and is a wonderful keeper, either cut or on the plant.

Rooted Cuttings of these four varieties, $15.00 per 100; $140.00 per 1000.

Our complete list will be published later, but these varieties mentioned are the ones that you certainly need. This is no year to grow poor varieties and no year in which to lessen production by planting poor plants.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.

Christmas Plants

Our stock of blooming and decorative plants is now in fine shape—strong, clean and vigorous. We feel confident that there is no better stock in the market today, and we know a great deal of stock now being offered is much inferior. We feel sure that we can please the most exacting buyer both in quality and price.

If stock is not wanted until later, give us your order, let us set it aside for you and ship to you when wanted. It costs no more and you can feel safe for the holidays.

Remember our central location and that our packing is free. A trial order will convince you of the value of our stock.

We are now booking orders at the following prices for shipment now or later:

CYCLAMEN

Now booking orders for immediate and Christmas delivery.

This has been one of our specialties for over 20 years. In all our experience we have never seen a finer lot of plants. We are growing our stock in new houses. They are absolutely clean and perfect in every way and not to be compared with weakly, drawn stock offered at less money. We confidently feel that our four large houses containing 25,000 plants will not be enough. They have been pronounced by plant experts from all over the country as the finest stock ever grown.

10-inch pots, very heavy, $10 and $12 each.

CROTON LEAVES AND SPRAYS

Cut Croton Leaves and Sprays have been supplied by us in the past few years to some of the leading retail florists, who have featured them in mantel, table and funeral work. Cut Crotons will last in a cool place from three to four weeks. We can supply them every day in the year.

Very highly colored sprays, at $0.50 each; cut leaves, $5 per 100.

When you have orders for funeral or table work, "out of the ordinary," order Craig's Cut Crotons.

ENGLISH IVIES

Small leaf variety. Excellent for made up baskets or trellis work.

4-inch pots, 3 plants, $85 per 100.

150,000 NEPHROLEPIS

(In variety)

We are the largest growers of Nephrolepis Ferns in the country. In fact, we are headquarters for them.

GROWING A CROP OF CARNATION CUTTINGS

Not many florists need to be told about the unusual success that the writer of this article has attained in the propagation of carnations; his record is well known. But many florists, no doubt, would like to ask, "How does he do it?" Here he answers that question.

By A. F. J. BAUR.

OUR success in growing carnations next season will depend in large measure on your success in propagating the young plants this winter. Many a failure can be traced back to the cutting bench. Poorly selected or insufficiently rooted cuttings or the presence of a batch of cutting bench fungi will be sure to show their effects on the blooming stock the next season. Propagating the cuttings is the starting of the next season's crop and it pays to get started right. Successful growers appreciate this fact to the extent of building special benches and even specially designed houses for propagating. While special propagating houses are a big help in rooting the cuttings, they are not indispensable. Good success is attainable in any house where the sunlight and drafts may be kept under control.

The Benches.

We have for many years propagated a portion of our stock on a north side bench in a thirty-foot-wide, high house. During the winter months, when it is not necessary to raise the ventilators high, we find it as easy to propagate on this bench as in our special propagating house.

This north bench is built with a brick bottom, which we find far superior to wood. In the propagating house the benches are built entirely of tile. These are also superior to wood benches, but not so good as soft brick, on account of the thin glaze on the surface of the tile. Over the benches, and about thirty inches above the cuttings, we have built a skeleton frame to support the muslin curtains. One curtain lies on top of this frame, to be spread out on bright days and drawn away on cloudy days and at night. Another curtain hangs at the front, reaching down well below the top of the edge-board, and keeps the sun and draft away on bright days.

Ready for the Sand.

We consider the foregoing method of shading far superior, during the winter months, to the old method of laying newspapers directly on the cuttings. It permits a better atmosphere around the cuttings. Toward spring we find it necessary to lay papers on the cuttings a few hours on bright days, in addition to the muslin curtains, to prevent too rapid evaporation.

Having built the proper kind of bench, the next step is to fill it to a depth of about three inches with clean, sharp sand. Either washed river sand or bank sand may be used. It makes little difference as to its fineness or coarseness of grain, if it is even throughout. Fine sand will hold the water longer; hence, patches of sand of uneven grain cause trouble in the watering.

Figure 1 in the accompanying illustration shows a flower shoot, tipped with a bud and bearing four young shoots along the stem. The uppermost shoot is too weak to make a good cutting. It would root and grow into a plant, but would always be weak. Weak cuttings tend to lower the vigor of the stock.

The middle two shoots in figure 1 are ideal cuttings. The lower shoot will make a good cutting if left on until it has developed to proper size.

Uniform Cuttings.

It pays to select cuttings of uniform size and it is advisable to take two batches, rather than one big batch of uneven size. The larger cuttings will crowd the smaller ones, causing the batch to be uneven in vigor, and this unevenness will continue all the way through to the blooming bench.

Most varieties will produce sufficient good cuttings along the flower stems to permit the cut flower grower to propagate enough young stock to replant his benches, but occasionally he finds a variety that makes practically no side shoots and he is forced either to use young flowering shoots or to wait for the young breaks which grow on the stubs of the flower stems after the blooms are cut, and which are really the start of the next crop of flower shoots.

Referring again to the illustration on the preceding page, figure 2 shows a young flower shoot which has begun to lengthen and is unfit for propagating. Figure 3 shows a young flowering shoot which has not yet started to shoot up and will make a good, strong cutting. The joints are close together and a bushy plant, full of vigor, will result. We do not hesitate to use this kind of cutting if need be. Figure 4 shows a shoot from a plant which has been cut back for cuttings. This shoot has grown a trifle too long, though we sometimes see cuttings of this kind used. Figure 5 shows a shoot from the same kind of plant. This makes an ideal cutting, superior even to those shown in figure 1. It is plump and strong, containing all the vigor of the parent plant.

Avoid Diseased Stock Plants.

In selecting cuttings it is not only necessary to choose those which are of of fresh water to drop them in as they are being trimmed.

How the Cuttings Are Trimmed.

In figure 6 you will see the same shoot as in figure 5, after it has been prepared for the sand. In figure 7 you will see the same young shoot as in figure 3, after it has been trimmed. You will note that in figure 7 the operator cut through the node or joint; this permitted pulling off the two leaves at that joint without bruising the stem. It also leaves a clean stem between this and the next joint above, for inserting in the sand. In figure 6 the heel has been removed and the lower leaves also have been carefully detached. This must be done carefully, so as to avoid bruising the stem, or decay may set in and cutting bench fungus may result. This cutting has several joints near the base, but, inasmuch as these will be buried in the soil after potting, they will be of no use in forming a bushy plant. We consider these two cuttings of equal value, as the fresh. It will be necessary to protect them from the bright sunshine and to keep away drafts by means of the muslin curtains.

A fine discrimination is called for at times, to avoid going to an extreme one way or the other. Your job is to keep the cuttings fresh until the roots start; that is, for a period of about four weeks. On the other hand, you do not want to keep them so dark as to make them soft, or there will be serious loss in vigor. So you want to do just as little shading and spraying as possible, looking upon these as necessary evils, as it were.

The sand must be kept well saturated until the cuttings have formed a callus at the base. The callousing process will require about two weeks and during that time the cuttings have about the same status as that of cut flowers and must have an abundance of water to sustain them. After that, the water may be decreased somewhat, but not to such an extent as to cause wilting. Water in the early part of the day and have the foliage dry by nightfall. Too much moisture on the leaves will start spot disease and that may, in turn, develop into cutting bench fungus. When you begin to decrease the shading, begin by raising the curtains earlier in the evening. The purpose of this is to enable the cuttings to freshen up over night in case the exposure to light might be slightly overdone at first. A cutting which is permitted to wilt in the morning will find it difficult to freshen up during a warm day. By the time they are rooted, they will stand the full sun.

A little bottom heat will expedite the process of rooting somewhat, but is not indispensable and should not be overdone. One steam pipe under each bench is sufficient and if you can arrange to trap some of the heat under the bench it will answer the purpose. Dropping the edge-board about a foot below the bottom of the bench will accomplish this. The temperature in the house should be about the same as you maintain in the growing houses and 10 degrees warmer under the benches will be about right.

Promptness in Potting.

Do not allow the cuttings to stand in the propagating bench after they are sufficiently rooted to be potted. When the root system has been started, the young plants want real nourishment, and the longer they are allowed to stand in the cutting bench and left to subsist on only water the more starved and weak they will become. Some growers grow their young stock entirely in pots; others use flats or shallow benches. In either case the object is to produce sturdy young plants, and that means that they must be shifted on as needed to promote a steady growth. Plants which have been allowed to become pot-bound and starved are liable to fall an easy prey to stem-rot.

The foregoing suggestions cover the main points in propagating. Every case has its own peculiar little details, its own difficulties, which must be met by the grower as they come up. Only experience will teach you how to overcome these. Varieties differ in the length of time required in rooting and the ease in rooting. December, January and February are the best months for propagating carnation cuttings, as you then have practically perfect control over atmospheric conditions. Good stock is produced from later cuttings, but with more difficulty.

The Latest Ideas Are Incorporated in the Construction of this Window.

proper size and type, but great care should be taken to discriminate against cuttings from plants which are not vigorous and healthy. Cuttings taken from plants which show considerable bacteriosis will invariably show the disease the following season, even though it may disappear temporarily. Plants showing signs of branch-rot should be avoided; so, also, should shoots that show rust pustules or spots of any of the several spot diseases. Conditions in the propagating bench are particularly favorable to the development of any of these diseases and it is a serious mistake if the grower deliberately starts out with them.

Take off a moderate number of cuttings at a time. It does the cuttings no particular good to lie around, though it will do no harm if several hours elapse before they are inserted in the sand if they are cared for properly. We have seen unrooted cuttings shipped 1,000 miles or more and then rooted perfectly. We have shipped unrooted cuttings to England and received report of a strike of over fifty per cent. After taking off a quantity, hold them under the faucet and let the water run through them to moisten them thoroughly. Have a bucket growth above ground is just about the same in each.

Before inserting the cuttings, you will pack down the sand by means of a piece of wood 2x8x12 inches, to which you have affixed a handle of convenient shape. About a half-hour before this you will have watered the sand down heavily, to be certain it is thoroughly saturated and to insure its packing down firmly. Draw a deep furrow across the sand with an old case knife. Insert the cuttings about three-quarters of an inch and set them about the same distance apart in the row, letting the distance vary, however, according to the size of the cuttings. After setting in a row, lay a strip of wood two inches wide alongside of the cuttings and tap it with a hammer to firm the sand against the cuttings. This will also give you a line on which to draw your next furrow. After setting a batch of cuttings, give them a heavy watering and cover them with newspapers until evening.

From this period on, you will give your attention to shading and watering, which includes spraying. The cuttings should have all the light they will stand without wilting and you will resort to overhead spraying to help keep them

DON'T PAY RENT.

When Landlord Plays Freeze-Out.

Florists who conduct business operations in leased buildings under contracts requiring their landlords to furnish heat will be interested in a decision handed down the other day by the Appellate Court of Indiana, 128 Northeastern Reporter, 454, holding that where the landlord in such a case becomes so economical in the use of fuel that the tenant is deprived of the comfortable enjoyment of the premises, there is what the law calls a constructive eviction. And when a tenant is constructively evicted he has just as much right to abandon further occupancy of the premises and to decline payment of further rent as if he had been actually ejected.

The court applies the following principle laid down by the Supreme court of the state in the case of Talbott vs. English, 59 Northeastern Reporter, 860: "Eviction is either actual or constructive; actual when the tenant is deprived of the occupancy of some part of the demised premises and constructive when the lessor, without intending to oust the lessee, does an act by which the latter is deprived of the beneficial enjoyment of some part of the premises, in which case the tenant has his right of election, to quit and avoid the lease and rent, or to abide the wrong and seek his remedy in an action for trespass. But in every case of constructive eviction the tenant must quit the premises if he would relieve himself from liability to pay rent. Whether or not he is justifiable in so quitting is a question of fact for the jury." S.

COLOR GIVES UNITY.

Effective window displays are secured in a number of ways. One, not often used by florists, made a particularly successful showing at the store of Edith V. Walker & Bros., at Louisville, Ky., last week. This consisted of the employment of one color for a number of objects, giving a unity of note, while the flowers, naturally, lent much variety. A deep blue was the color. Vases, ribbons and pot covers were all of this hue. At the back two large candelabra each held seven large candles, of the same deep blue. This idea is one easily employed by the florist, and it gives those who see the window something to remark about, while the display is devoted to the best advertisement florists have—flowers.

STOKES' STORE SHOWS LATEST.

There are five doors through which one may enter the new Stokes Floral Shop, at Springfield, Mo. Five entrances mean service and more routes for business. One door in the rear permits icemen, expressmen, etc., to deliver their goods without going clumsily through the salesroom. This arrangement points to cleanliness. But even if an observer enters by the iceman's door, he is impressed by another business-getter, genuine decorative beauty. The observer decides that the firm's motto, "We Strive to Please," is lived up to.

Through the illustrations below and on page 28 we are permitted to see the store, first at one of the entrances. Here, as the illustration shows, the window, 6x12 feet and tile-floored, is roomy enough to contain a large display and yet not become cluttered. Through the arched back of this window a glimpse of the interior is permitted. Let us open the door and enter.

This brings us to a view as given in the other illustration. Here is a roomy salesroom, 20x50 feet. Throughout a delicate ivory finish is used. A floor of red tile with black tile stripes proves harmonious and is scrupulously clean. A glance to the rear shows a group of handsome set-in refrigerators, which separate the office and workroom from the sales or show room. The counters, some with glass sliding doors and some with large drawers, are chosen with an eye to both appearance and practicability. The cash register, well and centrally placed, can be used by more than one clerk without conflict and the consequent waste of time. In the glass show case to the right-front a line of greeting cards is carried.

The walls of the store stand out distinctly. They, too, are arranged with an eye to more sales. Baskets, plants, etc., stand on the shelves at the top of the brick walls, five feet high, which are finished in ivory with black stripes. Back of the refrigerators are the office, 12x14 feet, which has French glass windows, and the workroom, 20x60 feet. The basement, 20 x 180 feet, is used for storage purposes.

J. W. Stokes, the proprietor, has been in the business about twelve years. He started in a small way with a tiny greenhouse. His former location was a store 20x24 feet. He has a long lease on the present location and reports an increase in business already in consequence of the enlarged quarters. He feels able now to handle decoration orders, which before were beyond his facilities. Next year he will add a complete line of seeds and bulbs, having provided for them in the equipment of this store.

GLENN AND ARMISTICE DAY.

Regardless of how many pleasing window displays there were at Kittanning, Pa., Armistice day, it is safe to say that J. W. Glenn had one of the most attractive. His was a picturesque combination that reflected the true spirit of the occasion.

To the front of his window and on the right was a pretty "Portal of Peace," made of cape flowers. To the left of this reposed a tiny cottage surrounded by a field encircled by a hedge of boxwood. To the extreme right and to the rear of the window nestled an American Legion button, made of immortelles and cape flowers. A tall basket of white mums was included and an American flag, draped artistically along one side of the window. Over this ensemble hung two mats, upon which were pinned silken poppies. It was a window that drew the crowds and got the business.

SIDEWALK RIGHTS.

That a public sidewalk is primarily designed for the use of pedestrians does not prevent the abutting owner or occupant of a flower or seed establishment from making reasonable use of the same in the conduct of his business. His rights are to be harmonized, as far as possible, with the public right of travel along the walk. But what the Appellate division of the New York Supreme court said in the recent case of Ellis vs. Friedlander, 189 New York Supplement, No. 545, concerning obstructions of a sidewalk by a fruit merchant applies to all sorts of business establishments:

"He had a right to make a reasonable use of the sidewalk for the ordinary and necessary purposes of his business, but reasonable use does not mean that a merchant may preempt the sidewalk in such way as to constitute a constant obstruction to pedestrians, nor does it mean that he may accumulate garbage or refuse, and leave it indefinitely on the sidewalk in such a way as to be a menace to others making a lawful use of the street."

DIPLOMATIC FLOWERS.

The irate wife waiting by night with a potato masher to welcome her belated husband is so frequently the subject of the newspaper comics, movies, etc., that the unfortunate husband, victim of so much adverse advertising, is at a loss to find a "way out." It is a problem that only a florist can master.

This is how A. Lange, of Chicago, helped a prominent clubman do it. A stag party was to be given and the idea was to get fifty wives to allow their husbands to get away peacefully. Then someone hit on the big idea and a $4 bouquet was sent to each of the wives with a diplomatically written note attached asking each one to let her husband come just for that one evening. With such a thoughtful gift, how could the wives refuse? On the appointed night the husbands were all present, praising the florist who had disclosed the diplomatic voice of the flowers. Try it in your town.

for the use of customers. A noticeable feature is a long mirror placed above the refrigerator and tilted at an angle which allows its use by the customer.

G. S. Brown & Son have been in the trade for about four years and have full control of the greenhouses formerly owned by the late Mrs. Mary Criswell. The business has been increased about 400 per cent in the last three years and now, in spite of the current hard times, is doing a good business.

SOLDIER'S EMBLEM.

"To honor his memory, something most beautiful; therefore, something in flowers." That is the one thought and single sentiment of relatives and acquaintances when that soldier member of the family dies. And now that each day brings to port the bodies of many soldiers who gave their lives overseas, it is brought impressively to the mind of the florist that his is the responsibility of making the token of memory fittingly beautiful. He realizes that it is well to know as much about the actual making of the pieces as possible.

When the American Legion, at Marysville, Kan., wanted to remember fittingly one of the members who had passed away, a committee asked the Fisher Floral Co. to design the token. And Floyd E. Sims, of that company, devised the combination flag and American Legion emblem shown on page 31. The American Legion design is made by using a star that fits inside of a wreath. In this particular case an 18-inch wreath was used. The star is made of yellow immortelles, the rest of the flowers in the design being red, white and blue.

RESTRICTING RETAIL CREDIT.

Credit is in a large measure an impersonal term. What it is, what it can do, how it may be used and abused, have been left largely to the student and are not apprehended properly by the grantors and receivers of credit generally. Credit is largely symbolic. It is a promise exchanged for a value. It isn't of itself a value, but is founded upon and represents value. Though the promisor or receiver of a credit may be perfectly well qualified to protect it according to promise, yet technically and properly credit should always be supported by a value in existence. The abuse of credit arises frequently from the removal of the underlying value or the pivoting of several credits on one value. In the production of basic commodities, in the fabrication of these basic materials, in the transfers from manufacturer to wholesaler and from wholesaler to retailer, credit should follow the value and be extinguished with each transfer.

These reflections bring the National Association of Credit Men to the point of questioning seriously the giving or asking of credit for commodities that are intended for immediate consumption. The foodstuffs and supplies, conceivably including flowers, entering the household and designed for immediate consumption are not the proper basis for credit, states J. H. Tregoe, secretary of the organization, and whenever credit is founded upon them, there a risk attaches over and beyond the personal abilities of the buyer to protect his credit obligations. "Too much credit may really prove a curse," says Mr. Tregoe. "It has, many, many times. I

MORE NEW STORES

AHERN'S AT AKRON.

The building of new stores is said to be one of the most reliable indications of progress within a trade. In that case there is much evidence of recent progress in this industry. Another new store was opened November 19, at Akron, O. Ahern's new flower shop came into a formal existence that day, at 208 South Main street. About 10,000 cards were passed out in the downtown section of the city, advertisements were placed in three of the local newspapers and announcements were sent to a selected list of prospective customers, to the effect that a formal opening of the new store would be held. This firm, formerly operating under the name of the Imperial Greenhouses, at 561 Bowery street, will drop this name and will be known from now on as Ahern's Flower Shops. The opening day of the new firm was a decided success.

HENNIG'S FORMAL OPENING.

Just before the formal opening of his new store, William F. Hennig, of Blue Island, Ill., ran the following invitation, with an advertising punch, in the local paper:

ANNOUNCEMENT.

We extend a hearty welcome to all our patrons and friends to attend the formal opening of our new flower store, Saturday, November 12. No flowers will be sold that day, but we will "Say It with Flowers." Three large and beautiful ferns will be given away absolutely free at the opening exhibit. Also 1,000 complimentary tickets will be given to those who wish to attend the flower show at the Auditorium hotel, Chicago, November 16 and 17. Those who cannot come otherwise, telephone Blue Island 255 and a taxi will call for you anywhere in Blue Island to bring you to our opening. All are welcome.

This brought the crowd. More than 2,000 came. Roses, carnations, chrysanthemums and pompons were given away, besides the gifts announced in the invitation. The store was beautifully decorated with wild smilax and oak leaves. A garden setting was created in the conservatory, with Japanese lanterns, etc. And a stage setting was carried out for music and singing. Two benches of mums in the pink of condition were a show in themselves. The opening was a hit all around and made many friends for the store. Then, when it was all over, out of appreciation and courtesy, the company ran the following in the paper:

To all the good people of Blue Island Mrs. Hennig and I wish to express our sincere thanks for all the kind and good wishes extended us at the time of the formal opening of our new flower store.—William F. Hennig.

INGLESIDE SHOP AT MATTOON.

Coles county is in central Illinois; Charleston and Mattoon are in Coles county; the Ingleside Flower Shops are in Charleston and Mattoon. Several years ago the store at Charleston was opened. Immediately it achieved success. So, the first night of November, another store, at Mattoon, was opened by Bertha B. Newby and George McNutt. It is located in the new theater building. On the opening night roses were given away to all visitors. Finely appointed, with Randall refrigerators in black walnut and all the other fixtures to match, the store is certainly an attractive one. It is doing a good business and the proprietors see a fine future. The store at Charleston is also enjoying prosperity.

VANDERGRIFF'S NEW STORE.

Vandergriff, Pa., is proud of the new store opened November 12 by G. S. Brown & Son at 113 Grant avenue. The store is pleasingly outfitted with an attractive refrigerator, long white-topped working tables and a suite of handsome wicker furniture, placed conveniently want, therefore, to voice a strong sentiment that commodities intended for immediate consumption should be paid for immediately and not be made the basis of credit. The little pass book for the corner grocer, the credit for the daily supplies of the home should be abolished. Payment and not a promise should be exchanged for commodities of this kind. The store wants to be accommodating. Many stores believe that business can be built up on credit to its customers, but the cost attaching to this type of credit increases the overhead and puts such stores to a disadvantage in competing with those that require the immediate payment. A settlement of this matter should not be left to the store. It should be made a matter of real conscience by those who patronize the store. The man or woman who values the proper use of credit in the big affairs of life should with equal intelligence recognize that in the little matters credit should also be used properly and neither asked nor given where the underlying value will be immediately consumed.

"It is time, in our judgment, to start a campaign of this kind and to do away with a system of credit that too frequently imperils the welfare of the retail merchant or places his cost at a point where everyone must contribute to the loss when the buyer who pays should receive the advantage of the lowest prices."

Whether florists are ready to establish a "cash and carry" system or not—mostly not—they should note that the sentiment of business men is for less retail credit rather than more, and a stricter policy in collections more general than a looser one.

Winfield, Kan.—The Winfield Floral & Seed Co. is adding a new house, 30x150 feet, to be used for growing roses, to its range. The members of this firm are optimistic over the successful season and prospects for the future.

STAGING A SHOW

PUTTING ON A FLOWER SHOW.

Clark Tells How.

This autumn has witnessed a return in force of flower shows. They were not numerous during the war, and afterwards the prices obtainable for flowers and plants made exhibits few in number and small in size. But the necessity, now enforced, of greater sales effort has brought the flower show back. Many successful ones have been staged this fall; many more are planned for next spring.

The florists and clubs planning these shows are not all experienced in such promotion. Some of them, to insure success, have sought the advice of florists who already have put on noteworthy exhibitions. At Scranton last month was such a one. In consequence of its success, G. R. Clark, general secretary of the Scranton Florists' Club and active in the promotion of the show, has received inquiries from florists who contemplate staging flower shows in 1922, regarding the methods of procedure employed in staging the show recently held at Scranton. Instead of replying directly to these florists, Mr. Clark has generously contributed to The Review a description of the plans followed in putting across the recent show at Scranton and also of the plans contemplated by the florists of Scranton in 1922. Thus florists throughout the country, expecting to stage shows in the future, can have the benefit of this experience.

Some of the questions asked of Mr. Clark were as follows: Did you limit your entries to Pennsylvania? What was your main line of entertainment? What was the cost of advertising? Did you charge admission? What was the amount of your prize money? Mr. Clark replies to these questions in the course of his statement, which follows:

Scranton's First Fall Show.

"The show of this year is the first chrysanthemum, or fall, show of the Scranton Florists' Club, although we have had several spring shows. Last March we began to consider our preparations for the fall show in 1921. We have already begun preparations for our show in the fall of 1922. A general line of committees is appointed, with an executive committee at the head. These committees, according to our ideas, comprise fifteen different divisions. The first thing we did was to get the Armory for the nights we intended to exhibit. This done, we sent a schedule to the florists in this part of the state.

"We had exhibits from New Jersey, New York and Philadelphia. Scranton is located in the northeastern part of the state and we branched out into the two other states, as mentioned. I would suggest that you extend your invitation to all your surrounding territory; in this way you extend interest in your show.

"Our prizes amounted to $700, and consisted of cash and donated prizes. These we obtained from wealthy people of our city, from tradespeople in all lines of our city, and from the florists themselves.

"In the November 24 issue of The Review appeared an article which covered the trade exhibits. This feature can be extended as far and wide as a show management desires. We had a large floor space and therefore were generous in giving space to tradespeople; the price of the space was 50 cents per square foot.

"At the outset we assessed all members of the Scranton Florists' Club an amount sufficient to cover all possible expense, going into detail as to what the show would cost, including advertising in the newspapers, billposting and stickers, an item of nearly $1,000; music, $450; rental of Armory, $550, and numerous other smaller expenses incident to an exhibit of this kind. Our florists most cheerfully agreed to the assessment, one-half paid down at the beginning of the season and the balance to be called for when necessary. It will never be necessary.

"Most certainly we charged admission, 50 cents and a war tax or 5 cents. The Knights Templar came in one night with us and they charged admission, which we shared fifty-fifty. It was GATHERING FERN SPORES.

I have some Boston ferns that have gone to seed. Will you let me know how I can gather the spores?

J. P. M.—Ga.

The usual method of gathering fern spores is to cut off the fronds that are covered with the spores, or seeds, and to put these fronds into clean paper bags. Then hang up the bags in a warm and dry place for two or three weeks and by that time most of the spores will have dropped out of the spore-cases on the leaves and may be found in the bottom of the paper bag. From this they are stored away in small bottles, which are tightly corked. The seeds may be kept in this way until they are sown.

LOCATING A FERN.

I am enclosing a leaf from a fern. Will you tell me the variety? Where may it be obtained?

C. L. S.—Ill.

The fern in question is one of the forms of Nephrolepis Whitmanii, of which there are several varieties. It is not easy to say which of these this is, from one small leaf. N. Whitmanii is enough to protect them and us handsomely and their participation proved an interesting feature of the show.

Benefits.

"In any cities of fairly large size throughout the United States the florists can easily buckle into it and show the people there that this trade is quite alive. Such a show is also a great feature of advertising. The slogan, 'Say It with Flowers,' has become a great commercial asset. A flower show of large magnitude commands the attention and respect, not only of flower lovers, but also of the indifferent. It awakens the love of flowers and leads to an aspiration of attainment, thereby becoming an asset to the florists. Our florists have decided to continue these shows yearly. They make a mighty friendly fellowship and a closer co-operation, which the florists' craft ought to cultivate. It helps to take us out of the shell into which we are so apt to crawl and remain by ourselves.

"If florists will look at The Review of November 17, they will get an idea of the fellowship at Scranton from the banquet picture. Other lines of trade participate in these side social interests, much to their benefit; why should not we? Brushing up against the other fellow and exchanging ideas helps all around.

"When you stage your show communicate to the trade papers your plans and the advancing steps of your preparation; the papers are glad to get them and they will help the other fellow."

not so largely grown as it was ten or fifteen years ago, because of the fact that other varieties of nephrolepis have superseded it in commercial circles, but it is a handsome fern when it is well grown. This fern originated with a Massachusetts florist. Advertisements offering it appear in The Review.

WHITE SPECKS ON FERNS.

I am enclosing some fern fronds, with small, white specks on them. These seem to be insects, but one can never see them move. Will you tell me what the trouble is and suggest the best remedy?

S. F. S.—Ark.

The fern leaves are infested with fern scale, an insect pest that is, unfortunately, quite common and injurious to plants. Cut off the fronds that are most affected and burn them. Then dip the plants in a nicotine solution. Repeat the dip at intervals of ten days to two weeks. Some growers prefer to add one-half an ounce of soap to the solution, but this will sometimes injure the tender tips of the fronds, especially if the plants are exposed to the sun after dipping.

COMMERCIAL CALLAS

CULTURE OF THE CALLA.

Some of Its Aliases.

As far as its botanical connections are concerned, the calla of the florists has been tossed about like a nameless and homeless orphan. It has had names enough, to be sure, but it has had no permanent botanical name and no fixed abiding place in the botanical dictionaries. First, in both scientific and common speech, it was the calla, but soon the botanists ejected it from the calla family, as not having any genealogical right to remain there, and the name calla was restricted to one little bog plant, the water arum, or Calla palustris. Next the calla found a refuge as the richardia, and the old Calla aethiopica became Richardia africana, but presently it was discovered that a comparatively insignificant genus of herbs had a prior right to the name richardia. Then the long-suffering calla was afflicted with the name zantedeschia—Zantedeschia aethiopica, Z. Godfreyana, etc.—and that is the name which it bears in the latest editions of the botanical dictionaries. But among the great majority of its multitudinous friends the calla always has been, and still is, just the calla—or the calla lily, although, of course, it is not a lily at all.

Aethiopica vs. Godfreyana.

Two commercial varieties of the white calla, the old aethiopica and its descendant, the Godfrey calla, are strong rivals and both have staunch champions. The Godfrey, or Zantedeschia Godfreyana, is the result of a cross of aethiopica and Little Gem and was originated by W. J. Godfrey, of Godfrey & Sons, Exmouth, Devonshire, England, about a quarter-century ago. Many years later Godfrey & Sons — although then, be it noted, they had no stock of the Godfrey for sale—still declared unhesitatingly that the variety was superior to its parents, both in beauty and floriferousness. E. G. Hill, the American introducer of the Godfrey, seemed to be still of the opinion, when last questioned on the subject, that it is "an improvement over the old aethiopica, in color, texture and general refinement."

Some thoroughly experienced growers have declared that the flowers of Godfrey are of a purer shade of white than those of aethiopica. These growers also aver that the flowers of Godfrey average as large as those of aethiopica and are much more numerous—possibly from two to three times as numerous. Other growers, on the contrary, have been sadly disappointed with Godfrey's response, or lack of response, to their methods of culture. Perhaps it is sufficient to say, in final defense of the Godfrey calla, that it should not be condemned without a fair, adequate trial. Give the two varieties, Godfrey and aethiopica, equally careful treatment and compare results.

Controlling the Crop.

Where the temperature and other conditions permit, callas grow with greater or less vigor throughout the year, meanwhile multiplying by offsets, or bulblets, and bearing flowers almost continuously. In such mild climates as that of southern California, callas are treated much like any other perennials, but greatly excel most of the perennials in persistence of bloom. The hedges, borders and fields of callas in southern California represent about as near an approach to perpetual flowering as can readily be found.

By giving the greenhouse callas a period of rest, however, the harvest of blooms may be greatly improved in quality and dependability, and may be timed with certainty so as to be available when most desired. It is customary in America, therefore, to give the roots a rest during summer, so as to secure an abundant crop of superfine flowers in winter. The roots may even be dried and stored; it is in this way that California callas usually have been prepared for shipment.

It should be clearly understood, however, that the foregoing suggestions, in regard to giving callas a rest, do not apply to young plants which have not yet reached flowering size. These small plants—say in pots measuring 2½-inch to 4-inch—should not be allowed to rest, but should be kept growing without interruption until they are well rooted and have attained sufficient flowering strength. From June to September these small plants thrive best outdoors, where they should be freely watered and fed. By housing time they should be ready for a shift.

Now to return to the mature plants, which have borne their crop of flowers and are to receive their summer rest. If they are planted out in a bench—which, by the way, is not generally the best place for them, especially if they are Godfreys—they are left in the soil till all the foliage has died. Then the bulbs—otherwise called roots, or tubers, or corms, or rhizomes—are packed in dry sand or loam and stored in a dry shed, there to stay until wanted for replanting.

Repotting Rested Roots.

The pot-grown plants remain in their pots while resting, and usually are placed, in June, in a shed or a protected outdoor position, perhaps laid on their sides. They should not be placed where they would be fully exposed to the sun. In late August or early September they are shaken out and repotted. The compost should be sufficiently rich and should contain at least one-fourth of decomposed cow manure to three-fourths of good, rather coarse loam, or in some circumstances the loam and manure may be used in nearly equal proportions. Though callas are almost aquatic, the soil should not be stagnant, but should permit the water to pass through it readily. It has been customary to grow the old aethiopica singly in 5-inch to 7-inch pots, but the Godfrey makes a splendid showing if three strong roots are placed in a 7-inch or four in an 8-inch pot. Such a combination of plants may occasionally carry half a dozen good-sized, open flowers at one time.

After the plants are well established, they may be fed with liquid manure and with top-dressings of fine bone. The bone is especially relished by callas and is conducive to floriferousness. They require plenty of light and moisture. Usually a night temperature of 55 to 60 degrees is considered most suitable. If, however, the intention is to extend the blooming season as much as possible, Godfreys may be grown successfully in a minimum temperature of 50 degrees. In general, a carnation temperature is approximately right for callas. To combat thrips and red spider, occasional syringing and fumigating are needed.

As already intimated, the results from pot culture of callas are usually much more satisfactory than from bench culture. In benches, with abundant space for root development, the plants are likely to make a rank growth and produce comparatively few flowers, especially in the dark days of winter. In the brighter, longer days of spring the bench plants may bear a fair crop of flowers, many of them extra large and some of them even of unwieldy size—too big to be useful for any ordinary purpose. But the total output from the potted plants will probably be much greater, of much more uniform, satisfactory quality and much more profitable.

Propagation by Offsets.

Callas are propagated easily and abundantly by means of the offsets, bulblets, or suckers that form on the old tubers. In the case of bench-grown stock, these offsets may be started on their separate existence in June, when the old tubers are dug in preparation for a rest. At the time of digging, the offsets are detached from the tubers and are planted outdoors, or in pots or boxes, where they are watered copiously throughout the summer. In fall, before frost, they are potted and housed, for frost is ruinous to the foliage. Thus, while the plants from the benches are resting, the offsets are developing toward flowering size.

When pot culture is practiced and the plants remain in their pots all summer, the offsets are removed when repotting the rested stock in the autumn. In this instance, the offsets are placed at once in small pots and are grown on during the winter and following summer, attaining strong flowering size by the end of that time.

The Golden Calla.

Thus far in this article, no direct reference has been made to any other species or variety of calla except æthi-opica and its immediate descendants, such as Godfrey. The increasingly popular species, Zantedeschia Elliottiana, commonly called the golden calla, differs from the æthiopica race in this one important particular, that Elliottiana is naturally dormant during winter and should therefore receive its rest then. While resting, the tubers may remain in the soil in a cold house or may be stored in a cellar or similar place, in a temperature that does not vary greatly from 45 degrees.

In the spring—perhaps in the first part of April—when signs of growth in the Elliottiana tubers appear, they are potted. During the succeeding two or three weeks, while root growth is becoming well established, they require a comparatively low temperature, with careful, somewhat restricted watering. From that time on, their treatment is similar to that of the other callas mentioned and the plants begin flowering sometime within three months from the date of their spring start. In a purely natural environment they do not bloom until late summer. The flowers, or spathes, which last about two weeks, are a lustrous yellow when in their prime, but are a greenish yellow in their early stages and merge again into green when aging. Elliottiana forms seeds plentifully, as well as offsets, and may be propagated by either means.

MR. FLUEGGE'S PETS.

Did you ever meet Wm. Fluegge's feathered friend? Mr. Fluegge, whose place is at Morton Grove, Ill., is widely known in the district as an expert grower. His specialties are geraniums and cyclamens, although he is equally successful with carnations. When you visit his greenhouses you will find Mr. Fluegge busily at work. Topsy, you know, "just growed," but Mr. Fluegge's place does not contain the Topsy type of plants and his motto is something like "Eternal vigilance is the price of good stock." One rarely fails to find him on the job, and on his shoulder as he works sits "Pretty Polly," as in the picture. Polly lives in the greenhouses, perching on the handle of a ventilating machine when the owner is absent.

Mr. Fluegge imports his cyclamen seed from Germany. There are about 15,000 plants in 5-inch and 6-inch pots in the batch shown in the photograph, which was made October 26, 1921. Mr. Fluegge is just as successful with geraniums as he is with cyclamens—or parrots.

THE PRICE OF GLASS.

The federal grand jury at New York, November 28, returned an indictment charging fifty-three corporations in the window glass industry with violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. Joseph M. Neenan, president of the National Glass Workers' Union, was indicted. The indictment charges conspiracy between the labor union and the glass producers to limit production, thereby enabling the defendants to arbitrarily maintain excessive prices.

The Johnston Brokerage Co., an alleged selling agency, also was named in the indictment. This agency, the indictment declares, was part of "a price scheme to enable the defendants to combine, to dictate terms of sale and to eliminate competition."

The defendants are charged with a combination and conspiracy to suppress competition, to maintain arbitrary, excessive and extortionate prices, to curtail the production and the supply of window glass, and to control the sale, shipment and delivery of window glass.

For the purpose of carrying out the alleged conspiracy to fix prices, it is charged an agreement was entered into with the labor union, through Mr. Neenan, whereby the quantity to be produced annually by each manufacturer, the period within which the manufacturers were to operate their factories, and the amount to be manufactured by each of the employees were predetermined and prescribed.

Uniontown, Pa.—Mr. Stenson, of Stenson & McGrail, is on the sick list and not able to be at the store.

Crescent, Mo.—A page advertisement of the Pevely Dairy Co. in the roto-gravure supplement of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat November 27 showed views of the greenhouses operated on the Pevely farm, formerly the estate of J. T. Milliken. The cut from these houses goes to the St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co., whose manager, D. S. Geddis, directed the enterprises on this farm before it was sold by the Milliken heirs.

WHAT SOUTH CAN GROW

PERENNIALS IN THE SOUTH.

An Opportunity.

For the last ten years we have been carrying on a series of experiments in the growing of bulbs and perennials in the south. Our operations have been confined largely to the vicinity of Nashville, Tenn., and Chattanooga, Tenn., but we have had under observation much of the remarkable work of the Baums at Knoxville. They have done their work wholly from the standpoint of the commercial grower, while our work has been done partly as an educational proposition, but we have always kept in view the financial side and have steadily refused to consider any work a success that did not pay financially.

Our work has covered the growing of several thousand varieties of bulbs and perennial plants, sometimes by the thousand and sometimes by the dozen or hundred. At one time we had over 100,000 of the so-called Dutch bulbs growing on our grounds. Our experience leads us to believe that there is no reason in the world why Tennessee, North Carolina and Georgia should not produce all of the worthwhile bulbs that are required in this country.

Multiplication.

All varieties of tulips do not multiply as readily here as they do abroad, but there are enough of the best varieties in each color and class that do multiply well here to meet all requirements. Experiments conducted under my direction near Douglasville, Ga., about twenty miles from Atlanta, lead me to believe that tulips cannot be successfully grown much farther south than the northern border of Georgia, unless it be in the mountain districts. For no apparent reason, they refused to multiply properly and after three or four years gradually disappeared, although given abundance of proper fertilization and good culture. On the other hand, all of the narcissi grow and multiply abundantly anywhere in the south and, if given fertile soil, will make as fine bulbs as can be imported. We had several growers test some of our home-grown bulbs for forcing purposes and, while the bulbs furnished were not so large as the mother bulbs from Holland that were used for comparison, in every test our bulbs produced more flowers and bloomed from ten days to two weeks earlier.

We have had difficulty in growing the polyanthus varieties of narcissi in the vicinity of Nashville, as they suffered severely from the winter, but both at Knoxville and Chattanooga they withstood the winter readily, probably due to the difference in the soil in these places. We grew Paper Whites readily at Nashville by giving them good protection over winter and succeeded in getting mammoth bulbs from the smallest offsets in one year. We never were able, however, to overcome the fact that perhaps twenty per cent of these bulbs were blind. We expect to experiment further with this, however, as we believe the fault lies in the fact that they were given too rich a soil and hence made their growth too quickly. We believe that if they were given two years to mature instead of one they would come 100 per cent good.

Hyacinths and Lilies.

We have had more difficulty with hyacinths than with any other bulbs, not because they do not multiply rapidly, for they do, but because moles and mice are so fond of them and because they suffer badly from soft rot if exposed too much to the hot sunshine at digging time. Fortunately, L'Innocence, Gertrude, La Grandesse, Queen of the Blues, Robert Steiger and a number more of our best varieties suffered less from this difficulty. Home-forced bulbs forced well indeed, always making good spikes and flowering even earlier than the spe-world where so many varieties of iris succeed or where any of them succeed better than they do in this district. True, all of the irises except the Spanish and the English prefer clay soil and must have an abundance of lime, but with these conditions even those that are reported a failure in most parts of the country multiply amazingly and bloom freely. I have a few Spanish irises that have been growing and multiplying for ten years and, if they do any better in Europe than they do here, they must be a weed there.

We have never been able to make a success of growing freesias, as we are not able to get them through the winter in good shape. Grape hyacinths and similar small bulbs almost grow wild in places and seem perfectly indifferent as to their location and requirements.

When it comes to growing the plants that are commonly spoken of as hardy perennials, we had more difficulty, unless we were prepared to give a little irrigation, or to shade them with lattice. Hollyhocks, all of the helianthus, the coneflowers, gaillardia, Shasta daisies and similar sturdy-growing plants do not require any of this attention. They can be grown in any ordinary soil under ordinary conditions. Foxgloves, campanulas and delphiniums require either deep, fertile soil, a partial shade or some irrigation, in order to succeed as readily as they should. If one is prepared to give any of these things, they grow like weeds. Columbines, gypsophila, Michaelmas daisies and similar plants are about halfway between the other two classes given. Sometimes I have succeeded admirably with these and pyrethrum without any special attention, but more often it has been necessary to give close attention to these details in order to get results.

Other Flowers Tried.

We have never had any success with Iceland poppies. They come readily from seed and bloom freely the first year, but there is the end of the matter. We have never been able to carry a single plant through the winter. Oriental poppies and their hybrids, however, are successful under the same conditions as foxgloves and delphiniums.

In no place can pansies be grown more easily than in the south, but they should not be sown before the middle of September, and usually the first of October is better. The seeds should be sown in fertile soil and given an abundance of moisture, with shade from burlap or some similar material stretched over a lattice a couple of feet above them, until they have the second pair of leaves. After this the work is easy, but they must be either carried through the winter in coldframes or abundantly mulched with light straw. They will be heaved out and badly injured, if not killed, by the constant freezing, which occurs practically every day for several weeks. Most perennial seeds can be sown at the same time and treated in the same way as pansies and will make blooming plants by spring. We like to sow most of our perennial seeds cially prepared Christmas-flowering bulbs shipped from abroad.

Our experience with lilies has been confined to the various hemerocallis, tiger lilies, the native Turk's Cap, rubrum, giganteum, multiflorum, candidum, and a few tenuifolium. All of these lilies multiply readily, indeed, in this southland of ours and produce first-class bulbs both for forcing and outdoor planting. Of course, as yet only a few hundred of these bulbs have been forced, but results have been so uniformly good that it seems safe to say that they are a success. So confident am I in this matter that I have purchased land just outside of Chattanooga and am planting bulbs of all of these classes by the thousand. Liliun tenuifolium is best propagated from seed sown in the early spring. These bloom the second year. Tiger lilies are propagated from the bulblets that grow in the axils of the leaves. These are planted in July and bloom in two years.

We doubt if there is any part of the

as soon as they are ripe, watering and shading them until fall. Then they can be carried over in the open ground and are better plants in the spring. We often sow in the open in February and most of these plants bloom the first year. The best of them are large enough to ship north by the last of April or the first of May.

Perennial phlox, in order to be successfully grown, should be protected by lattice, as they suffer badly during the hot, dry days of summer. Often entire stocks are lost at this time for lack of shade. We have faith enough in them, however, and we are planning to propagate something like 10,000 next spring and this faith is based on past experience.

GROWING VICTORIA REGIA.

The Royal Water Lily.

The royal water lily, Victoria regia, indigenous to the Amazon river, although in its native habitat it is a perennial, is treated at the Phipps conservatory, in Schenley park, Pittsburgh, as an annual. The seeds are started about January 1, inserted in sand in shallow pans and placed in a tank containing water, the temperature of the water being 90 to 95 degrees. This temperature is maintained until the seeds germinate, which takes from eight to ten days. The temperature of the water after that period is decreased to about 80 to 85 degrees, at which time the seedlings are placed singly in 2½-inch pots. They are repotted whenever necessary until the final potting, which is generally in 8-inch pans, from which, at the beginning of May, they are planted in their permanent quarters for the summer. At this time the temperature of the water is decreased to about 80 degrees. The temperature of the house at night is 70 degrees. This also applies to the house where the seeds are started.

They are planted in cement boxes, eight feet square and thirteen inches deep, in an irregular-shaped tank 28x48 feet, two plants being placed in the tank. The compost in which they are planted consists of three parts ordinary soil and one part well decomposed cow manure, with a good sprinkling of bone flour. In addition to this, six inches of manure is placed on the bottom of the boxes before they are filled. After they are filled, the surface is covered with about two inches of sand, which helps to keep the water clear. When planting, the water is run up to within an inch of the top of the boxes. After the planting is done, the water is run up so as to have about four inches of water covering the crown of the plant, gradually increasing as the plants grow, until finally there are fifteen inches of water over the crowns.

At the time the accompanying photograph was taken there were twenty leaves in the tank, two to eight feet in diameter, with rims about six inches high. If the tank were larger, there would be far more leaves, but the rapid growth of the plant makes it necessary to remove the older leaves to make room for the newer ones.

The peculiarities of the Victoria regia are the smallness of the flower compared with the gigantic leaves, and the changing of the color of the blossom. When the blossom, which is about 8 inches in diameter, first opens in the morning it is a pure white, with a banana-like fragrance. About 3 p. m. the color will have gradually changed from white to a faint pink, increasing in intensity until at evening it is about the color of an American Beauty rose. The following morning it will be submerged and will sink gradually to the bottom of the tank, where it will perfect the seed for the following year. The blossoms are not hand-pollinated. One of the peculiarities of the lily is the fact that there are fierce spines on the under side of the leaves, by which they are protected from fish, etc., below.

A good method of saving the seed is to place a receptacle on the bottom of the tank early in the summer for six or eight of the largest flowers. A shallow pan is best, as it keeps the seed together; otherwise, if there were fish in the tank, they would scatter the seed.

J. W. Jones.

MITE ON CYCLAMENS.

I have sent you by parcel post a cyclamen plant that seems to have a fungous disease. This starts on the under side of the leaves and they get wilted and leathery-appearing. Then they turn yellow or brown. I have been careful about watering them, watering only when on the dry side. I have sprayed them twice with Nico-fume since housing. The soil here is composed of two parts of soil from the field, two parts of leaf-mold and one part of well rotted cow manure that contains sawdust and sand. The temperature has been kept at about 55 degrees at night, except two or three nights when it went down 4 or 5 degrees lower. Will you tell me what the trouble is and suggest a remedy?

H. H. J.—Ind.

The plant came safely and shows unmistakable signs of mite. This will wipe out, probably, your whole batch. This is a heavy loss and is regrettable. I do not know of any cure for mite and, while some have been suggested, it is doubtful if a real one exists. It is a common disease. At present I have in mind one prominent grower who has lost 20,000 plants; another grower has lost 10,000 and a third grower 6,000. Practically all these batches are a complete loss. Every year some growers suffer this loss, no matter how skillful growers they are and no matter how careful they may be. It would be advisable not to grow any cyclamens next year. The spores of the mite seem to persist. Keep clear of them for a year. Then try again. It is harassing and discouraging, but I have more than once had the same experience and can sympathize with you.

C. W.

TROUBLE WITH CYCLAMENS.

We are sending under separate cover some of our cyclamen leaves, which are spoiling. I should like to know what we can do to save them from further loss.

B. G.—Ia.

The leaves were much decomposed on receipt and it is not easy to diagnose your trouble. No signs of mite were seen. Mite causes the leaves to become more or less distorted. Spots at intervals would seem to indicate that you have some sort of fungous trouble. It would be advisable to throw away the plants most affected and to isolate others affected in a less degree.

Keep a tolerably dry atmosphere and do not shade the plants at all now. Do no syringing and in watering dampen the foliage as little as possible. Use a powder bellows and blow a mixture of sulphur and fine charcoal dust on the affected plants. Give the plants a temperature of 55 degrees at night and lower the temperature as the blooms open well. Air the plants freely on clear, pleasant days. Keep some heat in the pipes all the time.

NATIONAL FLOWER SHOW.

Committee Meets at Cleveland.

A meeting of the national flower show committee was held in the Hotel Cleveland, Cleveland, O., Thursday and Friday, November 17 and 18. There were present: George Asmus, Chicago, chairman, who presided; Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.; Secretary John Young, New York; Herman P. Knoble, Cleveland; Frank H. Traendly, New York; Wallace R. Pierson, Cromwell, Conn.; Joseph H. Hill, Richmond, Ind.; A. F. J. Baur, secretary of the American Carnation Society, Indianapolis, Ind.; William H. Duckham, Madison, N. J.; Patrick Welch, Boston, Mass., and S. S. Pennock, representing the American Rose Society, Philadelphia, Pa.

The proceedings opened at 10 a. m. Thursday, November 17. Matters in relation to the coöperation of the American Rose Society in the show were discussed and the standing of the society in the connection determined upon. Similar action was taken in regard to the coöperation of the American Carnation Society. H. P. Knoble read a brief report covering the activities of the various local committees.

Luncheon with Rotarians.

The foregoing business occupied the time of the meeting until adjournment for luncheon, when the committee, with the local chairmen, were guests of the Rotary Club. The luncheon was a most enjoyable function. Addresses were made by Chairman Asmus, President Roland, Secretary Young and others, and, with the usual Rotary proceedings on such occasions, two hours were pleasantly passed. The guests were introduced by H. B. Jones, of the Jones-Russell Co., Cleveland, who made the arrangements for their entertainment.

Promptly at 2 p. m. the committee reconvened and there were present at this session the following chairmen of the local committees: George L. Mercer, printing; R. P. Brydon, aquarium; Carl Hagenburger, local exhibits; George Bate, out-of-town exhibits; William H. Temblett, exterior decorating; Fred G. Witthuhn, information bureau; A. D. Taylor, interior decoration; Al. Barber, special features; F. C. W. Brown, advertising; Walter E. Cook, concessions; J. A. McLaughlin, special premiums.

On motion of H. P. Knoble, a vote of thanks was passed to H. B. Jones for the fine publicity feature scored through his efforts in connection with the luncheon of the Rotary Club. On motion of S. S. Pennock, it was voted that a letter of appreciation of their hospitality be sent to the Rotary Club, through the Society of American Florists, and that a $25 bouquet of flowers be sent with the vote of thanks to the club's president, Clifford E. Pierce.

Committee Reports.

F. C. W. Brown, for the advertising committee, made a full report, which included the publicity work engaged in to date. Advertising stickers, he said, would be ready December 1 and the sheet posters could be procured in Cleveland. As expenditures for these purposes were not covered in the original appropriation, Mr. Brown was requested to prepare a statement as to approximate costs for presentation at a later session of the committee.

R. P. Brydon, for the aquarium committee, reported satisfactory arrangements, in which the local aquarium society was joining. He said that his committee was trying to keep well within the original appropriation of $500 for this feature of the show.

Fred G. Witthuhn, in reporting for the bureau of information, assured the committee that information of every sort likely to be required by visitors would be forthcoming. On motion of Mr. Hill, the sum of $300 was voted to this committee, the same, however, not to include the expense of telephone service and installation.

Walter E. Cook reported for the committee on concessions, stating that it was contemplated to have a small restaurant stand, a soda fountain and a soft drink booth. Mr. Knoble suggested that a booth for the sale of flowers be installed, the same to be in charge of a man who should be paid for his services. On motion of Mr. Hagenburger, it was ordered that such a stand be arranged for.

William H. Temblett reported on plans evolved by the committee on exterior decoration and it was arranged that the matter of a suitable appropriation should come up at a later session of the committee. At Mr. Temblett's request, he was, on motion of Mr. Roland, given permission to work in conjunction with a local nurseryman toward the installation of a landscape exhibit at the north end of the exhibition hall, the space for the purpose to be given free to any responsible and competent person for the purpose.

A. D. Taylor, for the committee on interior decoration, reported that his committee would require to know what appropriation would be available for interior decoration before a definite scheme could be laid out and some information ought to be forthcoming as to entries for the big garden displays. Mr. Taylor was advised that a suitable as soon as they are ripe, watering and shading them until fall. Then they can be carried over in the open ground and are better plants in the spring. We often sow in the open in February and most of these plants bloom the first year. The best of them are large enough to ship north by the last of April or the first of May.

Perennial phlox, in order to be successfully grown, should be protected by lattice, as they suffer badly during the hot, dry days of summer. Often entire stocks are lost at this time for lack of shade. We have faith enough in them, however, and we are planning to propagate something like 10,000 next spring and this faith is based on past experience.

GROWING VICTORIA REGIA.

The Royal Water Lily.

The royal water lily, Victoria regia, indigenous to the Amazon river, although in its native habitat it is a perennial, is treated at the Phipps conservatory, in Schenley park, Pittsburgh, as an annual. The seeds are started about January 1, inserted in sand in shallow pans and placed in a tank containing water, the temperature of the water being 90 to 95 degrees. This temperature is maintained until the seeds germinate, which takes from eight to ten days. The temperature of the water after that period is decreased to about 80 to 85 degrees, at which time the seedlings are placed singly in 2½-inch pots. They are repotted whenever necessary until the final potting, which is generally in 8-inch pans, from which, at the beginning of May, they are planted in their permanent quarters for the summer. At this time the temperature of the water is decreased to about 80 degrees. The temperature of the house at night is 70 degrees. This also applies to the house where the seeds are started.

They are planted in cement boxes, eight feet square and thirteen inches deep, in an irregular-shaped tank 28x48 feet, two plants being placed in the tank. The compost in which they are planted consists of three parts ordinary soil and one part well decomposed cow manure, with a good sprinkling of bone flour. In addition to this, six inches of manure is placed on the bottom of the boxes before they are filled. After they are filled, the surface is covered with about two inches of sand, which helps to keep the water clear. When planting, the water is run up to within an inch of the top of the boxes. After the planting is done, the water is run up so as to have about four inches of water covering the crown of the plant, gradually increasing as the plants grow, until finally there are fifteen inches of water over the crowns.

At the time the accompanying photograph was taken there were twenty leaves in the tank, two to eight feet in diameter, with rims about six inches high. If the tank were larger, there would be far more leaves, but the rapid growth of the plant makes it necessary to remove the older leaves to make room for the newer ones.

The peculiarities of the Victoria regia are the smallness of the flower compared with the gigantic leaves, and the changing of the color of the blossom. When the blossom, which is about 8 inches in diameter, first opens in the morning it is a pure white, with a banana-like fragrance. About 3 p. m. the color will have gradually changed from white to a faint pink, increasing in intensity until at evening it is about the color of an American Beauty rose. The following morning it will be submerged and will sink gradually to the bottom of the tank, where it will perfect the seed for the following year. The blossoms are not hand-pollinated. One of the peculiarities of the lily is the fact that there are fierce spines on the under side of the leaves, by which they are protected from fish, etc., below.

A good method of saving the seed is to place a receptacle on the bottom of the tank early in the summer for six or eight of the largest flowers. A shallow pan is best, as it keeps the seed together; otherwise, if there were fish in the tank, they would scatter the seed.

J. W. Jones.

MITE ON CYCLAMENS.

I have sent you by parcel post a cyclamen plant that seems to have a fungous disease. This starts on the under side of the leaves and they get wilted and leathery-appearing. Then they turn yellow or brown. I have been careful about watering them, watering only when on the dry side. I have sprayed them twice with Nico-fume since housing. The soil here is composed of two parts of soil from the field, two parts of leaf-mold and one part of well rotted cow manure that contains sawdust and sand. The temperature has been kept at about 55 degrees at night, except two or three nights when it went down 4 or 5 degrees lower. Will you tell me what the trouble is and suggest a remedy?

H. H. J.—Ind.

The plant came safely and shows unmistakable signs of mite. This will wipe out, probably, your whole batch. This is a heavy loss and is regrettable. I do not know of any cure for mite and, while some have been suggested, it is doubtful if a real one exists. It is a common disease. At present I have in mind one prominent grower who has lost 20,000 plants; another grower has lost 10,000 and a third grower 6,000. Practically all these batches are a complete loss. Every year some growers suffer this loss, no matter how skillful growers they are and no matter how careful they may be. It would be advisable not to grow any cyclamens next year. The spores of the mite seem to persist. Keep clear of them for a year. Then try again. It is harassing and discouraging, but I have more than once had the same experience and can sympathize with you.

C. W.

TROUBLE WITH CYCLAMENS.

We are sending under separate cover some of our cyclamen leaves, which are spoiling. I should like to know what we can do to save them from further loss.

B. G.—Ia.

The leaves were much decomposed on receipt and it is not easy to diagnose your trouble. No signs of mite were seen. Mite causes the leaves to become more or less distorted. Spots at intervals would seem to indicate that you have some sort of fungous trouble. It would be advisable to throw away the plants most affected and to isolate others affected in a less degree.

Keep a tolerably dry atmosphere and do not shade the plants at all now. Do no syringing and in watering dampen the foliage as little as possible. Use a powder bellows and blow a mixture of sulphur and fine charcoal dust on the affected plants. Give the plants a temperature of 55 degrees at night and lower the temperature as the blooms open well. Air the plants freely on clear, pleasant days. Keep some heat in the pipes all the time.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Plant Registration.

Public notice is hereby given that, as no objection has been filed against the registration of Coleus Harding, by Louis Hahn & Son, Pittsburgh, Pa., and Geranium Alice Mae, by the Tong & Weeks Floral Co., Ashtabula, O., the same has become complete.

sum would be appropriated for the committee's work.

Much Accomplished.

Carl Hagenburger, for the committee on local exhibits, reported that there would assuredly be three large garden exhibits and the prospect of a fourth was encouraging, Mr. Brydon reporting that the Cleveland Garden Club was reconsidering an invitation to stage a garden.

Albert Barber, for the committee on special features, gave a synopsis of a number of plans under consideration by his committee. Not the least of these features were "special days." On motion of Mr. Roland it was decided to issue a number, not to exceed 100, of special invitations for these days, the same to be in the name of the society.

Charles E. Russell, for the committee on retail exhibits, reported that ten or more of such exhibits had been definitely arranged for, and others would be secured after the holidays.

James A. McLaughlin, for the committee on special premiums, reported that the sum of $1,380 had already been contributed for special premiums. A good many of his prospects, he said, had made donations through the rose and carnation societies and he suggested that the secretaries of these societies send their lists to him for checking, so as to avoid duplication.

For the committee on admissions, Walter E. Cook reported that it was considered that the price of admission arranged, $1, was too much, and he requested that the committee reconsider the same. After a lengthy discussion, a motion by Mr. Cook prevailed that the general admission for adults be fixed as 50 cents, plus war tax; school children, under the age of 14, 25 cents plus war tax, and tickets sold in blocks of fifty and upwards, 35 cents plus war tax. It was further agreed that the tickets sold in blocks at 35 cents each would be the same tickets as those sold for 50 cents, and not marked "trade tickets," although of a different color.

Adjournment was here taken until Friday at 11:30 a. m.

Second Day's Meeting.

Promptly at the hour named the chairman called the meeting to order. H. P. Knoble read a letter from Thomas W. Thomas, director of public property, to the effect that the public auditorium had been reserved for the use of the show at a rental agreed upon. In appreciation of the courtesies extended to the committee by Mr. Thomas, it was, on motion of Mr. Hill, ordered that a letter embodying such appreciation be sent to the mayor and Mr. Thomas, with a bouquet of flowers.

H. P. Knoble advised the committee that it would be absolutely necessary for someone to devote his entire time to the detail work of the show. After some discussion, L. C. Vinson, who appeared before the committee, was engaged for this work, it being understood that Secretary Young would be present in Cleveland for about one month prior to the show to take over the detail work and allow Mr. Vinson to devote his entire time to publicity. It was arranged that Mr. Vinson's duties commence January 1 next, under the supervision of the local executive committee, and that he bear the official title of secretary of the local executive committee.

It was decided that Timothy Smith, chairman of the admission committee, should have the charge of passes into the show. On motion of W. R. Pierson, it was arranged that the committee assign a special number of tickets to the use of the American Rose Society, which society would return the block rate, 35 cents each, for all such tickets collected at the gate. The local committee was directed to work in conjunction with Secretary Young in regard to the issue of exhibitors' tickets.

Provision was made for the awarding of premiums in miscellaneous cut flower classes.

A staging committee of three was ordered to be appointed by the chairman of the national flower show committee, who also was to be chairman of this committee, with power to arrange all details as to a proper and artistic staging of the show.

A request by H. P. Knoble, in behalf of the F. T. D., for a prominent space in the show for a presentation of "The Temple of Flora," was considered and referred to the staging committee.

On motion of W. R. Pierson, the local committee was empowered to engage offices as soon as they were needed.

After providing for the payment of all local bills, the question of the payment of expenses of representatives of the affiliating societies was taken up and it was the unanimous opinion of the members of the committee that their expenses should be paid on the same basis as those of the committee's members, and, on motion of President Roland, it was decided that this allowance be made, viz., railroad fare and Pullman fees on the shortest route to meeting place, plus 5 dollars per day for maintenance.

In the evening the members of the national flower show committee, with the exception of Secretary Young, who with S. S. Pennock left for New York, were guests of H. P. Knoble at his home, where they were most hospitably entertained.

Premiums Offered.

James McLaughlin, chairman of the committee on special premiums, reports the following special premiums offered to date:

Budlong Rose Co., Providence, R. I.—Discretion of committee, cash, $25.

George B. Hart, Rochester, N. Y.—Discretion of committee, cash, $25.

J. J. Hess, Omaha, Neb.—Discretion of committee, cash, $25.

Robert Craig Co., Norwood Station, Pa.—To be used for either dracaenas or crotons, cash, $25.

Henry A. Dreer, Philadelphia, Pa.—To be offered as Dreer premiums in such a manner as the committee desired, cash, $200.

Chicago Flower Growers' Association, Chicago, Ill.—To be offered as prize in any class as committee decides, cash, $50.

W. E. Marshall & Co., New York, N. Y.—To be offered as follows: Private gardeners' class, display of narcissi and tulips, cut blooms to occupy space of not more than fifty square feet; any foliage may be used, first prize, cash, $20; second prize, $10.

Mrs. Annie W. Treadway, Cleveland, O.—Discretion of committee, cash, $25.

Traendly & Schenck, New York, N. Y.—Discretion of committee, cash, $50.

B. Hammond Tracy, Inc.—Wenham, Mass.—To be offered as prize for whatever exhibit the committee shall designate, one Japanese lamp vase, value, $20.

Hotel Cleveland Co., Cleveland, O.—To be offered as prize in some cut flower class for the committee to designate, cash, $30.

C. M. Hamilton, Kewanee, Ill.—Discretion of committee, cash, $25.

J. A. Peterson & Sons, Cincinnati, O.—To be awarded as follows: For twelve best hydrangeas in bloom, three varieties, to be grown in 7-inch to 8-inch pots, for commercial growers only, cash, $50.

Leo Niessen Co., Philadelphia.—Discretion of committee, cash, $50.

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

WHAT IS A FAIR PROFIT?

We are sending the Thanksgiving price list of a prominent Buffalo florist and at the same time wish to refer you to the Buffalo market price list which was effective November 22.

Is it reasonable that even a city florist, whose overhead expense without a doubt is greater than our own, should ask a price eight times the market cost? Business is duller at these times of recovery from the war conditions and it seems reasonable to us that people want more flowers for the dollar, which comes harder than ever before in this generation.

We ask what you consider, and what other florists consider is a fair profit?

Gorton & Story.

CINERARIA CULTURE.

To those who are unable to get that large foliage on cinerarias so desirable, it is suggested that an application of blood flour, every fortnight, be tried. Scald a pint of blood flour in a gallon of water, stirring vigorously. Allow this solution to stand until cold, then dilute by adding two gallons of water and apply to the plants. In making this application, give about a gill to a 5-inch plant, keeping the solution stirred all the while.

If troubled with green fly, invert the plant when the leaves are the size of your hand, and dust the under side of the leaves liberally with pure tobacco dust. The velvety surface of the under side of the leaves will retain sufficient dust to keep the fly away, without injuring the appearance of the plant. Try this on your callas also.

FOR "MUM POISONING."

When I saw the inquiry of Henry Ebelink in The Review for November 17 regarding the obtaining of a remedy for a lady employee who is troubled with "mum poisoning," I was reminded of G. L. Grant, the late editor of The Review, and the piece of mountain land where his family now resides. At the time to which I refer this land was covered in many parts with poison oak. While clearing the land, Mr. Grant and his whole family suffered just as this lady is suffering now.

At that time I went with Mr. Grant to Carl C. Kratzenstein, manager of the Model drug store. Mr. Kratzenstein gave the Grants immediate relief; I asked him the other day for some of the remedy to send to Mr. Ebelink. Mr. Kratzenstein explained that the same remedy would not "fill the bill" in this case, but he recommended "Lloyd's

BIG STORM HITS BOSTON.

Sunday, November 27, rain fell steadily all day in greater Boston. North of that city it came in the form of snow. The temperature from 5 a. m., November 27, until 10 a. m. on the following day was several degrees below freezing, and with rain falling steadily all this time and turning to ice as it fell, trees and shrubs were soon covered with a heavy coating of ice, the heaviest known in the memory of the oldest horticulturist.

The damage to trees in the Arnold Arboretum, on Boston Common, in the public gardens, in parkways and streets, on private estates and in woodlands is so tremendous as to be almost beyond belief. Many thousands of splendid trees, both deciduous and evergreen, are ruined and a great number of others badly disfigured. The damage is so serious that it will take nearly an entire month on the larger estates and in the parks just partly to clean up and repair the damage.

Telephone and electric light wires and poles were down in all directions. A large part of the city was without light November 28 and many streets all but impassable. Great snow storms have in some years done considerable damage, but not one a small fractional part of what has been done on this occasion. Florists have escaped quite well, but business at the wholesale markets November 28 was exceedingly light, and with transportation facilities badly disorganized, many growers and buyers did not come to the market at all. This storm amounts to a real public calamity.

GERANIUMS DAMPING OFF.

I have been in business twenty-two years and have never had trouble with geranium cuttings until last year, when I began losing plants by the hundreds. I never had better stock to start with, using 500 Ricard and 600 Poitevine, and inside of four days they turned black and soon I had hardly one left. I whitewashed the bench, sifted the sand and placed the plants in firmly. I then watered them and gave them plenty of sun and air. I put some S. A. Nutt in a box 12x24, placing the box outdoors, but even they acted the same way. I even left them twenty-four hours after taking them off before putting them in the box. Can you tell me the cause and remedy for this?

A. & S.—Mass.

It is probable you took your cuttings rather too early. The chances of damping off are always far greater while the weather is hot and September was exceptionally clear and warm in your state this year. It would be advisable always to delay putting in the cuttings until about October 1. The cooler nights usual at that date make the geranium wood firmer and reduce the chances of damping off. You may have noticed that cuttings taken from under glass root without any trouble and with a small loss from damping off. This is because the wood is harder and more short-jointed and because these cuttings are usually put in during the coolest months of the year and not the warmest.

HOWARD EVARTS WEED.

WHEN an Oregon paper referred to the "florists' Christopher Columbus," it meant Howard Evarts Weed, of the Weed Landscape Nursery, at Beaverton, Ore., called the peony and iris wizard of the northwest, who discovered the wonderful conditions for growing peonies and irises afforded by the territory about Portland. Mr. Weed located at his present place in 1911. Before that year he had been a landscape gardener in Chicago, later had been connected with Cornell University and then with the Mississippi experiment station and for a time had been the agricultural agent for the Central of Georgia railway. He has three children, Wilbur, who is associated with him at the nursery; Edith and Thurlow. Mr. Weed has traveled all over the country giving his famous lectures on civic improvement and beautification. He is also an author of note, having written "Modern Park Cemeteries" and "Spraying for Profit." In July he was elected president of the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen.

A good plan is to put the flats on a shelf in full sun. A flat, 12x24, will easily hold 100 or more cuttings. Never shade them, and any cuttings which are soft and sappy should be allowed to dry off for a few hours on the potting bench before putting them in sand. If there is anything wrong with your propagating sand, it would be well to use either fine coal ashes or fine charcoal. Geraniums will root readily in either. Personally, I have discontinued putting in geranium cuttings early; it does not pay. On and after October 1 the loss is small.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

LIBERTY bonds are going up, and patriotic, not to say wise, florists begin to profit.

MORE florists' bills would be paid promptly if more of them were sent out promptly.

MAKE early preparations for getting Christmas business. Extra effort will be repaid this year.

HAVE you written your congressman telling him how necessary to florists is the special delivery service on parcel post shipments?

SEND your publicity pledge, to begin January 1, 1922, to John Young, secretary of the S. A. F., 43 West Eighteenth street, New York. We shall need to push the slogan the next four years harder than we did the last.

THE tax law has been passed by Congress without lightening the burdens on business as was promised at campaign time by the Republican party. Not until 1923 will the removal of the excess profits tax benefit florists, since in 1922 they must raise the money to meet the taxes on this year's business.

If your city is not represented in the news columns of The Review, give the Editor the name of some one you believe would be able to represent The Review in your community. There are openings in several cities for florists who get around among the trade and who can write the news of their locality regularly.

THE dahlias in the garden of Former Supreme Court Justice Joseph T. Marean are awakening interest in the daily papers through a dispatch stating that a bloom one foot across, produced there, was the largest ever grown. Some of the Marean dahlias were seen by visitors at the show of the American Dahlia Society, at New York, in September.

Too frequently a suggestion from a fellow florist's methods are brushed aside with "His business is on a different scale," or "It's all right for him, but it wouldn't work with us." The method of application may be somewhat different, but a good many practices of progressive florists might be followed by a far greater number than benefit by such examples.

You can do business much more easily and expeditiously if your communications are on printed stationery. When money is not so easy to get and "time is money," it pays to be businesslike.

INCREASE your collection efforts if you are not getting the money as you should. You will need the ready funds to finance your holiday business. Besides, it will be harder to collect what is due as the holidays approach.

THIS week the Editor's desk is graced by a vase of white anemone chrysanthemums from W. F. Richter, Cullman, Ala. The variety is a 1919 seedling of his. After their long journey the flowers stood up well and their excellent appearance won comments from visitors in the office.

YOUR IDEAL STORE.

Many florists have rebuilt their stores or erected new ones this summer. They have embodied the latest features of construction and equipment, varied as the needs of each separate locality required. In recent issues of The Review have appeared brief descriptions of some of these new establishments, with illustrations for interested brother florists to study. Outstanding improvements in store arrangement or equipment have been noted in these descriptions. More detail seems, however, to be wanted. Here is a letter just received from a reader:

Next year, during the dull months, we are going to rebuild our store. Our space is limited to a 16-foot front with a depth of 100 feet. We want to utilize every bit of space to its utmost. We do not know just what flooring to put in the store. We know that we do not want wood; also that cement is unsatisfactory. Probably some florist has recently rebuilt and made a nice job out of it. If at all possible, we should like to have ideas from other florists as to the floor, workroom, etc.

You who have built new stores, tell us what changes from the old were made. What advice would you give this fellow florist, planning to rebuild? And you who are in an older store and visualize a newer and better one at a future date, what are your ideas for improvement? In short, what is your ideal store? The Editor of The Review would like to receive expressions on this subject from readers, who show themselves always willing to help an inquirer.

THANKSGIVING.

At no preceding Thanksgiving time have florists throughout the country made such effort to get business as they did this year. In this they followed the admonition of The Review, in its Autumn Number, that sales would be in proportion to the exertion made to obtain them. The varying reports as to the holiday's business indicate that this was the case. Retailers who advertised heavily and used all available means to bring in customers speak best of the sales for the occasion. Others, who did less, give accounts of the business in less favorable terms.

Comparison with last year's figures is not well made in view of existing conditions. The florist who sold as much, in dollars, as he did at the holiday in 1920, did well. Probably his profit was as large. Such a result would occasion much congratulation by business men in other lines, who find themselves away behind their previous years' figures. It should satisfy, at least, the florist.

Those florists whose total sales for Thanksgiving ran ahead of last year are fortunate. The number of them, too, is not small. The fact is evidence that the flower business is growing. There are plenty of customers to be had if we can get them into our stores.

FAIR PRICES.

When the present business readjustment began The Review urged florists to study their costs and to familiarize themselves with their business expenditures so that, when it became necessary, they could reduce prices and still operate at a profit. It should be apparent to everyone that it is preferable, in this trade, to lower our prices voluntarily and maintain sales rather than to have prices forced down because the public will not buy. Such a course is more necessary in this trade than in most others. If the public will not buy we cannot leave our goods on the shelves till such time as necessity forces customers into the store. Our merchandise goes to the ash can quickly, if it is not sold, and is a total loss to some one.

Florists do not wish to court a "buyers' strike." Clothing merchants have learned to their sorrow what that phrase means. Unwilling to take inventory losses on what was on their shelves, they consequently were forced not only ultimately to take such a loss, but also to forego much business ere the public could be enticed back into their stores.

The prices of flowers at wholesale are considerably lower than they were a year ago. It is complained in some cases that retail prices have not been reduced to correspond. To allow such complaint to become widespread would be to court danger. The public is not so indulgent in the matter of prices as it formerly was. Flower buyers are disposed to examine price tags more closely than before and will resent it if they feel they are overcharged. Florists have the opportunity to benefit by what has taken place in other lines of business. We should by this time have learned that it is better to reduce our prices voluntarily, allowing a reasonable margin of profit, rather than to have them forced to an unprofitable level by lack of demand. The florist who has a proper knowledge of what it costs him to do business is now in position to sell flowers at prices fair both to himself and to the public.

WHAT HAVE YOU?

The results from advertising do not depend entirely on the circulation of the advertising medium, although this is one of the most important factors. A portion of the results depends on the demand existing for the article advertised. Of course, with a universally read trade paper, like The Review, there are among the readers some who seek almost every variety of stock, and when it happens that the stock offered is in general demand, this is what happens:

Kindly omit our geranium advertisement as soon as possible. An avalanche of orders has struck us. Telegrams called for several thousands before we had received our Review, and then came the special delivery and registered letters. They did the rest.—Angel Greenhouses, Oklahoma City, Okla., November 21, 1921.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

OBITUARY

Henry Albert Schroyer.

Stricken with a sudden attack of paralysis while in his place of business several months ago, Henry A. Schroyer, prominent in the trade of Lancaster, Pa., never fully recovered and Tuesday, November 22, he passed away in the Lancaster general hospital. Last spring Mr. Schroyer had suffered a severe illness while at Hot Springs, Va.

Although the deceased was born at Harrisburg, Pa., January 29, 1850, he spent most of his boyhood days at Lancaster, where he attended St. James parish school and the public high school. At 17 years of age he began his career in the trade with his father in the latter's establishment on the Harrisburg turnpike. In 1883 they opened a store on North Queen street, later moving to the present location, 146 North Duke street.

Mr. Schroyer was prominent in municipal affairs. He was a staunch Republican and in 1878 he was elected a member of the common council from the Ninth ward, at that time strongly Democratic. A member of the Young Republicans, he served many times as this organization's chief marshal in campaigns. He was twice a delegate to the Republican state convention.

In 1888 Mr. Schroyer was elected a member of the school board. In 1900 he was elected its treasurer and school tax collector, a position he held to the time of his death. He was an active member, taking great interest in the work.

Mr. Schroyer was past grand officer of Herschel lodge of Odd Fellows, a member of Lancaster lodge of Elks, the Hamilton Club, Young Republicans and the Masonic fraternity, in which he rose to the thirty-second degree, holding membership in Lamberton lodge No. 476, F. & A. M., of which he was worshipful master, in 1903; Chapter 43, Goodwin Council, Lancaster Lodge of Perfection, fourteenth degree, of which he was past-officer; Council of the Princess of Jerusalem, sixteenth degree; Rose Croix Chapter and Harrisburg Consistory, thirty-second degree; Lancaster Forest No. 27, Tall Cedars of Lebanon, and the Lancaster County Florists' Association. He was a member of St. John's Lutheran church.

His widow survives. Before marriage she was Miss Anna V. Myers, of Chambersburg, Pa. The funeral services were held in the home on Harrisburg avenue, Friday afternoon, November 25, at 2 p. m.

James McCaffrey.

James McCaffrey, one of the oldest gardeners in Rhode Island and one of the oldest men in New York state—he was about 100 years old—died at his home, 95 Chatham street, Providence, R. I., Friday morning, November 25, following an illness of short duration. He was born in Ireland, but came to America with his parents when a small boy. He had lived in Providence practically all his life. He learned the gardeners' business at an early age and, until a few years ago, was actively engaged. During his lifetime he was employed as gardener on several of the largest private estates in Providence and vicinity. He is survived by four sons, one of whom, Edward J. McCaffrey, is a police commissioner of Providence. W. H. M.

Mrs. Anna M. Jacobs.

Tuesday, November 22, Mrs. Anna M. Jacobs, wife of the late Balthasar Jacobs, passed away at her home in Canton, Ill. More than fifty years ago she and her husband established themselves as florists at Canton. Mrs. Jacobs was in active management of the business as administratrix until 1912, when her eldest son, George W. Jacobs, took over the business, and Mrs. Jacobs enjoyed a well earned rest.

At her death Mrs. Jacobs was 69 years of age. Five sons survive her. Of these John E. Jacobs and George W. Jacobs are in the florists' business. Funeral services were held November 27.

Anton Miller.

Anton Miller, father of Paul C. Miller, of the California Floral Co., Los Angeles, Cal., died November 20, at his home in Los Angeles, at the age of 76. The aged gentleman had suffered a long and painful illness and his death was not unexpected. The sympathy of everyone in the trade goes out to Mr. Miller, who is one of the best known and respected men in the wholesale business here. Another bereavement in the family occurred almost at the same time, his brother-in-law dying suddenly.

ROWE'S RAMBLES.

"Forty-five Minutes from Broadway."

Mighty few towns can boast of so modern a florist's establishment as the traveler found in New Rochelle, about "Forty-five Minutes from Broadway," in George M. Cohan's words. This florist's shop is operated by Bassi Freres, who have recently moved into a splendid new building on the principal business street. On entering, one of the first things that catch the eye is the conservatory at the rear of the store, with playing fountain, palms and blooming plants. The place looks more like a private place than a commercial house, yet the business-getting side has not been overlooked. In midsummer the firm staged a sweet pea show; September brought an aster exhibit, and in October dahlias were the chief feature. Dainty folders announcing these various shows were mailed, and notices appeared in the local press. Charles Bassi said that the results were greater than he expected, and that visitors thronged the store during the shows. Many direct telegraph orders were secured, in addition to local sales of seeds and bulbs for future delivery.

Charles Bassi and Louis Bassi are in charge of the flower and landscape departments, while Austin Bassi is chief of the seed store, which occupies an adjoining building.

Among Water Lilies.

At the establishment of William Tricker, water lily specialist, at Arlington, N. J., three houses are given to the propagation of lilies in the hardy and tender classes and to aquarium plants. A few special varieties of perennials adapted to water gardens are also grown here. This business, which was established a little more than ten years ago, has now come to be the largest establishment of the kind in America. Charles Tricker, manager, says that in spite of the sentiment against luxuries during the war days, the business showed a steady growth in orders and total amount of sales, and the last two seasons have been record-breakers. "I believe that my advertising," said Mr. Tricker, "coupled with good products and prompt service, kept my business going during the last few years. The outlook for 1922 is bright and I expect the same rate of increase that I have enjoyed in former seasons."

TO MEET AT SAGINAW.

The monthly meeting of the Saginaw-Bay City Floricultural Society will be held at the east side store of the William Roethke Floral Co., Saginaw, Mich., Monday evening, December 5. The special feature of the evening will be the showing of roses. Among the features at the meeting will be one vase of twelve roses, two varieties; a prize for fifty Angelus rose plants, offered by F. B. Ward, Bay City, Mich., and cash prizes of $8, $5 and $3, respectively, offered by the members of the society for one vase of twenty-five roses, no less than three varieties. The ladies and employees are especially invited to inspect the show.

The Market.

A tremendous quantity of stock was moved for Thanksgiving, but the supply was so greatly ahead of the demand that some of the wholesalers are said to have notified their consignors, Wednesday, November 23, to hold back further shipments until called for. It was not possible at any time to clean the market and prices averaged considerably lower than last year, or any year since 1917. That some of the wholesale houses are able to report sales approximating those of last year shows how the trade is growing, as, with few exceptions, customers bought less than last season.

There is some variation in reports of the Thanksgiving business, due, principally, to the stage of certain growers' crops. In a general way it seems that there would have been none too many roses and carnations had there not been so many chrysanthemums and pompons. Rose crops were not heavy, but it was impossible to get high prices for roses while chrysanthemums were to be had so cheaply. The average prices of mums and pompons probably were twenty to twenty-five per cent below those of last year. They held everything else down.

In view of the lower prices and the general report that orders were not of large size, it is apparent that the number of buyers must have been large. It was. Many of the wholesale houses wrote more tickets than for any previous Thanksgiving. It goes to show that the advance assurance of moderate prices would enable the retailers to work up a big business among people who are glad to have flowers for the Thanksgiving table, but who do not care to go to large expense for them.

There has been no shortage of stock since Thanksgiving. A few growers are pretty nearly finished with their large chrysanthemums, but others have given increased space to the late varieties, with the result that the market still is well supplied. Of pompons there seems to be no end, though it may come suddenly. Usually about this date the market undergoes a sharp change, the passing of the chrysanthemum season being signalized by a quick increase in the demand and by a corresponding firming up of prices. Growers and wholesalers are watching for signs of such a change, but as yet there has been nothing to indicate approach of a tight market. The weather has been unusually warm for late November and may be a factor in keeping the stores well supplied with stock.

the Allied Florists' Association. This year, however, they figured they would be able to take care of all the trade they, individually, could get, with the result that there was quite a showing of flower ads November 23 in Chicago's most widely read morning paper, as follows:

A. Lange and Henry Wittbold & Son did their advertising one day earlier, Tuesday, the former using 250 lines and the latter 285 lines.

A total of 2120 lines of display flower advertising must have helped some. That many lines would have equaled almost four pages of The Review.

Thanksgiving at Retail.

The Thanksgiving retail demand for cut flowers was, on the whole, not so good as expected and was somewhat of a disappointment to many florists. The demand was chiefly for mums. Roses and violets did not move well and the demand for corsage bouquets was negligible as compared with that of previous years. In some instances basket plants sold well, but there was only a small demand for carnations. Boxes of flowers and table decorations were in good demand.

For the day following Thanksgiving the clerks at the store of A. Lange, 77 and 79 East Madison street, were exceedingly busy. Mr. Lange is well satisfied with the Thanksgiving trade and reports a marked increase in sales over last year, the demand at this store being chiefly for mums and roses. A good demand for basket plants, such as the Cleveland cherry, was experienced here also.

John Mangel, the Palmer House Florist, says the demand for Thanksgiving chrysanthemums was small compared with that of previous years. He experienced the same difficulty in moving roses and corsage bouquets.

The Alpha Floral Co., Wabash avenue and Adams street, reports a good Thanksgiving demand for mums and roses. The demand did not reach the expectations of this firm, however. The amount of money available for flower buying this year is not equal to that of previous years, said a member of the firm.

Various Notes.

It is said numerous growers have resorted to peddling chrysanthemums from store to store among the retailers.

F. M. Johnson and Fred Tredup are in New York in the interests of the A. L. Randall Co. They spent November 25 in Cleveland, en route. Edward Goldman returned last week from a visit to Buffalo, Pittsburgh and Philadelphia. He says he found business had revived in that territory and seemed to him better than it does in the middle west.

J. C. Nielsen and wife were at Decatur, Mich., November 28, to attend the funeral of a relative who was killed by a tractor.

Over the cashier's window of the E. C. Amling Co. recently has appeared this sign: "Short credits make long friends."

Saturday, December 3, Gottlieb Schott, superintendent of the Batavia Greenhouse Co., Batavia, Ill., will celebrate his fiftieth birthday.

Roses in the greenhouses of the Premier Rose Gardens and the Weiss-Meyer Co., Maywood, are in splendid condition and Paul Weiss anticipates a banner crop for Christmas.

The Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co. has completed the erection of a modern and attractive show house on the roof of the Somerset hotel, at Sheridan road and Argyle street. The house will be used for growing decorative plants for the dining room, lobby, etc. The house is equipped with a Foley vacuum heating system and may be seen from the north on Sheridan road.

Joseph P. Brooks, the well known Morton Grove carnation grower, has used fuel oil successfully last season and this. He has a tank of 12,000 gallons' capacity, but last season used only 10,000 gallons, affording an ample margin if the season is started with a full tank. Last season the fuel cost $11.75 per 100 gallons, this year only $4.32. He has had no trouble getting all the heat he wanted. The system works with a pump and blower. Growers are invited to drop in and have a look.

C. L. Washburn says that, in so far as prices go, the market is back to 1917, the year of war, before the flu. In the interval the trade has of course expanded greatly and there are today many more flower buyers than four years ago. In Mr. Washburn's view, this will be a season of small profits for growers, the cost of operation having been reduced only slightly and most of the items being incurred, or contracted, before anyone could tell what the business would be like. Now that flowers are wholesaling at, say, thirty per cent less than last year, Mr. Washburn thinks retailers should sell cheaper and thus put flowers within the reach of an increased number of people. He believes that holding prices up will breed increased outside competition for the retailers.

From A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., George Asmus received a large box of new late pompon chrysanthemums with the request that he let the trade have an opportunity to see them after the C. S. A. committee had a look. Mr. Asmus staged them in the store of Joseph Foerster Co., where they attracted much attention. Most of the varieties still are under number.

Fred Price, of Peter Reinberg, Inc., has been interviewing growers as to the prospects for winter crops and finds that quite a few are planning to be on crop in January. Mr. Price says these growers have been on in November and probably will not have large crops for Christmas. The same report has come from other sources.

W. A. Hansen is devoting three weeks to swinging around the circle for the Joseph Foerster Co. He was at the Twin Cities November 29.

N. J. Wietor states that Thanksgiving prices were something of a disappointment, but that the sales for the week nevertheless exceeded any previous Thanksgiving in the history of Wietor Bros., they never before having had so large a cut at this date.

H. Munson, widely known among the growers as the supplier of boiler tubes for hot water systems, is preparing to sail early in December for a long visit at his old home in Sweden. Mrs. Munson died early this year and recently he has incorporated his business and turned the active management over to other hands, so that the date of his return is problematical.

Alois Frey leaves December 2, to return to his home at San Fernando, Cal. After spending three weeks most pleasantly here, he confesses to a desire for the fertile valley in the mountains.

William Feniger, of Detroit, Toledo and Akron, has been here, looking over the market and in conference with his partner, Sam Bloom. The Feniger-Bloom interests include a wholesale house in Detroit and three retail stores in other places. They take a great deal of stock off the Chicago market.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Thanksgiving business was a keen disappointment in every direction, with the grower, wholesaler and retailer. The volume of business done was the smallest in years during this festival period. The market was vastly oversupplied, the list of arrivals being materially swelled by the dumping in of the surpluses of other markets. It was a queer condition, but one which New York is occasionally called upon to suffer. It seemed to be "in the bone" that the holiday business was going to be bad, and suburban retailers who grow for their own requirements got "cold feet" and shipped liberal surpluses into the metropolitan market. And this extra supply, supplementing a visible oversupply from legitimate sources, sent the market down to a point from which recovery was not possible. It cannot be said that conditions accelerated the demand from the storekeepers. They certainly did not. The Greek fraternity, whose buying is every day more extensive than that of the florists along the avenues, started buying for Thanksgiving on the previous Monday, and when the bulk of stock arrived Wednesday morning and the supplemental shipments later in the day, they were entirely out of the market. They followed the policy of the early bird, and they believe it was to their advantage. Chrysanthemums suffered most, being in excessive quantity. Carnations came next, whole shipments going into the iceboxes Wednesday night. Roses made a brave showing, but clearances were impossible with the Thanksgiving chrysanthemum dominating the buying. Much chrysanthemum stock was of the pickled variety, and the growers have learned one more lesson—which will be forgotten, as usual, before the next season comes around. All this held-over stock would have been moved at the beginning of the week at fair prices, instead of going to the ash barrel, which was the fate of most of it.

With Thanksgiving out of the way, the market continues dull and uninteresting. Much more stock is available that can be absorbed. Chrysanthemums still dominating the situation, improvement appears to be hopeless until the autumn flowers are out of the way.

Roses are plentiful and good, even under present weather conditions, which are not of the best. American Beauty is in good supply and special grades keep up to the $75 mark for top quality. Hybrid teas meet only a moderate demand, with short grades finding a better sale than the long-stemmed flowers.

time. Cypridiums, however, are in somewhat oversupply, and prices suffer in consequence.

The supply of white lilies is rather greater than for the last few weeks, and the top price has declined to $25. A few rubrums are coming in, and move fairly well at $8 to $10 per hundred flowers. Lily of the valley is in oversupply.

The supply of violets is more than ample for the demand, although the quality shows considerable improvement. The best bring about 75 cents per hundred, but the range to the minimum is long. Sweet peas are more plentiful, in spite of dark, rainy weather.

Herbaceous stock is fairly plentiful, and includes calendulas, wallflowers, delphiniums, daisies, mignonette, myosotis, cornflowers and bouvardia. Bulbous stock, so far, is confined to Paper White narcissi, which brings as much as 60 cents per bunch.

Business.

Business has been fair during the last week. There is a considerable amount of design work being done and it is hoped that the publicity work of the Toronto Retail Florists' Club will yield good results. If ever there was need of advertising it is at the present time. Some of the other trades realize this and are advertising on a large scale. With such a slogan as "Say It with Flowers," the florists have a great advantage over all other trades, if the trade will take advantage of it.

Club Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Association Monday, November 21, was the largest in the history of that organization. The hall was crowded. If the attendance keeps up during the coming winter, it will be necessary to move to larger quarters.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Market.

Thanksgiving saw more flowers sold than last year. The prices were lower, so much lower that the total value of the flowers sold was less than the total value of the sales of a year ago. Considering the heavy yield of chrysanthemums, and especially of pompons, and considering general business conditions, this is satisfactory.

Chrysanthemums were the leading flowers at Thanksgiving. They were used in great numbers. The large flowers of select varieties, when well grown, brought $25 a hundred, with occasional sales at $4 or even $5 a dozen. This class comprised only the finest flowers. Bonnaffon did not reach this class and did not hold its own in competition with other leading varieties. Good Bonnaffon brought $15 and occasionally $20 a hundred, while the lower grades sold from $8 to $12 per hundred. There were many inferior chrysanthemums that sold, but not readily.

Pompons were exceptionally good value at from $25 to $35 per hundred bunches. A few brought $50 and some brought $10. They were in immense lots, showed a good range of colors and were popular. Mrs. Godfrey and some of her sports in other colors, when well grown, led the singles in popularity. They are usually classed as pompons in market reports. There was some demand for single violets, but the doubles found it dull.

Carnations advanced in price and seemed likely to be in demand early in the week, but later they fell back.

Single pink bouvardia, mignonette, Paper Whites and stevia have been added to the assortment.

Easter lilies and callas are in light supply. Roses, plentiful early in the week, became less so at the close. A wet Thanksgiving day and a wet Saturday were disappointing.

Mr. Hill Is Coming.

Keen interest was manifest in club circles last week when it became known that a wire had arrived from E. Gurney Hill, of Richmond, Ind., accepting an invitation to speak before the Florists' Club Tuesday evening, December 6, at the Adelphia. Mr. Hill will bring with him three wonderful new roses: America, described as the faultless rose; Angelus, the promising white, and Amelia Gude, a highly praised yellow.

A dinner will be given in Mr. Hill's honor at the Adelphia at 6 o'clock Tuesday evening, December 6. The hosts will be our rose growers and all who love the rose. The guest will be E. Gurney Hill, of Richmond, Ind.

The Daisy or the Poppy.

At its meeting in Kansas City the American Legion changed its official flower from the poppy to the American daisy. The events of the last year make this action of decided interest.

Discussing the change, Sydney H. Bayersdorfer said he thought it was a disadvantage to florists and that we should have to arouse public sentiment against it and in favor of a return to the poppy. Aside from the question of personal business, which was, of course,

BEAUTIES

The supply is not as large as other years, but the quality is better than we have had for several years. No shorts, only the three top grades.

WHITE LILAC

Until the end of the season we will have an ample supply of Lilac. This is the only dependable supply in this market.

CYPRIPEDIUMS

During the next three weeks we will have almost any quantity. It is a novelty, and the better stores can handle them to good advantage.

There is a much larger variety of flowers on the market now.

CALENDULAS, yellow and orange shades.

YELLOW DAISIES, they are much better now.

STEVIA, in almost any quantity.

SNAPDRAGON, very fine stock.

VIOLETS, both single and double.

NARCISSI and BOUVARDIA.

ORCHIDS will be more plentiful soon.

BOXWOOD

If you have not as yet placed your order, arrange for your supply immediately. You can depend on us for the best Boxwood on the market. Get our price before placing your order.

in favor of the poppy, Mr. Bayersdorfer said that the daisy was so common a flower that it was used for tags, while the poppy had distinction. It symbolized heroism on the battle fields of France; it was striking in appearance and it has never been used for any other purpose.

The Florex Gardens.

When that immense range of glass known as the Florex Gardens was first established at North Wales, consternation reigned in the floral world. A living and a little more would no longer be possible; the small grower would be driven to the wall; this vast aggregation of capital would destroy competition, and so on. The floral world went to North Wales, gazed and wondered.

thing of no account. The floral world then pitched in and worked, though with less and less alarm about their great rival at North Wales. But they always felt the deepest interest in all that transpired there.

Those who have attended the shows and club meetings, those who have visited North Wales within the twelve-month, know that the Florex Gardens are now getting wonderful results from their remarkable equipment. The place has passed through its transient or experimental stage and is now getting results. The Florex Gardens are in finer shape today than they have ever been. Of the five radical departures from the beaten track for which the Florex Gardens gained note, one only survives—the big house, and that in a modified form. It must not be too big or too flat. The other four have gone. Overhead heating to melt the snow on the glass won't do; the pipes are near the ground now. Every plant a front plant is not an advantage; it makes too many walks. Glass, 16x24, put in the wide way, loosens too easily; glazing the 16-inch way is better. Marine boilers, though powerful, waste too much heat; they have been replaced by return tubular boilers.

That the Florex Gardens should have tried all these on a vast scale, should have modified or changed them altogether to suit their needs is a matter of deep interest to the entire floral world; that they have now a thoroughly modern

In Council.

The regular meeting of the executive council of the Pennsylvania Horticultural Society was held in the society's office, at 606 Finance building, Monday, November 21. Two officials were elected to serve for the coming year: Treasurer, Sydney W. Keller; secretary, David Rust. Mr. Rust will commence his twenty-seventh year as secretary January 1, 1922. During the coming year the society will hold two spring flower shows, a peony and rose show, a sweet pea show and a dahlia show, all in the suburbs, and a fall show in the city.

Various Notes.

Recent visitors include Harry O. May and John N. May, Jr., Summit, N. J.; Henry Hart, New York; George Carson Boyd, Wilmington, Del., and James Brown, Jr., Coatesville, Pa.

Frederick Berger has purchased five greenhouses, 20x100 feet each, from Robert B. Cole. This is the Jacob Becker range at Fifty-second and Ludlow streets. Mr. Berger, who is now taking the houses down, will rebuild them on his farm at Arlington, Pa. It is probable that he will use them for delphinium next spring.

W. Atlee Burpee and family have gone abroad.

Edmund Dornheim has been missed by his friends. He is ill at home.

M. J. Callahan says that the lower prices of flowers at Thanksgiving undoubtedly brought out more buyers. Pompons were popular. Mr. Callahan

Mrs. A. M. Lawson says that Mrs. Godfrey was her best chrysanthemum at Thanksgiving.

Max H. Rothe has a fine lot of tall poinsettias.

It is rumored that more growers plan selling their own product.

William C. Lynch feels that the Philadelphia Growers' Cut Flower Market has made a good start in its first two months of business.

Good judges say that values in chrysanthemums are from one-third to one-half lower than they were a year ago.

Leo Niessen says that we shall have chrysanthemums until Christmas.

Phil.

NEWARK, N. J.

The majority of the Newark florists had good Thanksgiving business and they are looking forward to an excellent Christmas trade. As far as Christmas stock, such as wreaths, cords, specialties and potted plants, is concerned, the florists here are fairly well stocked up. Most of the plants, however, will be put in within the next week or two. Prices were almost down to normal for the Thanksgiving trade this year, as compared with the prices of the last two or three years. The indications are that the Christmas prices will also be reasonable.

The Deisler Floral Co. is the trade name under which the florist's business at 31 Holland street will be known and conducted in the future. Mary Chalupa, 30 Holland street, is the proprietor.

Fred P. Wolfinger, 883 Broad street, reports an excellent Thanksgiving trade. General business at this store is also reported to be somewhat better than it has been in the past. R. B. M.

Albion, N. Y.—The post office address of W. E. Kirchhoff, the well known grower of gladioli, has been changed from Pembroke, N. Y., to Albion, N. Y.

Houston, Tex.—F. A. Dewson, of the Dewson Plant Nursery, has purchased the entire stock of the estate of the late H. J. Condron, Dickinson, Tex. Mr. Dewson will devote all his time to growing a larger quantity than was grown in the time of Mr. Condron.

Titusville, Pa.—L. J. Rowe put in new heating apparatus during the recent summer, the new equipment including two 125-horsepower boilers, and made numerous other improvements, so that he has his place in better shape than ever before. He is counting on a good season.

Fort Worth, Tex.—Gordon Boswell has joined the F. T. D. He has kept a record of the telegraph delivery orders at his store, 702 Main street, and has found a considerable disproportion between the orders coming in and the ones he has sent out. Of fifty orders sent out he found that forty-nine ranged from $4 to $12 in value, while the fiftieth order was for $150.

Reno, Nev.—Donald Clayton has transformed the cottage in the rear of the grounds on which he grows outdoor flowers, at 723 Sierra street, into a quaint little flower shop, where chrysanthemums and other flowers are displayed. Directly in front of his cottage flower shop, Mr. Clayton has a small garden of shade trees and shrubbery, in which he will lay gravel walks and place a fountain. The garden will be surrounded by a low stone wall.

The Market.

Excellent weather conditions the day before Thanksgiving day toned up the business and the market considerably, with increased receipts. The demand was much larger than was expected by the wholesalers. Mums appeared in great quantities and there was a good demand, the only trouble being that there were too many whites. Had the mums been colored, the market would have cleaned up early. Bonnaffon, Chadwick, Chieftain and Seidewitz had the call over any other variety. Pompons of all colors were also in demand.

There were enough Columbia, Ophelia, Milady, Ward and Premier for all demands. Carnations had a much better demand than had been expected. There were plenty of them. Whites were the poorest sellers. Violets were in a better-than-expected demand. They were cleaned up at prices ranging from 75 cents to $1.25 per hundred.

Lilies and Paper Whites had little demand. Yellow marguerites and pink snapdragons sold well, as well as valley and orchids.

Potted plants did not do so well as cut stock, but some splendid cyclamens, begonias and mums were noted.

Since Thanksgiving time the market has been on an even balance, with an abundance of cut mums coming in daily. According to reports, there should be a good supply up to Christmas.

There was a good demand for greens all last week and a splendid demand. Asparagus, adiantum and smilax were cleaned up daily.

From reports from all parts of the city, the trade has nothing to complain of at this Thanksgiving.

Executive Committee Meets.

A meeting of the executive committee, which included all the chairmen of the various committees of the St. Louis Flower Show Association, was held at 2 p. m. November 25, at publicity headquarters. The object of the meeting was to start preliminary arrangements for a flower show on a large scale, to be held in November, 1922.

Chairman Bourdet called the meeting to order. Those present were J. F. Ammann, H. C. Irish, A. H. Hummert, H. G. Berning, D. S. Geddis, F. Windler, J. J. Windler, W. J. Pilcher, C. Beyer, W. C. Smith and J. J. Beneke. In the absence of Secretary W. W. Ohlweiler, J. J. Beneke acted as secretary.

After the roll call the auditing committee's report of the spring flower show of 1917 was heard. By motion the report was accepted and the election of new officers to be in charge of the next year's show followed. Those elected were: President, J. F. Ammann; vice-president, H. G. Berning; secretary, J. J. Beneke; treasurer, W. A. Rowe. The selection of a manager and twenty-two chairmen of subcommittees was deferred to the next meeting.

Next was discussed the recommendation to this club by the St. Louis Florists' Club that a flower show be held in the fall of 1922. After some discussion a motion prevailed that this association comply with the wishes of the Florists' Club and hold the show in the fall of 1922, during the same week of the meeting and exhibition of the Chrysanthemum Society of America. The secretary was instructed to communicate with Secretary C. W. Johnson as to the dates set by the society for its meeting. A discussion followed concerning a big general meeting of the local trade to discuss further advances for next year's show. It was decided to hold this meeting December 6 at 7 p. m., giving a dinner at the Planters' hotel. A committee, consisting of D. S. Geddis, A. H. Hummert and A. W. Smith, was appointed to arrange for this affair. The secretary was instructed to send out notices to all the trade concerning this meeting.

The latter committee, with the addition of Louis C. Hoerr, is to seek places in which to hold the show and to report recommendations at the next meeting.

H. C. Irish brought up for discussion the advisability of inviting the Missouri State Horticultural Society to hold its next meeting and fruit exhibition in connection with the big show and the sending of a delegation to Hannibal, Mo., during the Missouri state show, December 1 to 3. The matter was discussed at length, followed by a prevailing motion that J. F. Ammann, L. J. Bourdet and H. C. Irish be delegated to go to Hannibal, Mo., and invite the Missouri organization, as suggested.

After a general talk and the assurance

Various Notes.

The monthly meeting of the St. Louis Florists' Club will be held at the establishment of the Bourdet Floral Co., Thursday, December 8, at 2 p. m. The officers have arranged for an interesting program, as this is the last meeting in this year. Refreshments and a special brand of cigars have been arranged for by the trustees.

Secretary Deutschmann, of the County Growers' Association, says that the next meeting of the association, December 7, will be held at the Eleven Mile House at 8 p. m. There should be a large attendance, as the Thanksgiving business and the Christmas supply will come up for a general discussion.

Frank and Vincent Gorly say that they never had so much business in years past at Thanksgiving time as they have enjoyed this year. Enormous quantities of mums, violets and roses were sold, thanks to the big advertisements of the flower growers' publicity association. Mullanphy Florists, the Tubbesing-Ayres Floral Co., F. J. Foster, the Acme Floral Co., Riessen Floral Co., George Berner and T. Carr all say that this Thanksgiving day was the best in years.

The Faust coming-out party was one of the largest society events in years

The Tight Nut That Strips The Threads

You can tighten a nut just so tight, and it will stay tight.

If you tighten it any tighter, it gets looser.
It strips the threads.

You can cut your expenses down just so far and keep down expense.

If you cut them down further, you boost them up higher; you strip the thread.

Just for example—you can stop your advertising because business is poor.

Which will only make it still poorer.

Or when business is down, you can boost your advertising up and make it make more business for you.

Grandy of Norfolk, Virginia, says that's his way. Anderson of Lebanon, Tennessee, says that's why he gave away those boxes of cigarettes at the Toronto F. T. D. lunch.

It's why I have just signed up for a bigger contract than ever with the Falls Service.

It may be why our F. T. D. business is about twice what it was last year or any other year.

We didn't strip the thread.

All of which may or may not hold a hint.

and the floral and other decorations by Julius Schaeffer came close to the $5,000 mark. The next event of the kind will be the McBride coming-out party. Grimm & Gorly have the contract for all the decorations, which, they say, will reach $10,000.

The west end florists make just as favorable reports about Thanksgiving. J. Witek's new store was ablaze with fine quality stock in plants and cut mums. Fred C. Weber, Sander's, F. H. Weber and Julius Schaeffer made wonderful displays and passed last year's mark. Waldbart's, Newman Floral Co. and the Koenig Floral Co. experienced a fine Thanksgiving business.

From the north and south end came glorious reports about the day's business. Windler's Flowers, C. Bergstermann and Charles Beyer drew splendid business from the attractive window displays. The seven wholesale markets had a world of seasonable stock. They did an enormous business. The local trade says that as long as the whole-salers can supply the local wants, as they did this year, with a fine quality of stock there is little need to go to other markets.

Julius Dilloff, representing Wertheimer Bros., New York, spent Thanksgiving week here and found the trade

The Market.

The Thanksgiving trade brought plenty of stock to this market. Never before was it known that so much stock was to be had for Thanksgiving, especially in pompons. The business, in general, was good.

There seemed to be a shortage of choice mums. In fact, this has been the case all this year. Some varieties can still be had, including pink and white Helen Frick, Chadwick and Mistletoe in yellow and white. Roses are showing the effects of the cooler weather and are also slackening up, due to the fact that the growers are cutting back now in order to have a good supply for Christmas. Carnations move well. They are bringing from $3 to $5 per hundred. Some new callas were seen on the market last week and were picked up quickly because of their popularity in funeral work. Miscellaneous flowers, including valley, violets, peas and calendulas, are to be had at a reasonable figure and move well. Greens, as usual, find a good market.

Various Notes.

Julius Baer deserves special mention for his elaborate Thanksgiving window display. He reports a good holiday business.

Gustav Mickley is in the hospital suffering from an attack of acute indigestion, which he received at his home November 26, but he is getting along well.

H. W. Sheppard's window displays have lately been exceedingly artistic in basket arrangements of strawflowers and other prepared formations. Mr. Sheppard says Thanksgiving with him was good.

E. G. Hill has been in town for over a week with Mrs. Hill, whose eye was injured and was operated upon at Dr. Stattler's hospital. Her condition is improved.

The William Murphy Co. received the first bronze leucothoe last week and the sales were many on it. This concern has had good shipments of large mums from William Taylor, of Price Hill, and good single violets from L. F. Murphy, also of Price Hill.

The Market.

With nothing to indicate in advance how business would be, Thanksgiving turned out well. Stocks were cleaned up. Between 60,000 and 75,000 mums were moved in this market, November 23 and 24. The crop was larger than usual this year and stock was cleaner and better. Prices were not advanced, but the market was firm. No advance was possible with the quantity of stock on hand. Local retail business was good.
Sales were not big, but the volume was satisfactory. Wednesday, November 23, was an extremely busy day. Entertaining was on a much smaller scale than a year ago. Hotels and restaurants advertised extensively and specialized on family parties. Many churches, clubs and other organizations served dinner, and theaters and movies drew crowds afterward. No decorating was done by the hotels or cafes, save in rare instances. The Thanksgiving clean-up disposed of everything on hand that day. Big crops have been cut each day since and the growers will keep on cutting for a week or two.

What About Thanksgiving?

Thanksgiving as a flower day is going backward instead of forward. The volume of business is increasing each year in keeping with the rest of the month, but compared with Christmas, Easter and Decoration day, Thanksgiving is not keeping up its stride. The cause, perhaps, is a falling off in the old spirit of hospitality and the home gatherings of former years. Many families seek to avoid the trouble of a big dinner for themselves and could not think of asking in a friend or two. If a return of the real holiday spirit could be aroused and Thanksgiving be made the great home day that it was some years back, it might swing into the column of big flower days. At least, there is a chance for propaganda by the florists.

Various Notes.

The Midland Flower Shop had a wedding decoration Thanksgiving day. Earlier in the week it made up 200 bouquets for an Eastern Star entertainment. Everett Bennett, of the W. L. Rock Flower Co., is ill. The employees sent him a large basket of fruit Saturday, November 26.

Samuel Murray had a good week. Thanksgiving business was highly satisfactory. Friday and Saturday, November 25 and 26, were busy days with funeral work. J. E. K.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

From reports from the majority of florists, it appears that Thanksgiving business was good and, on the whole, most satisfactory. Some of the stores reported sales in excess of last year, but in the majority of cases sales were considerably below. The weather was, in a measure, to blame for this condition, for Thanksgiving day was disagreeable, with a quantity of snow and rain which caused lots of slush, and most people remained indoors. Ordinarily, good, brisk business is done until the last hour. Stock was plentiful, with a big supply of chrysanthemums of all kinds to select from.

clean up quickly. A few yellow narcissi are seen. Violets sold fairly well last week, but they did not clean up as expected at the holiday. There are good supplies of roses reaching the market each day, but during mum season the demand is never heavy. Good snapdragon reaches us, but the supply is small. There is a fair crop of carnations just now. Orchids are selling well and the demand for cypripediums is good. There is a good supply of valley reaching the market, and the demand is good. Calendulas are arriving slowly and sell well.

There is a good demand for greens of all kinds, including boxwood, laurel and leucothoe. Christmas greens have already put in an appearance and are of excellent quality.

Various Notes.

The Rochester Rose Society met at the municipal museum at Exposition park, Friday evening, November 25. Aling S. De Forest, landscape architect, addressed the society on "Rose-Garden Designs." This talk was illustrated by lantern slides.

Horace J. Head, representing George B. Hart, returned to the city November 24, having made a business trip through New York state.

Fred Mossgraber, of W. Webster, N. Y., reports good business and cleared a great quantity of stock for Thanksgiving. His Christmas plants are coming along in fine shape and show a great quantity of buds.

Max Pawliczick, of Lyell avenue, had a wonderful business for Thanksgiving. The cut flower business was brisk, and also much funeral work cleared a large quantity of stock.

Saturday evening, November 26, as James McGregor was making a delivery on Tremont street, a taxi driver, who was driving wildly through the street with a wedding party, crashed into the front part of the delivery car and put it out of commission. It was fortunate that most of the deliveries for the day had been made.

Miss Kate Harvey, for a considerable length of time with Alberts' Flower Shop, has resigned her position.

Charles W. Curtis, of Summerville boulevard, has been cutting an enormous quantity of pompons, which he has disposed of principally among the flower stores. He has a large quantity of bulbous stock coming along, some of which will be in readiness for Christmas.

F. Schlegel's Sons report an excellent business for Thanksgiving trade. Large

H. J. H.

BALTIMORE, MD.

The Market.

Last week the demand was all that could be expected, but the supply of mums was unabated. It seemed impossible for the commission men to make any showing towards a clean up. As fast as a lot was disposed of there was a new consignment to take its place. This was the case in all varieties and qualities. Never has there been a larger crop seen on this market. They were being peddled on the streets and the different markets were full of indoor stock. Such a condition naturally forces prices down. It is a bad state of affairs to contend with, but it is the condition and had to be faced. It is simply the fact that there are more mums on the market than can be handled through legitimate channels.

The demand for roses is rapidly picking up. The supply is good and the quality could not be better. Carnations are in good shape as to quality and variety. The supply, however, has not reached its high mark. This is fortunate, for, with the market glutted with mums, they would not have a fair chance. Stevia and Paper Whites have made their appearance and there is a good supply of miscellaneous stock.

Florists' Publicity Association.

In these days we often hear it said that the flower industry is overorganized, that one organization overlaps the other. It is evident that there is a large number of them, national and local. We are not going to discuss their usefulness, but that of the committee appointed by the club at a recent meeting to work out a plan for the equitable collection of funds for publicity. This committee, having been given complete authority by the club to adopt a system and put it into operation, has decided that the percentage plan is the only fair and equitable way to handle the question. William F. Ekas is chairman of the committee and he has, as fellow members, a staff of young men who insure the success of this movement. The committee includes the following: Joseph S. Merritt, Claymore Sieck, Clarence W. Ritter, Robert L. Graham, Jr., Charles Feast, Robert W. Johnston, Charles Ulrich, Isaac H. Moss, H. Clay Primrose and William F. McKissick. These men have been working hard on this proposition and have their plans pretty well in shape.

The plan is to have a separate organization for this purpose. The object of this organization will be to increase the sale of flowers by educating the public up to their use. The committee recognizes the fact that the greatest agency to increase the sale of flowers is the F. T. D. Here is a field the surface of which has hardly been scratched, but nevertheless, in 1921 a market was found for $10,000,000 worth of the growers' product. While statistics are not available indicating the work of the national publicity committee, it is certain that the most conservative men will agree that it has contributed as much to the flower industry as the F. T. D. Therefore, it is the intention of these young men to form a cast-iron organization to cooperate with these two mediums.

It is a well known fact that Maryland, like some other states, has fallen far short of contributing her just share to national publicity. The growers realize, since the club invited and secured the F. T. D. meeting for Baltimore in 1922, just how much this organization means in the sale of more flowers and every man is ready to get in on this percentage plan.

Now let us look at it from an equitable standpoint. The man who is doing $1,000 worth of business a year is giving proportionately as much as the man who does $50,000 worth. Nothing could be fairer than this. The object is to have everyone connected with the trade paying his just share. Study this over and see if you can afford not to do this much for the industry in which you are engaged. It is said that the committee will be in a position to report, at the December meeting of the club, that this plan has been put into operation.

A Visitor.

K. Klyn, vice-president of the United Bulb Growers, Inc., Sassenheim, Holland, with American headquarters at 15 Williams street, New York, made a special trip to Baltimore to attend the club's banquet. He and our own John DeGroot, the traveling representative of this corporation, had the time of their lives renewing old acquaintances. Mr. Klyn is optimistic concerning the future of the bulb business and the part his corporation is going to play in it. Tate.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

The Market.

Stock last week was not plentiful, but there was enough to go around. Thanksgiving afforded ample sale for mums and the retailers were glad to find that there was no shortage. Large stock moved well and was cleaned up. The medium and small stock went as well. Turner, Rager, Golden Wedding and Dolly Dimple were good and the holiday used them up. Large white was a little scarce towards the last, because so many buyers waited until the last minute to order.

Large pink Siedewitz was exceptionally good and moved fast. Pompons were in ample supply, but were cleaned up at all times. Godfrey, Diana, Western Beauty and Soleil d'Or were seen mostly and were in fine condition. Mistletoe is coming in now only in limited quantities, but it is promising.

Roses were in ample supply, but, as can be expected, mums spoiled their sale. However, they were good and few went to waste. Carnations were in ample supply, but found little sale around the holiday. The supply of other flowers was plentiful, but the flowers were hard to move and some went to waste.

Various Notes.

Thanksgiving business this year was just a little less than last. Some retailers, however, report that they came out about even, but few registered an increase.

Burglars entered the residence of M. R. Reimers. Luckily, little was missing the next morning. A revolver and some money were all that was taken.

Rain the last week has hindered business to a great extent. This was keenly felt when Thanksgiving morning opened with the hardest rain of the season. As the football game affords the biggest sale of mums on that day, the retailers were a bit discouraged in the morning, but by noon it turned considerably cooler and the rain ceased. E. G. R.

The exhibits were staged in the greenhouses and propagating rooms of the Plant Laboratory building. Student members of the Horticultural Club were responsible for the selection of the specimens placed on exhibit.

In addition to the large number of chrysanthemums growing in benches and pots, an exhibit of cut flowers was provided for and vases of named varieties of chrysanthemums, roses and carnations were shown. A special feature, which brought forth much favorable comment, consisted of a display of artistic vase and basket arrangements of all kinds of seasonable cut flowers, chiefly chrysanthemums. J. F. Wilcox & Sons, of Council Bluffs, exhibited commercial varieties of roses. The Stuppy Floral Co., of St. Joseph, Mo., sent in a vase of a new, unnamed sport of Ophelia, which attracted considerable attention.

The vegetable exhibit included many standard crops grown in the student garden, as well as specimens of rather unusual vegetables, such as Japanese squash, collards and chufas.

A number of standard varieties of potatoes selected from prize-winning lots recently shown at the international potato show, at Duluth, Minn., were furnished by C. L. Fitch, the vegetable extension specialist, at the college. The best potato at the international potato show, a specimen of Russet Burbank, was included in this collection.

The number of varieties of apples exhibited on plates and in boxes as the main feature of the fruit display was rather remarkable, considering the scarcity of tree fruits, due to the late spring freeze throughout the middle west.

DENVER, COLO.

The Market.

Thanksgiving came in time to give everyone a much needed cheering up, for business this fall has been slow enough to be hard on even the most optimistic.
The timely demand created by the holiday cleared the market splendidly.
Chrysanthemums are now cleaned up.
With their going a healthy demand for miscellaneous stock, such as sweet peas, Paper Whites, callas, snapdragons, etc., may be expected.

Carnations sold well last week. Prices took a temporary jump from $6 to $8 per hundred. Roses were scarce, but there was practically no change in prices. Cyclamens sell well and any quantity of high quality stock can be had. There are plenty of fine begonias.
Shippers report a big Thanksgiving trade.

Various Notes.

The Castle Floral Co. is the name on the new store opened at 1112 Fifteenth street the day before Thanksgiving day.
This is in the Central Savings Bank building. Under the proprietorship of Mr. Castle, the company will handle a general line of cut flowers and pot plants.

Kash, Harold Stewart, Harry Harlow and Charles Meyers drove to Colorado Springs Saturday, November 19. Part of the entertainment was a bowling match, in which Colorado Springs won two out of three games. Denver had turn match will be played here Saturday, December 3.The Elitch team is steadily improving its averages. R. E. H.

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH.

The Market.

As usual, mums held first place for Thanksgiving. The quality of the stock was good in most cases and the fact that prices were considerably lower than last year helped to move all available. Pom-pons were popular and the supply of these cleaned up early. Many more could have been moved, had it been possible to get them. Roses were in good supply and sold fairly well at prices ranging from $8 to $20 per hundred, wholesale. Hoosier Beauty, Dunlop, Columbia and Pilgrim received the preference and, as long as these varieties were available, other varieties had little call.

Carnations were scarce at 4 to 8 cents. What few Laddie carnations there were found ready buyers. The price on these was $10 per hundred.

A good number of pot plants were sold at moderate prices, but the call for these was not so good as last year. Cyclamens, mums, pompons, ferns, Asparagus

The Market.

Chrysanthemums, roses and carnations are in the market in large quantities. These are of good quality. Prevailing prices are low for the growers, who are harder hit and offered less than the Boston growers. Copious rains have fallen, bringing joy to the growers in general throughout southern Massachusetts.

Various Notes.

Frank Sokol, who supplies the trade with potted plants and flowers, reports good business.

Herman J. Snyder is sending in violets of excellent quality.

William J. Wood, the Lovell street florist, keeps up a steady trade in the Columbus park district.

William C. Morey and D. C. Murdoch, both of Shrewsbury, are quite busy. Their specialties are sweet peas and carnations.

The Market.

Thanksgiving business in general, as reported by the trade, was only fair. In some localities it was good, in others just fair, and in still others poor. Those of the trade located in the factory and shop districts were hardest hit, because so many of the people in these districts are unemployed. There was a surplus of stock on the market in almost every line, even some of the street men getting their share. Pompons seemed to be the best sellers, with mums and roses a close second. Carnations went slowly. The few days after Thanksgiving were exceptionally slow, with stock still piling up. Just now we are, or seem to be, passing through a period of plenty of flowers, but this cannot last long. A number of florists make the great mistake of overestimating the Thanksgiving day business, which, if they will think back, they will find cannot be compared with Christmas and other good holidays.

Roses are still rather scarce on the market, while mums and pompons continue to flood it. It was noticeable that when the wholesalers saw how business was going, they immediately started to flowers are being used. The Thanksgiving business was good. Mums are going at first-class prices. The company has succeeded in growing high-grade cyclamens, a task not easy in this climate. A sash house has been added here, 160 feet long, and is filled with young stock for later sales.

The Ellis Greenhouses have completed three new houses. Business here is reported as not suffering. The store, partitioned from one of the greenhouses, is an attractive addition by night and day. This will take the place of the downtown store. This company believes in advertising and pushing ahead.

Ionia, Mich.—D. L. Vincent has placed an order with the Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co., of Chicago, for one pipe-frame house, 21x135, and one lean-to, about 9x135.

Utica, N. Y.—Earl J. Seniff will in the future conduct the greenhouses at 12 Downer avenue. These were formerly managed by W. P. Pfeiffer. Mr. Seniff has been connected with the trade for nineteen years. He was formerly with Baker the Florist.

BOSTON.

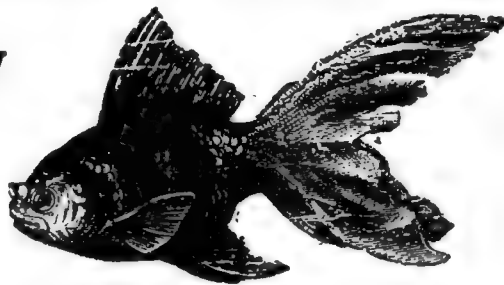

The Thanksgiving Market.

When general fundamental conditions are considered retailers and wholesalers have every cause to be well satisfied with Thanksgiving trade. Prices are lower all around than a year ago, at least twenty-five per cent less. Flowers were more abundant and a larger proportion than usual was of inferior quality. Retailers in one or two cases stated that their business equaled that of 1920, but the large stores all admitted a decrease of from five to twenty-five per cent; they, no doubt, sold more flowers, but receipts were less.

Roses sold well and cleaned up at satisfactory prices. The biggest prices were made on Hadley and Crusader, but Columbia, Pilgrim, Ophelia and other favorites sold well. Carnations were abundant and the quality quite good. The general average was about $4 per hundred, with such flowers as Laddie, Maine Sunshine, Rosalia and Ward selling higher. Violets sold well and went as high as $3. A good many Rhinebeck doubles were bought to help out the shortage.

Enormous numbers of chrysanthemums came in. The number of fancy blooms was meager. Bonnaffon led all others combined in numbers and popularity, but few went higher than $4 per dozen. Such varieties as Seidewitz, White Bonnaffon, Chieftain, Enguehard, Intensity and Chadwick formed the bulk of the balance. Bunch mums are seen in tremendous numbers; whereas a year ago these brought 75 cents and $1 a bunch, a great many went on this occasion at three bunches for $1, but a great many of the pompons and singles coming in were of poor quality and not creditable to the growers. There are no lilies, but the few callas sold well. Bachelor's buttons made $1.50 and $2 per hundred and marguerites, similar prices. Small lots of short-stemmed snapdragons are now available. Cat-tleas were scarce and dear, valley in good supply and bouvardia about equal to the demand. There was a great demand for pot plants. Cyclamens sold the best, followed by mums, Begonia Melior and Cleveland cherries.

Since Thanksgiving, arrivals of flowers are greatly reduced and there is no great surplus. Both roses and carnations are holding well up to Thanksgiving prices. Violets also are firm.

Chrysanthemums are still the leading factor, but are gradually passing. Among pompons, such bronzes as Mrs. Wilcox sell well. Bright colors are in far better demand than white or yellow. A few stevias and Paper Whites are coming in. Cattleyas are scarce and dear. Cypridiums are more plentiful. Bouvardia is shortening up. Miscellaneous flowers, owing to a good deal of dark, damp weather, are not at all plentiful, except sweet peas, which for some reason have not yet "caught on." In addition to plants already mentioned, there are some fine, well fruited oranges and excellent poinsettias.

Flower Growers' Association.

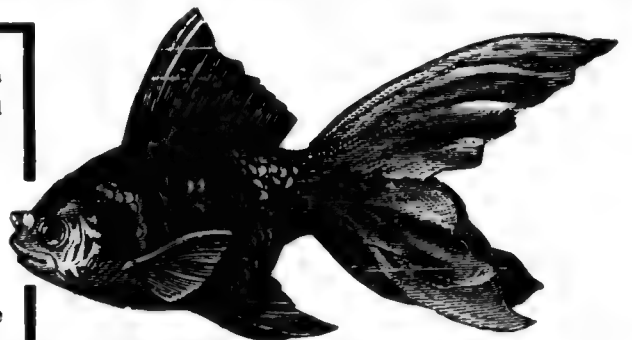

In spite of the night being wet and stormy, the attendance at the meeting of the Flower Growers' Association November 26 was the largest of the season. Many prominent growers were present and the meeting proved to be enthusiastic. Samuel J. Goddard presided and in opening stated the results of the conference between a committee representing the retailers and one from the growers, held just prior to that meeting. A good spirit prevailed and it seemed to be the consensus that co-operative advertising shared in by growers and retailers would prove to be a real solution in times of glut. The retailers were anxious to see retailing in the markets ended, as it had hurt their business in some measure.

William B. Stichel, president of the Boston Flower Exchange, speaking on have been wasted, were sold. It was a mistake to suppose that retail buyers paid the same prices as the retail florists; on the contrary, they paid an average of 100 per cent more. Andrew Christensen said that the retailers admitted that the opening of the market to retail purchasers had done more to bring them, the retailers, together than anything which had happened in the last ten years. Their defunct Retail Florists' Club again came to life and the club hoped to have 100 members in it before long. There was full discussion of the Milwaukee, Chicago and other plans for moving flowers by means of publicity and everyone present seemed eager to adopt whichever plan seemed best to fit Boston's needs. Numerous members expressed their views; among others, W. H. Elliott, E. A. Peirce, George W. Butterworth, James Wheeler, Gordon Fisher, William Sim, Harvey Whittemore, George Rice, W. T. Walke, Donald Carmichael, J. R. Chandler, F. E. Palmer, J. C. Gibbs, C. T. Beasley, J. E. Nelson. The fact was mentioned that the lease of both wholesale markets would lapse in January, 1923, and a general wish was expressed that both markets should coalesce and it was unanimously voted to have a committee from the Flower Growers' Association, consisting of William Sim, Gordon Fisher and James Wheeler, meet committees from the two wholesale markets and endeavor to arrange for a combining of the two, which would reduce costs of management and in other ways help the growers.

The threatened taking away of the parcel post special delivery privileges, reported in The Review of November 24, was brought up and F. Palmer and W. N.

C. A. KUEHN WHOLESALE FLORIST
1312 Pine Street, ST. LOUIS, MO.

Mention The Review when you write.

Craig were appointed a committee to draw up and present a suitable resolution to forward to W. F. Gude, Senator Lodge, the postmaster general and others, regretting the decision and, while appreciating the great value of the privileges to florists, hoping that by paying an adequate rate which would make it profitable to the government, the special delivery system for such highly perishable products as flowers could be continued. It was announced that a further meeting of the committee of retailers and growers would be held December 3. The retailers' committee consists of C. F. Boyle, J. J. O'Brien, William Penn, C. Becker and Sidney Hoffman, while the growers are represented by Andrew Christensen, C. J. Goddard, E. A. Peirce, John McFarland, Edward Woods and W. C. Stickel. The meeting did not adjourn until 11 p. m. and proved to be the best yet held by the association.

Various Notes.

Retail buying in the wholesale flower markets proved to be the real factor for Thanksgiving. November 22, the writer saw dozens of buyers, mostly ladies, whose purchases were all the way from 50 cents to $5 and $10. Bunch chrysanthemums were mostly purchased and one conservative estimate was that about $4,000 worth of flowers were disposed of in this way.

William H. Elliott states that prices realized for roses for Thanksgiving were quite satisfactory. Hadley led in value, closely followed by Crusader; then came Columbia, Mme. Butterfly, Ophelia and Pilgrim. The average for all roses sold was 11.7 cents per flower. Prices before Thanksgiving week for roses had also been quite satisfactory. The man with good stock and a competent salesman could secure good prices even when business was somewhat depressed.

William T. Walke, of Salem, has a grand house of poinsettias for Christmas. Some are in pots, many in pans; many bracts are already fifteen inches across and plants have foliage right down to the pot. Mr. Walke also has an excellent house of cyclamens in a fine range of colors, salmon pink predominating.

At Penn's, Thanksgiving trade was good, coming within five per cent of last year's holiday total. Chrysanthemums were leaders, but all flowers sold well, including a great number of Hudson river double violets. There was a great sale of pot plants. This week a fine window feature is an arbor of well fruited grapes; the bunches (wax) of Gros Colman, Duke of Buccleugh and Muscat are so well done as to deceive even experts.

J. R. Chandler & Son report that Iris tingitana, California-grown, has proved a great failure this season. From several thousand bulbs grown they had only eight flowers. F. P. Putnam has the same experience; so have several other local growers. On the other hand, Charles T. Beasley has several thousand in a solid bed in a cool house which seem to be quite well budded. We have evidently not caught on to the proper treatment for this fine early iris yet. Probably the bulbs had too short a period of rest before planting. This spoils many batches of gladioli each year.

L. E. Small, of Tewksbury, who for years has been the local bachelor's button king, is now only growing two long benches of them. Most of his benches are planted with Comet tomatoes. Yellow marguerites are well established and ready to take the place of the tomatoes as soon as the latter are cut out.

William Sim is enthusiastic over the behavior of Maine Sunshine and White Delight carnations, both of which are proving quite free. He has a great crop of Aviator, Belle Washburn and other reds, but will drop all reds and crimson after this season as unprofitable and grow more rose pinks and cerise pinks, which are always in demand.

The windows of the Houghton-Gorney Co. are once more attractive with big, handsome bunches of pansies which quite outclass violets in beauty. They have nice baskets arranged with begonias, which should prove excellent in the home. This firm had a good Thanksgiving business and continues to get a liberal share of wedding orders.

The greenhouses of the E. S. Webster estate, Chestnut Hill, were thrown open to the public all through Thanksgiving week. A great feature was the grand display of winter begonias of the large-flowered type. Such varieties as Rosalind, Emily Clibrans, Clibrans' Pride, Exquisite, Pink Perfection and many others were splendidly flowered. There was also a grand lot of specimen plants of Cincinnati, Melior, Turnford Hall, Lorraine and other begonias, as well as poinsettias, cyclamens and other winter-blooming plants. Fine houses of carnations, roses, snapdragons, etc., commanded attention, as did the orchids, chrysanthemums and gardenias. Peter Arnett, who is superintendent here, had everything in splendid shape.

Carbone had the decorations, which were quite extensive, for the Higginson-Lyman wedding in St. Paul's Cathedral November 26. Great quantities of yellow and bronze chrysanthemums and cedar trees were effectively used.

The big annual union meeting of agricultural and horticultural organizations in Massachusetts will be held in Horticultural hall January 17 to 20. The Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston and the Massachusetts Nurserymen's Association will have the evening of January 17 for special stereopticon lectures.

The plant food problem in Massachusetts, as in many other states, becomes increasingly serious; the shrinkage in horse manure alone in ten years amounts to a yearly average of over 40,000 tons. Some of the largest market gardeners now keep large dairy herds, in order to be assured of the necessary manure, and the number steadily grows. Most of our large commercial florists will before long be driven to do the same thing.

The Gardeners' and Florists' Club will

The Market.

We have just passed through the week of Thanksgiving, which, as usual, increased the demand for cut flowers. There was, however, sufficient stock to meet the requirements of all those who demanded it; in fact, none of the florists made any advance preparations, but purchased stock only after receiving the orders from their customers. At the close of business November 23, the wholesale houses had disposed of most of their stock, with the exception of a few pompons. These, during the week, arrived in large quantities and, in some instances, were sold at a nominal price. Mums were plentiful, but the demand was present and the prices ranged from $2 to $5 per dozen. The quality of pompons and mums was exceptionally good.

Roses were also plentiful and of a good quality. The varieties seen on the market were as follows: White Ophelia, Ophelia, Columbia, Crusader, Richmond, Premier, Russell and Sweetheart. Yellow daisies were also in the market and moved at fair prices. Carnations were received during the week in large quantities, but did not move so well, due to the fact that chrysanthemums and pompons were in the market. The price of these ranged from $4 to $6 per hundred and the quality was good. Orchids were scarce and a greater quantity could have been disposed of had the wholesalers been able to secure it. Lily of the valley was in the market in large quantities, but the demand was only fair. Lilies were also plentiful, but did not move rapidly. American Beauty roses were in the market and moved out at a good price, particularly the special and fancy grades. The short-stemmed ones, however, were not in demand. Sweet peas were in the market and the quality improves each week. The demand for these, however, is still limited. Calendulas were also received and moved out at a good price. There was a large demand for Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri, but the supply was sufficient to take care of the demand.

Shipments of boxwood sprays and ground pine are being received daily by the wholesale houses, and the quality is good this year. Boxwood is being offered at $20 and lycopodium at $14 per hundred pounds. Coontie leaves are also a new feature in this market and are taking well with the florists. The demand for these leaves is exceptionally good. Green leucothoe and green galax are also being offered in the market at the present time. Wild smilax is another decorative material that is being used by the majority of florists and the demand is good.

Various Notes.

H. C. Beuchler, proprietor of the Braddock Floral Co., Braddock, Pa., died November 23. Mr. Beuchler's sudden death came as a great shock to all of his friends in the trade.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Business for Thanksgiving week was somewhat of a disappointment, as there were no social functions that demanded cut flowers or decorations. Some slight activity was experienced in small orders for cut flowers for tables at family gatherings, but even these were not so noticeable as in some former years. The entire week preceding was dark, dreary and rainy, while Thanksgiving day itself dawned with the ground shrouded in a light mantle of snow and a misty, drizzling rain that combined to make the day a disagreeable one.

Chrysanthemums were in evidence in large quantities, especially of small blooms, sprays and pompons, but, although the retail prices on these were as low as 35 cents for a bunch of twenty-five, there was little movement. Large blooms retailed at 25, 35 and 50 cents each, with a few choice ones at 75 cents. Carnations were in good quantity and much better quality than at any other time this season. Roses were in good supply and a few novelties were offered.

Funeral work holds up, but not in a volume proportionate to the number of funerals, and the line following funeral notices in the daily papers of "Please omit flowers" is becoming more and more frequent.

Various Notes.

J. E. Koppelman furnished his employees with turkeys and greenbacks for Thanksgiving.

Samuel Reisnick, of Bowers & Co., is receiving congratulations on the advent of an 11-pound girl in his family circle last week.

Frederick E. Dietz was a business visitor in New York and vicinity last week.

When You Think of Greens Think of Woodruff

A Dependable Source of Supply

We want to suggest that you place your order for December and the Holidays' supply of GREENS at an early date. It may save disappointment. We are prepared to take care of your orders and make immediate or future shipments as wanted.

We have a good supply of GREEN GALAX, DAGGER FERNs and PREPARED BRONZE GALAX. The Natural Bronze Galax coming in slowly and expected in ample supply by Dec. 15th. The Green Leucothoe plentiful now, the Bronze Leucothoe a few weeks later. The Laurel Tips, Laurel Festooning and Natural Green Lycopodium all ready for immediate shipment.

Every Florist should have some Prepared Oak on hand. A few pounds makes a big show and can be used several times over.

Try us on a small order of Oak and Magnolia Wreaths and let us show you something good.

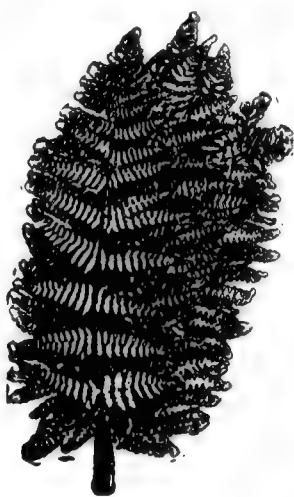

Remember our stock of GREEN GALAX and DAGGER FERNs (as well as Bronze Galax, little later) will be ample to supply your wants on a moment's notice, for December, January and probably all of February. You can depend on it. Write for illustrated folder.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

Portland, Ore.—Frank N. White has just purchased the greenhouse and property which was leased by Frederic Southworth. Mr. White plans to go into the florists' business.

Portland, Ore.—P. J. Kersten plans to go into business here. He formerly resided at Devils Lake, N. D., where he operated greenhouses. He sold them before coming to Portland.

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

Thanksgiving found the market well supplied with all kinds of stock, and a more than unusually big season will be necessary to clean up everything. But wholesalers and retailers all say that there has been a big improvement during the last week and are looking forward to its continuance. Poinsettias are arriving in better shape than they have ever been before, for this holiday, the flowers being finely colored and the foliage hard and of the kind that lasts well over long distances, when shipped. It looks like a remarkable season for these popular flowers. Heather is now arriving in better shape and, by Christmas, will be in full beauty. Everything points to a banner demand for this crop, which is so useful for long-distance work during late winter and early spring. Callas are in, these, too, being earlier than usual. Roses are now at their best and both supply and demand are distinctly encouraging to those up-to-date growers who have increased their greenhouse space and built new ranges. It shows again that the demand is always increasing for the best stock. Violets are much improved and shippers say they are getting through to destination in good shape. Pompons are in oversupply, for, while the local demand is good, there are too many of these grown in the territory looking to Los Angeles for supplies and, in consequence, the shipping demand is soon filled. Valley is coming through regularly to the market. Orchids are scarce. Sweet peas, and small flowers generally, are about equal to the demand, which is never great during the mum season, but this season will soon be over. All classes of decorative stock, such as cherry, California holly and the various conifers used for roping, are freely shown and, as everyone seems busy, the demand also must be good. English holly is already selling and at a good price.

Various Notes.

In his new nursery at El Monte, Gebhart Prechtl is most successful with yellow callas and has grown extra fine stock this season. Owing to the sub-irrigated nature of the soil, no actual watering is needed after planting, and thus the rotting of the bulbs, after being cut up for propagation, is avoided. Transvaal daisies also do well with him there, and he has an extra fine collection.

Large shipments of heather in pots have been made to Florida from the nursery of Roy F. Wilcox & Co., at Montebello, Cal., and by the time these lines appear, the cut stock will also be ready. Another two and a half acres are to be planted to this popular crop this season, and as it is new land and the stock to be planted is fine, the results should be satisfactory. A fine breadth of Erica regerminans is in full beauty there now, as well as acres of E. melanthera in the usual splendid condition as sent out by this firm. The kentias in the large lath houses are fine and the whole place is in excellent order and well worth a visit. Mr. Wilcox is still being asked for copies of the excellent booklet he gave away as a souvenir of the big show, entitled "Just Readin' and Thinkin'."

Walter Armacost & Co. report a greatly improved condition in business all around, especially in the shipping end. The lower price at which cyclamens have been billed by this firm this year has led to an enormous business in these favorite plants, and the demand for other pot stock is phenomenal. This firm has purchased the entire cut of heather grown by H. R. Richards, at Montebello, Cal., and shipments of the earlier stock went out last week. There will be, owing to the earliness of the season, a large supply of first-class stock for Christmas and already the orders are piling up for future delivery.

A full line of baskets and supplies, well displayed, is a feature at the Wall street store of the E. C. Amling Co., where business is reported good.

S. Murata & Co. had an increased force for the Thanksgiving trade, and all hands were kept busy. Some extra fine poinsettias were noted here.

The new store of the Schafer Floral Co., on Sixth street, is one of the most attractive in the neighborhood. Good stock and plenty of it is being well displayed here. To make such a good showing and obtain such good business in so short a time is a credit to all concerned. Mr. Schaffer is also a pretty busy man at his nursery on Figueroa street.

PORTLAND MUM SHOW.

All Oregon Represented.

The first annual Oregon chrysanthemum show was held at Portland, Ore., November 9 to 11, under the auspices of the Oregon Florists' Club and the Portland Chamber of Commerce, in the Green room of the Portland chamber. The show was notable for a number of brilliant social features and was, without question, the most widely represented display ever held in the Rose City. Twenty-two florists, representing the entire state, placed displays in the general exhibit. The exhibition brought forth the highest praise.

President H. B. Van Duzer, of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, issued special card invitations to the wives of each chamber member to attend an honorary tea given from 3 p. m. until 5 p. m. November 9. The innovation was a distinct success. More than 600 members' wives attended the tea, which was sponsored by 250 patronesses representing the social elite of the Rose City. An orchestra furnished music.

November 11 was designated as Civic Organization day and the general public was also invited. Thousands were on hand to admire the luxuriance of blooms. Every civic club in Portland attended. November 11, Armistice day, was turned over to the past and present fighters of the army and navy, disabled veterans, overseas telephone operators and nurses. Tobacco, luncheon and light refreshments were served. At 6 p. m. an Armistice dinner was served, ex-Governor Lowden, of Illinois, being the speaker.

Principal Displays.

The centerpiece of the show was a harmonious blending of color. A basket containing fifty mammoth Crusader roses, which were introduced last spring, occupied the most conspicuous portion of the centerpiece and were exhibited for the first time at Portland for public appraisal. This rose cluster was surrounded by Ophelia, Cecile Brunner and Mrs. Russell roses, orchids and sweet peas. The largest single display was that of the Smith Floral Co., of Portland, which contained more than 1,000 large-flowering chrysanthemums in white, pink, yellow and bronze. A unique decorative arrangement was introduced by Clarke Bros., Portland, who appropriately embellished the foreground, over which hung an oil painting of Robert Burns, with baskets of heather, Scotch thistles and yellow roses.

While the main body of the show was chrysanthemums, the display was by no means confined to them. The exhibit of Oregon-grown carnations was declared by several experts the best ever shown in the northwest. A new carnation creation, Governor Olcott, named in honor of Oregon's chief, was shown for the first time at Portland by the originators, Wiedemann Bros., of Wilsonville, Ore.

The carnation is a new shade of pink, large and silky in appearance, and is expected to be a great favorite. It will be offered for general sale as soon as enough stock is grown to permit. A vase of new yellow carnations was also shown.

The chrysanthemum show created such great general interest and proved so splendid a stimulus for the florists' profession in the state that the Oregon Florists' Club and the Portland Chamber of Commerce have determined to make the event an annual one. Oscar M. Smith, of Portland, was general chairman for arrangements. Three Rose City florists, James Forbes, C. P. Keyser and Thomas Luke, formed the committee on exhibits.

Exhibitors at the show were: Wiedemann Bros., Wilsonville, Ore.; A. Clancey, Salem, Ore.; Cherrys Florists, La Grande, Ore.; W. A. Dibble, Lebanon, Ore.; the Baker Floral Co., Baker, Ore., and the following Portland shops: The Wilson-Crout-Gehr Co., Van Kirk Carnation Co., Grantford's Flower Shop, Fred M. still fairly plentiful and will no doubt continue to come in until after the Christmas holidays. The weather has finished most of the outdoor stock, though yellow marigolds are still plentiful and French marigolds are being cut in limited quantities. Violet growers, who were beginning to complain of lack of rain, are now satisfied, for violets are in their prime and a large shipping business is being done with them, together with a good local demand. Pansies are just beginning to arrive. Good roses are scarce and their price has advanced 50 per cent. The first poinsettias, both cut and potted, are in the market this week. Carnations are scarce and expensive. Gardenias are coming in, but not in sufficient quantities for the social season's demand. Plenty of berries were in the market for Thanksgiving, especially the toyan berries, which are peculiar to the California woods, where they grow wild in profusion. Straw-flowers are plentiful and in good demand.

Various Notes.

The San Francisco Coöperative Market is handling some fine potted plants, including a number of cyclamens, of which there will be good crops for the Christmas holidays. The market is practically cleaned out every day. Statice and helichrysum, both fresh and dried, are also abundant in this market. Asparagus ferns and adiantum are being handled in sufficient quantities for the demand. Good stock is somewhat scarce at present and the market is cleaned out daily.

J. W. Axell has been joined by his brother, E. F. Axell, from Minnesota, who will henceforth be associated with him in his wholesale florists' business. Mr. Axell is handling large quantities of violets, which, he says, have been greatly benefited by the rain and are now in a prime condition. He also has his share of roses and carnations, Laddie being especially in demand.

S. De Milla, J. W. Axell's foreman, is in the hospital being treated for two sprained wrists, a dislocated shoulder and other injuries sustained while on a drive down the peninsula, November 20, to visit some growers. A recklessly driven automobile ran into his car, reducing both machines to wreckage. Fortunately, Mr. De Milla was using Mr. Axell's touring car, a strong machine, which withstood the impact better than would the light Ford he often drives.

The run on florists for the university football game caused a number of firms to be sold out on cardinal as well as on blue and gold. In default of red carnations enough to supply the trade, florists used white chrysanthemums with "S" in fine cardinal-colored frieze. The favorite combination for the State University's colors consisted of purple violets and yellow chrysanthemums. Pelicano, Rossi & Co., Podesta & Baldocchi, Joseph's, Shellgrain & Ritter, Bertrand's, Julius Eppstein, St. Francis Flower Store and many others worked to capacity to supply something like 60,000 fans with their favorite colors for the game.

Joseph's store has been busy with table decorations. One consisted of an Italian fish bowl, filled with goldfish and Ophelia roses. A wreath of pansies surmounted the bowl, which was also festooned with pansies. The table carried wreaths of pansies. Geo. P. Wagner, of Joseph's, designed this pansy table.

L. Harding, decorator for Podesta & Baldocchi, is recuperating from an unprovoked attack made upon him by a huge comber, on the beach at Santa Cruz, November 20. As sometimes happens in California, a sudden swell came with the force of a young tidal wave out of a moderately calm sea, sweeping young Harding off his feet, and it was only after a hard struggle that he again found himself on terra firma, although battered and bruised.

The Art Floral Co. utilized some of the huge yellow pumpkins and squash, that grow in California, in its Thanksgiving decorations. Scooped out, with enough of the pumpkin retained for fancy handles, these vegetables made most attractive Thanksgiving baskets when filled with flowers in shades that harmonized with their orange hues, such as pale yellow roses and pompon chrysanthemums in a riot of autumn coloring.

F. C. Jaeger & Son report a good Thanksgiving demand for cut flowers. They are, however, concentrating on preparations for the Christmas trade, which they expect to be large.

Mrs. Darbee has found it difficult to fill all her violet orders. She is one of the few shippers who grow their own violets. Her firm is also busy with strawflowers.

The Conservatory made an immense floral offering, eight feet in height, for Commander Buzzoglia, of the Italian warship now in the San Francisco harbor, to present, in memory of the fallen heroes in the late war, on Armistice day. The Italian colony has been busy entertaining the officers and men of the warship and there has been much saying of mutual regard with flowers. The Conservatory had much of this work.

Th City Market is the name of a new wholesale and retail flower establishment which opened November 21, on Bush street close to Kearney street. T. Mosco, the proprietor, has been in the florists' business for some time past and he is handling all the flowers in season.

The United Flower & Supply Co. has engaged a Japanese decorative artist to decorate its baskets. He is doing some clever work in clay modeled on basket work. This firm reports a great shortage of good chrysanthemums, but it is busy with violets.

All these varieties are not only winter-flowering, but they will produce more and better flowers out of doors than the old late Spencers, because they bloom 3 to 4 weeks earlier, before the hot weather sets in. Plant after the Chrysanthemum and get full crop for Easter. Plant in cool frames or outdoors just before the freezing begins and get full crop in May for Decoration Day. Plant out of doors in the spring and they will bloom early in June.

The Market.

Mums are plentiful. Turner and Bonaffon are still the leading varieties in large-flowering stock, with Chieftain also plentiful. Some of the older retailers say they have never seen better quality Turner than is being offered at this time. Pompons are also plentiful, with one or two growers cleaned up early on this offering.

The supply of roses has been increasing, but weather conditions have not been so favorable and the cut is figured to run about at the present rate for some time to come. Snow last week put a finishing touch to most outdoor offerings.

The cut of orchids shows a little gain, as is the case with valley. Bouvardia is common. Stephanotis is less plentiful. Carnations are of excellent quality now, some growers showing beautiful Laddie. Good Columbia is coming to hand.

Potted offerings have been popular, with cyclamens leaders. Ferns continue good sellers. The supply of primroses has been increasing and peppers meet with some demand.

Various Notes.

The monthly meeting of the Seattle Florists' Association was held at the St. Regis hotel, with forty-six members present. Dinner was served at 8 p. m. This was followed by the business meeting and a social hour, which was thoroughly enjoyed. Vice-president Harry A. Crouch occupied the chair and W. D. Desmond, captain of the bowling team, announced that merchandise prizes had been donated by growers, retailers and the trade papers, involving $150 for high scores on the various evenings of the florists' meetings. gave the address of the evening. He told of a simple inventory system which can be used in any florist's establishment for the determination of the value of stock on hand, without requiring such bookkeeping as has been needed. D. L. Jones, chairman of the credits committee, reported that great interest had been shown in the proposed interchange of credit information among the retailers concerning bad accounts and that a check had already developed the fact that a number of customers were systematically "working" all of the retailers for credit.

This shop captured a prize in the recent Music week displays, the most novel development here being a large basket of flowers holding in their center a violin. urday night features, during which the new shop is held open for visitors, although no flowers are sold after 6:30 p. m.

W. S. Goldsbary, representing the A. L. Randall Co., Chicago, has returned from an extended road trip, which included a visit to the home office.

Felix Rosaia reports a heavy run of funeral work of late, there having been an unusual demand for large pieces. This shop has been showing a fine lot of cyclamens.

David Lenchner, of Kenney's Home of Flowers, devoted a part of last week to pleasure rather than business. He was one of the committee handling the first formal dance of the year given by Nile Temple of the Shriners.

Announcement has been made this week of the opening of a new wholesale establishment, by the B. E. Hammond Co., at 1008 Post street.

The Seattle Fern & Moss Co. reports a steadily growing interest in holiday shipments. The firm has already booked a fine lot of orders on holly and mistletoe for shipment within a short time.

Some exceptionally large Laddie carnations are being cut at the greenhouses of the Hollywood Gardens at the present time, and a large vase of these adorned the speaker's table at the last dinner of the Florists' Club. Some fine mums are also being shown and these are being extensively used in decorations and baskets.

Stuber & Richardson will have a large cut of mums ready for the Christmas holidays and the stock has come along without trouble of any sort this season.

Melby's Flower Shop has handled a number of out-of-town funeral commissions during the last week, several of these being large orders. A better sale is reported on potted plants.

At the last meeting of the publicity committee of the Seattle Florists' Association, it was announced that the addition of three members gives this organization a 100 per cent standing among the downtown florists. This will further increase the funds available, and will make for a more active advertising campaign. This meeting was held at the home of Eugene N. Sandahl, of the Burdett Co. Mrs. Sandahl proved a delightful hostess.

A number of luncheon decorations have been handled by McCoy's, mums being the chief item used for these functions. The potted offerings coming from the greenhouse are holding up well as to grade.

Rosaia Bros. did the decorations for a

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE advance guard of the battalion of Dutch bulb salesmen is here.

T. A. BOYCE, of the Woodruff-Boyce Seed Co., Seattle, Wash., has returned home from a several weeks' business trip.

THE annual meeting and election of officers of the New England Seedsmen's League is held this week, December 1, at the Parker House, Boston.

A. BREMOND, of A. Bremond Fils, Toulon, France, is a Chicago visitor this week. His firm is one of the largest exporters of French bulbs and M. Bremond is looking over the ground for the 1922 deal.

A FINE fall business is reported by Hart & Vick, Inc., of Rochester, N. Y., and it is expected to run well into the winter. The demand for bulbs, the company reports, has been considerably heavier this year than it was last year.

AMONG the arrivals on the steamer Noordam, from Rotterdam, last week were C. Westerbeek and J. P. Schmal, of the General Bulb Co., Vogelenzang, Holland. Mr. Westerbeek reports no surplus of bulbs after the shipping season and states that the fall planting has been accomplished under ideal weather conditions.

NEWSPAPERS reported last week that Charles Dickinson, whose aeronautical activities have supplanted those in the seed trade, had landed in New York November 26 exactly eight hours after he took off from Ashburn field, Chicago. Mr. Dickinson, president of the Aero Club of Illinois, acted as navigator. Four persons accompanied him and no stops were made. Mr. Dickinson, now 65 years of age, is described in the public prints as "America's oldest aviator."

THERE arrived at New York during the week ending November 19 96,400 pounds of red clover from Germany and Italy; 119,500 alfalfa from Argentina; 125,600 rye grass and 12,100 rape from Great Britain; 18,800 fescue from Australia and 49,500 vetch from Germany. Other commodities that arrived during the week were 127,500 pounds of sunflower and 56,600 pounds of canary seed from Argentina. The exports of seed from New York were approximately 90,000 pounds of timothy to Germany, and 33,600 pounds of redtop and 45,000 pounds of alsike clover seed to Great Britain.

A PRODUCTION of soy beans equal to or slightly larger and of cowpeas ten per cent less than last year is indicated in reports received by the bureau of markets and crop estimates of the United States Department of Agriculture. Increases in the acreage of each of these crops reported in a number of important producing sections in the cotton belt are offset by decreases in the yield per acre. In Illinois, Indiana and Ohio, however, substantial increases are noted both in acreage and yield. The low yields of cowpeas in southeastern Alabama and southwestern Georgia are attributed to drought and damage by the Mexican bean beetle. Harvesting of both crops is practically completed and the movement of cowpeas from growers' hands has already begun, at

THE purchase of the assets of J. M. Thorburn & Co. by Carter's Tested Seeds, Inc., unites one of the oldest British with one of the oldest American firms. Grant Thorburn opened his seed store in New York in 1805, while James Carter started business at the sign of the Orange Tree, in Holborn, England, in 1836. About ten years ago James Carter & Co., of Raynes Park, England, established a branch business in the United States with offices at Boston. From its commencement this venture proved a success, and in due course offices were opened in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Chicago, Detroit, Toronto and Montreal. The business in the United States and Canada is conducted under the title of Carter's Tested Seeds, Inc.

SEED SAMPLING IN MARYLAND.

The Objective.

The Maryland seed law provides, in effect, that seed dealers may offer agricultural seeds of any quality for sale provided they are tagged as required. The chief work of the seed inspection laboratory of the University of Maryland is to determine how closely the various dealers selling seeds in the state live up to the statements on the tags of the seeds they sell. F. S. Holmes, of that university, has written the report of the work of the laboratory for the year 1920 in Bulletin 243.

It is unfair to pass judgment on a dealer on the showing of one lot of seeds and in order to avoid this error general summaries covering a large number of samples are prepared. The more samples, then, the greater the chance of accuracy. Previous to 1920 too many samples were collected for the laboratory to handle. So in 1920 the number was limited, so that only eighty per cent of the samples inspected in 1919 were attempted in 1920, about 1,200 samples.

Lots of seed held by 203 retailers were inspected at 116 points in the state. Samples collected over most of the state were representative of the seeds on the market in the spring and fall. Some interesting comparisons of years follow: Of the lots of seeds, not mixtures, inspected in 1920, ninety-four per cent were tagged in accordance with the law and in 1919 ninety-two per cent were properly tagged. In 1919 only thirty-five per cent of the wholesalers whose seeds were inspected had every lot properly tagged, while forty-eight per cent met all the tagging requirements in 1920. Not one of the specified mixtures inspected in 1919 was properly tagged; in 1920 one lot was properly tagged. But special mixtures were not so well tagged in 1920 as they were in 1919. In all the years out-of-state dealers have been the worst offenders.

Every effort has been made to insure the results of the laboratory being accurate and fair in every way. Lack of funds for travel and laboratory work have not permitted more extended work being undertaken. However, germination tests have been made promptly. Samples collected in March and April were tested in May. Those not within the "limits of toleration" were retested in June. And if the second test proved unsatisfactory for the seeds they were tested a third time in July. In a nutshell, the dealer has been given the benefit of any reasonable doubt in all cases.

Wholesalers' Records.

The following table, referring to wholesalers only, shows in the first column the number of samples from each firm inspected; in the second column the percentage of the samples tagged in accordance with the law in all respects, and in the third column the percentage tagged in accordance with the law and found to be within the limits of variation for pure seeds, weed seeds and germination:

Information received by the bureau of markets and crop estimates of the United States Department of Agriculture subsequent to the publication of the vegetable seed production estimates for 1921 in The Review last week indicates that ninety acres of parsley seed were harvested this year, from which a production of approximately 57,500 pounds was obtained.

The revised acreage and production of a few other kinds of seeds are as follows: Carrot—acres harvested, 187, pro-

The company remarks: “We presume that the Federal Horticultural Board will not soon change its decision [in regard to the embargo] and our only object in sending out this price list is to keep in contact with our customers.”

GLADIOLUS GROWING.

[“The Gladiolus for Profit,” a 48-page handbook of gladiolus culture, illustrated. Written and published by Raymond M. Champe, proprietor of the Oakland Gardens Nursery, Walled Lake, Mich.]

This little manual bears its own evidence of having been written by a practical grower. By its matter-of-fact, precise descriptions of cultural details, it irresistibly conveys the impression that the author is describing his own methods, not merely rehearsing the opinions of other growers. The book may not be an infallible guide on every phase of its subject—what book ever was?—but its ideas seem to have endured the crucial test of the author's own experience. There is not any great need of the assurance which he gives, that his cultural directions “are not the vagaries of a fireside dreamer.”

The handbook was written primarily for beginners whose object is not mere pleasure, but also financial gain—profit from both corms and flowers. The author says, in substance, “This course of instruction is intended for the city resident with small grounds, who is anxious to engage in this fascinating business, but knows not how to do so with the small space he has available.” Yet the principles of the book, as the author intimates, are capable of such modification and extension as to be applicable to the culture of fairly large areas.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

HOWARD EVARTS WEED, of Beaverton, Ore., the president of the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen, appears under the heading "Who's Who in the Trade and Why," on page 39 of this issue.

TWENTY cases of dormant shrubs and trees, consigned to C. B. Richards & Co., were on board the steamer Nieuw Amsterdam, which arrived at New York from Rotterdam November 23. On board were also thirty-two cases of nursery stock consigned to F. B. Vandegrift & Co.

SIMON J. HIDER, Hillsboro, O., has been working hard for several years to establish a nursery as a side line to his cut flower business. He reports this end of the business as having broken all previous records for high marks and finds it a good addition for increasing profits, well worthy of a trial.

WHEN the Missouri State Horticultural Society met at Hannibal, Mo., December 1 to 3, there were many who gave worthwhile talks. As one of these, Paul C. Stark, of Louisiana, Mo., spoke Friday, December 2, on "A Combination of Young Apple Orchards, Hogs and Forage." The afternoon of the same day Lloyd C. Stark spoke on "Nineteen-Twenty Census Figures on Fruit Trees and What They Mean to Orchardists." On the last day of the meeting all those attending were invited by Stark Bros. Nurseries & Orchards Co. to go as the firm's guests and see the large test orchards at Louisiana, Mo.

BEAUTY FOR SCHOOL GROUNDS.

Leading in the wave of improvement for school grounds, the J. Van Lindley Nursery Co., of Pomona, N. C., has offered to beautify any school grounds for $25, including plan and $50 worth of shrubs. If a photograph of any schoolyard and building is sent to the company, according to the company's announcement in a local newspaper, a practical plan for ornamenting the place will be prepared. If any of the firm's landscape men should be in the vicinity, a survey and sketch will be made free of charge. In case a school wants a personal inspection, the company will send a man at its own expense.

The company hit upon this scheme as a means of clearing a large stock of shrubs which must be moved to make room for new cultivations. The shrubs to be moved include flowering plants and shrubs of many varieties, besides ornamental grasses. But most valuable of all is the advertising that this plan is gaining for the company. The Observer, of Charlotte, N. C., devoted an entire editorial to the company's idea and commended it highly.

TRADE-MARK SUIT SETTLED.

The suit for infringement of trademark and unfair competition brought by Stark Bros. Nurseries & Orchards Co., Louisiana, Mo., against the William P. Stark Nurseries, Neosho, Mo., has been finally settled in favor of Stark Bros., after a long drawn-out fight of six years, through all the United States courts, including the United States Supreme court.

This suit originated in the United States District courts, where Stark Bros. were awarded damages and also an accounting for certain profits of the Wm. P. Stark Nurseries to cover a prescribed period of the infringement. In addition to the above, the federal court issued an injunction prohibiting the Wm. P. Stark Nurseries from further infringing on the rights of Stark Bros. Later the case was appealed to the United States Court of Appeals and then to the United States Supreme court, where the final decision was reached, which upheld the United States Court of Appeals in the injunction, damages and profits awarded to Stark Bros. and the case was referred back to the United States District court to have an accounting made so as to determine the amount of profits and damages to be paid Stark Bros.

The case was in this position when Stark Bros., after a conference with the Neosho Nursery Co. (successors to the Wm. P. Stark Nurseries), agreed to accept $7,500 in place of the damages and WARNING!

We again call to the attention of the trade, our rights regarding all Golden Delicious apple trees. We have formerly published notices of our rights in regard to this variety and these trees in the trade papers, and have mailed to all members of the nursery trade, legal notice by registered mail and have received receipts of the delivery of these letters by the Post Office Department. We desire to eliminate any chance of anyone infringing on our legal rights by attempting to propagate and sell this variety, every tree of which is fully and legally protected by special individual contracts between the purchaser and our company. We do not desire to cause any trouble or loss to reliable nurserymen and we have made every effort to notify them so that they would not innocently infringe on our rights. The other class of nurserymen who might attempt to infringe in spite of our notices will be promptly and effectively handled in the Courts.

A few cases of infringements and illegal action regarding the Golden Delicious have come up and have been quickly and definitely stopped either by court action or by agreement of the infringer to either destroy or turn over to us all buds, scions or cuttings of the Golden Delicious in their possession, with the additional agreement not to attempt to further violate our rights. Some of these infringements have been caused by ignorance of the fact that our contract agreement fully protects and covers every tree, scion, bud or cutting of every tree that has ever been sent out and that no one can propagate and sell any Golden Delicious trees under that name or any other name. We have in our employ a leading national detective agency and careful investigations are made by them of any alleged infringement of our rights by customers, nurserymen, or anyone else.

The following quotation from our attorneys' letter contains the essential details of our legal rights in this variety:

"Stark Bro's N. & O. Co.,
Louisiana, Mo.

Gentlemen:

In re Protection of Your Exclusive Rights to the Golden Delicious Apple Tree

"Under your contract, under and by virtue of which the Golden Delicious Apple Trees are sold, every Purchaser signs a contract agreeing:

'Not to give away or sell or permit anyone else to take scions, buds or cuttings from the Golden Delicious trees herein mentioned or their progeny for a period of 25 years.'

"This gives you control of all Golden Delicious trees and all propagating wood therefrom. That Contract is enforceable and you can successfully proceed against anyone who infringes upon your rights or violates that contract. In order to give every possible notice of your rights to that apple tree, we advise you to send to all Nurserymen the above quotation from your Contract under and by virtue of which the Golden Delicious Apple trees are sold, so they will have full notice of the same and in the event anyone violates it, you can take legal action against them. All honest Orchardists and Nurserymen will aid you in protecting your rights to that apple tree. Of course, you will reciprocate in the event any other nurseryman produces fruit they wish protected in the same manner by Contract whenever they give you notice of same.

"Yours truly,

"MATSON & COWHERD,

"Attorneys for Stark Bro's N. & O. Co."

We wish to assure reliable nurserymen that we have taken this action and sent these notifications in justice to them and so they will be fully informed. Furthermore, if, in the future, any other new fruits are introduced by other nurserymen on this basis, we will appreciate their notifying us of the existence of any contracts with which we might unknowingly attempt to interfere.

profits awarded them by the court. This amount was paid by the Neosho Nurseries and the injunctive relief awarded to Stark Bros. by the federal court against further infringements and unfair trade was made perpetual.

The nursery trade has followed this important suit with a great deal of interest, as it had at issue many points that affect the rights and general business policies of the nursery world.

TRIMMING BOXWOODS.

Will you let us know how and when one should trim boxwoods that are put in storage for the winter?

D. & K.—Mich.

The best time to trim boxwoods into shape is just as they start to make their new growth, which with you would be about the middle of May. Your plants would naturally be placed outdoors early in May. Use a pair of hedge-notched pruning shears; these come with wooden handles and the sizes are usually eight, nine or ten inches. The second size is the one it would be advisable to get. Sheep shears answer well for grass, but they are not suitable for pruning plants with woody growths.

Cut the plants enough to make them shapely. Never mind if they are cut back to hard wood; they will break away again. If your plants are in tubs or pots, they will need some of the surface soil removed and should be given a top-dressing. Also an occasional dose of liquid manure in early summer is helpful.

C. W.

PROPAGATING BUDDLEIAS.

Will you kindly furnish me instructions on how to propagate the butterfly bush, how to make the cuttings, what kind to make and how to grow them?

H. J. D.—Ia.

It is presumed that you mean the buddleias, to which some ingenious catalogue man gave the euphonious name of butterfly bush, not because the flowers in any way resemble butterflies in appearance, but simply because the flowers seemed attractive to them, although not to any greater degree than many other

CHEERFULNESS—Beautiful variegated, orange and scarlet with golden border. The florets are medium sized, but very freely produced.

CITY OF PORTLAND—A wonderfully attractive rose-pink. Excellent upright habit and free flowering. $15.00 per 100, $125.00 per 1000.

DR. E. ACKERKNECHT—The bronze foliage blends pleasingly with the carmine rose trusses. Vigorous and free.

DUKE OF MARLBOROUGH—An old favorite with deep crimson flowers.

EUREKA—The best white Canna. A very strong grower, blooming freely. The flowers are large and become pure white in the full sun. $8.00 per 100, $75.00 per 1000.

FANAL—Exceedingly free flowering deep bright red. A most effective bedder.

FEUERMEER—Another excellent old sort with a profusion of dazzling orange-scarlet flowers.

GAIETY—Wonderfully effective. Deep orange suffused with scarlet and bordered with yellow. A brilliant bedder.

GOLDEN GATE—Vigorous and free. A unique combination of yellow and golden shades, blending into rose as the flower matures. $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000.

HUNGARIA—There is a quiet refinement about this delicate rose-pink Canna that charms everyone and has made it one of the most popular. $8.00 per 100, $75.00 per 1000.

KING HUMBERT—The most popular Canna of this generation. The large orange-scarlet flowers and particularly the very deep bronze foliage make it one of the most useful.

LOUIS REVERCHON—The flowers are brighter and more freely produced than on King Humbert, while the foliage is a greenish bronze.

MRS. ALFRED CONARD—Magnificent trusses of large salmon-pink flowers. Unique and very ornamental. The stock of this variety is very scarce. We have a limited quantity and advise early ordering. $15.00 per 100.

MRS. KARL KELSEY—A tall, majestic, vigorous grower surmounted by great trusses of large orchid type flowers. Orange-scarlet streaked and mottled with rose.

RICHARD WALLACE—A well known pure yellow.

THE GEM—A seedling of Hungaria, more vigorous, with a profusion of large cream colored flowers dotted with carmine. Very unusual and attractive. $7.00 per 100, $60.00 per 1000.

THE PRESIDENT—The greatest red Canna in commerce. Very heavy, vigorous growths surmounted by great trusses of immense florets of bright scarlet. We heartily endorse this as the greatest Canna introduction of recent years. $8.00 per 100, $75.00 per 1000.

WYOMING—We know of no other Canna as effective as this for large plantings. A giant in growth. Extremely vigorous, with its deep bronze foliage as an ideal background for large, bright orange colored flowers of the orchid type. It makes an ideal subject.

YELLOW KING HUMBERT—A sport from King Humbert, to which it occasionally reverts. Green foliage with yellow flowers dotted with scarlet. $8.00 per 100, $75.00 per 1000.

We have good stocks of many other varieties, prices on which will be quoted on application.

Order now for delivery in January and February.

plants. A far better and more truly descriptive name for the forms of B. variabilis is "summer-blooming lilac," and for the white winter bloomer, B. asiatica, "winter-flowering lilac."

All the buddleias propagate with ease from soft-wood cuttings. If B. variabilis magnifica, the last of the summer bloom-ers, is not hardy with you, take cuttings now from open-air plants. They root as easily as *heliotropes ageratum*s and can be carried over winter in pots in a cold greenhouse. B. magnifica will stand 10 or 15 degrees below zero, with slight mulching, provided you do not cut the plants back in the fall. In the spring cut them back nearly to the ground. The winter bloomers, like the new Eva Dudley, a cross between magnifica and asiatica, and the pure white, deliciously fragrant B. asiatica, can be propagated from soft-wood cuttings any time after the flowering season is over. They are all vigorous growers and I find BUSINESS ETHICS.

Roy F. Wilcox, ex-president of the California Association of Nurserymen, is the author of the following lines. They were presented at a meeting of this association and emphatically adopted as a measure that everyone, not only nurserymen, but florists and all other business men, should live up to. They are worthy of careful perusal:

STANDARDS OF PRACTICE.

Our vocation as nurserymen is a high and noble calling and of practical benefit to our fellowmen, and we believe in as members of the California Association of Nurserymen and pledge to each other patient service toward the upbuilding and maintenance of our organization.

We further pledge our loyalty to each other in the effort for securing greater efficiency and the highest standard of ethics in our business transactions.

We realize that, as business men, we are ambitious to succeed, but that first we desire to be ethical and to achieve no success that is not founded on justice and morality and in conformity with the laws of the land.

We will exercise care individually at all times to see that every advertisement or word of mouth utterance with which we have anything to do shall measure up to the plain, simple truth. We stand firmly for constructive sales practices and condemn without reserve any and all forms of destructive sales methods.

We are exponents of justice and realize that it is only when we put the interest of the buying public first that we obtain a just return for our efforts.

We will conduct our business in such a manner that we shall give a full measure of highest and efficient service.

We will use our best endeavors to elevate the standards of the vocation as nurserymen and so conduct our affairs that others in this vocation will find it wise and profitable and conducive to happiness to emulate our example.

We realize the opportunity presented by the climatic and natural resources of our state and country and, as practical men and loyal citizens of this land, it shall be and is our object and aim to protect and develop the commercial production and sale of plants and trees, seeds and flowers, thereby advancing the material and social sides of our industry.

We are American citizens, and as such subscribe to the laws of the land. We believe in the United States and her people.

Gentlemen:

I have checked up on the results of Stim-U-planT and I am very much pleased as well as surprised at results. I used 1000 tablets on 5000 Chrysanthemum plants and instead of 2½-foot stems as I would have got with ordinary fertilizer from plants planted July 15th, I have 6-foot stems and two or three flowers per plant with exceptionally firm foliage and clear, clean, bright flowers. It is without doubt a wonderful stimulant.

Yours truly,

FRED MUCHMORE.

The Market.

There has been a glut in the wholesale cut flower market for the last month. This is due largely to the unusually fine autumn, with its days of sunshine, lengthening the life of the outdoor crops and producing unprecedented quantities of greenhouse stock.

Chrysanthemums are still in large supply, there being large quantities of Bonaffon, Chadwick, etc. Eaton and Seidewitz are arriving daily, at prices from $1.50 to $3 per dozen. Roses are abundant in all varieties, except Ward. The heaviest cut is in Premier. Prices advanced some what at Thanksgiving time. All the stock has fine color.

Carnations are still holding at $5 to $6 per hundred and there are none too many at that price. Violets are in fair demand, selling at 35 and 50 cents per hundred. California violets sell at 25 cents a bunch retail. Plenty of calendulas can be had at $3 and $4 per hundred. Callas are beginning to come in at $3 per dozen. Sweet peas find ready buyers at $2 per hundred.

Blooming plants are featured in some stores, especially narcissi, cyclamens and pot mums.

ing some fine Columbia roses, combining these with mums and violets to produce a highly effective window.

T. A. Boyce, secretary of the Woodruff-Boyce Seed Co., has returned from a several weeks' business trip to nearby points.

In an effort to clear the big supply of mums, the initial advertisements for the Seattle Florists' Association appeared Monday and Tuesday of the holiday week. Half pages were used in the Seattle Times and Seattle Post-Intelligencer, a quarter page in the Seattle Star and a 5-column 7-inch advertisement in the Seattle Union Record. This was followed up by 8-foot window posters for use on the retailers' windows and carrying the slogan, "Say Thanksgiving with Flowers."

SCRANTON, PA.

Thanksgiving trade met the full expectations of the florists in this part of the state. All kinds of chrysanthemums were exceedingly fine, pompons and medium and large flowers. We could be thankful for these, but not overly thankful for the weather conditions. November, 1921, will go down in history as a frowning month. People wanted flowers to brighten the home inside.

S. S. Pennock has postponed his visit to the Scranton Florists' Club until January 10, 1922, at which time he will show stereopticon views of his trip abroad; this should prove exceedingly interesting. John Young will be with us Tuesday night, December 6, at the club's regular meeting. He will promote the interest of the S. A. F., also the publicity of the F. T. D. His talk will be at the banquet to be given in the banquet room of the Elks' Club.

Every florist is in full swing preparing for the Christmas trade, which promises to be as large as ever. At this time poinsettias, begonias, cyclamens and heather are in fine shape. G. R. C.

NEWPORT, R. I.

The regular meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society, held recently, was most interesting and important. There was an unusually large attendance and plans for the coming season were discussed. Announcement was made that the Garden Association of America will hold its annual convention and exhibition at Newport in 1923. The meeting will be held in the early summer and it is expected that the exhibition will bring together one of the biggest displays ever seen in the flower show line at Newport. The medals and certificates awarded for the September show of the Horticultural Society were distributed to the winners in attendance.

Charles S. Ritchie was elected a member of the town council of Middletown at the election Tuesday, November 22.

Cut flower business for the Thanksgiving holidays was especially active.

Oscar Schultz handled several decorations during the last week. W. H. M.

Moultrie, Ga.—T. E. Ginn has been in ill health for more than three months and has decided to sell out, to recuperate. He has eight acres of land and 8,000 feet of glass.

Knoxville, Tenn.—Baum's, Crouch, Dailey's and the McNutt Floral Co. united to place a full-page advertisement in the Journal and Tribune Sunday, November 20. A huge gobbler and the two colors, red and black, in which the page was printed made it exceptionally striking.

"Thanksgiving Pink"

Reports from all around indicate that our introductions of last spring are making good. We felt sure that Thanksgiving Pink would at once become a great favorite and in anticipation of a strong demand for young plants this spring, we planted a big block in the field last May. These have been lifted and are making fine strong cuttings. We can supply it in large quantities. If you grow Mums you need this one.

"Glorious"

This variety blooms about November 1st. Growers who bloomed it this fall tell us that it is the finest pink of its date. We have a large stock.

We are booking orders for young plants, spring delivery, at $15.00 per 100; $100.00 per 1000

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

BETSON CHANGES SALES PLAN.

The Betson Plastic Fire Brick Co., Rome, N. H., announces a change in its selling arrangements in the central western states. Frank L. Page, of Chicago, is no longer connected with the company in any way whatever, and the company will again sell direct to the user through its various branch offices and its branch office salesmen. The Chicago office will be in charge of C. Z. Dillenbeck, 1514 Kimball building. L. S. Shaw & Co., 5716 Euclid avenue, Cleveland, with branch offices in Detroit and elsewhere, will again act as general agent and distributor for the states of Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Kentucky.

HOTBED HEATING.

We wish to heat a hotbed, situated on the south side of our greenhouse, $2\frac{1}{2} \times 6 \times 100$ feet, to a temperature that will be suitable for vincas and stock geraniums, and will also carry Cleveland cherries until Christmas. Our intention is to connect to the present heating system, which is amply large. The flow pipe will require a large drop to the bed outside, but the return will come in level with the others. How much $1\frac{1}{4}$ -inch pipe will be necessary for this job? W. & S.—N. Y.

Vincas and geraniums may be carried at a temperature considerably lower than will be required for Cleveland cherries. For the Cleveland cherries it will be advisable to use a $1\frac{1}{4}$ -inch pipe along each side of the bed.

HEAT WITH HOT WATER.

Will you tell me, from the diagram of my greenhouse, what size boiler and how many and what size pipes it will take to heat the house with hot water? The temperature in this locality gets down as low as 10 degrees below zero, but the average is a little above zero. J. W.—Ill.

The sketch shows the house to be thirty feet in length and ten feet wide, with two feet of wooden wall above grade. For piping the house it would be advisable to use one 2-inch flow pipe and three $1\frac{1}{2}$ -inch returns under each side bench. It may be possible to carry

Good Judgment in Buying a Boiler

C. H. Totty

For many years C. H. Totty has used Kroeschell Boilers. He expresses great satisfaction with the service of his boilers and highly commends the efficiency of Kroeschell Boilers in greenhouse heating.

Good judgment based on experience is what makes successful business and, naturally, the more capable a man is of using good judgment and the greater his power of utilizing his experience and the experiences of others in exercising his judgment, the greater will be the success of his business.

It is impossible to believe that the judgment of a man that is responsible for the establishment of a large, permanently successful greenhouse business is anything but good. It is sensible to let the judgment of the big men in the flower business guide you in making decisions for your own flower business.

Merit alone is responsible for the favorable opinion of Kroeschell Boilers that prevails among the largest and most successful growers. They select Kroeschell Boilers for their heating problems and recommend them for all growers, large and small. You can make no mistake by installing a boiler in your greenhouses that has gained the favor of men whose success in the greenhouse business qualifies them as experts in knowledge of greenhouse requirements.

Makes You Forget Your Furnace Troubles

After lining your boilers with PLIBRICO, forget them, for PLIBRICO means the end of worry.

It is a plastic material, easily installed, that when molded into baffles, bridge walls, side walls, and front door arches makes a setting that is absolutely air tight and gas tight. Being jointless, there are no bricks to fall out or mortar to crumble.

After being baked and properly vitrified, PLIBRICO makes a furnace lining as solid as rock, and resistant to heat up to 3100° F.

Try it, and end your worries.

the flow pipes on the plates, and if so, it would be well to have that arrangement.

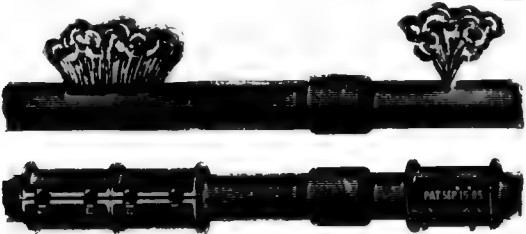

The heater for such a house should have a rating of about 300 square feet if soft coal is to be used. If a second house is to be built in the near future, it would be advisable to put in at this time a boiler sufficiently large for both houses. Its rating need not be more than 500 square feet.

REARRANGING OLD SYSTEM.

I have two greenhouses, 32½x154 feet. The heating system now in operation in these greenhouses is only capable of heating the houses to 52 degrees in zero weather, and I wish to change it so that it will heat the range to 65 degrees in zero weather. All pipes are to run overhead and on center purlin posts except those hung on the side walls. Would four 2½-inch flows with four 2-inch returns to each flow heat the range to the desired temperature? B. J. P.—Pa.

As far as the amount of radiation is concerned, four 2½-inch flow pipes and sixteen 2-inch returns will give practically all the radiation that will be required to heat the house to 65 degrees in zero weather, but each of the flow pipes will have to supply nearly 500 square feet of radiation. If possible to make the connection, it would be advisable to use five 2½-inch flow pipes and fifteen 2-inch returns. However, as the lower ends of the returns will evidently be six or seven feet above the top of the boiler, it would be possible to maintain the temperature desired by heavy firing. It is noted from the sketch that the returns drop three feet throughout their entire length in the houses. This drop is much more than is necessary, and it will be found that the best circulation is secured when the returns are carried as high as possible. It is not advisable to drop more than from eight to fifteen inches if the pipes are properly graded. Run the flow pipes downhill.

MUM SHOW AT WOOSTER, O.

The chrysanthemum show held at Wooster, O., November 19 to 23 was well attended and the out-of-town exhibits were fine.

The Joy Floral Co., of Memphis, Tenn., showed two new carnations. They were Natalie, a fine dark pink, and Thomas C. Joy, which is a fine white and was given honorable mention.

White Bros., of Medina, N. Y., showed a vase of their new white rose, Medina. This was given honorable mention.

Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., had a large display of exhibition and pompon chrysanthemums, including Orange Queen, Rose Delight, Pink Treasure, Purple King and, in the pompon class, Dainty Maid, Crista, Maple Leaf, Mary Pickford, The Chief, The Belle and others. Special mention was given to Purple King and William Turner.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn., was given honorable mention for the new rose, Priscilla. This attracted a great deal of attention as a rival to American Beauty. This company also showed a remarkable collection of pompons in great variety. Seedling No. 478, New York, November Gold, Louise Davenport and Improved Romaine Warren were in this collection, given honorable mention.

The judges were William Pennick and P. N. Rice.

SPRAYED POISON ON CELERY.

More than twenty indictments against Los Angeles Japanese truck gardeners for spraying arsenic poison on celery have been asked by the California state board of health. C. H. Make your greenhouse weather-tight with Asbestfalt, the elastic cement that never gets hard, cracks or peels in cold weather or runs in hot weather.

$1.25 per gallon. Why pay more?

You can't get anything better no matter how much more you pay. The ingredients are of the purest; weighs but 10 pounds to the gallon.

With the scarcity of coal and its high prices, the careful application of Asbestfalt will more than pay for itself by keeping your greenhouse air-tight.

To insure best results, apply Asbestfalt with our Liquid Putty Machine, price $2.00. With every barrel purchase of Asbestfalt, one machine free.

THE PULVERIZED MANURE CO., 33 Union Stock Yards, CHICAGOFORT WAYNE, IND.*The Market.

Business was good last week, in spite of the fact that it rained almost every day. Stock was plentiful and of good quality. Business for Thanksgiving day was exceptionally good. Chrysanthemums took the lead, both in cut flowers and plants. A fine line of roses, carnations, Paper Whites, valley and violets was to be seen in all of the stores. Prices remained about the same, which probably had something to do with the amount of stock sold. Mums are just about cleaned up and the demand for other stock is increasing.

Various Notes.

The Doswell Floral Co. is receiving some fine violets from Rhinebeck, N. Y. This firm reports a good Thanksgiving business, having sold everything.

The Flick Floral Co. reports its business as about double what it was last year.

Mrs. Helen Patten Rohan, of Toledo, was a visitor in the city for a few days.

Ralph Tinkham had a good week, with several weddings and ballroom decorations. He reports a great increase in the art department as the holiday season draws near.

The Blossom Floral Co. was exceedingly busy, the volume of business being greater than it was last year. At the close of a busy day, as the last order was delivered, the delivery car turned over, wrecking the body. No one was injured.

The Lanternier Florist was an early riser Thanksgiving morning, in order to get out the orders for five large weddings, in addition to the rush of the day otherwise. This firm has a beautiful window decoration, featured in red and showing advance holiday goods.

Edgar C. Wenninghoff had a fine showing of extra fancy mums for his Thanksgiving day trade, which was much better than last year.

Generous Gutters

Just as a feather will point the wind, so little things point to satisfaction in greenhouse construction. Look at the cut of the Callahan drip gutter.

This cut shows the Callahan drip gutter, much larger than the usual drip moulding. Also the lap and beveled shoulder of the roof bar making a double brace.

Callahan Greenhouses have an inside drip gutter 3 inches wide. Consequently they do not fill up with dirt and lint and cause the runoff of condensation to overflow on the delicate plants below.

Both inside and outside gutters have tongue and groove joints which insure strength and prevent leakage.

Because of the Callahan Cut-to-Fit principle, you can have these important advantages at no greater cost than the ordinary greenhouse. Let us estimate on your next house.

Catalogue completely descriptive of Callahan Cut-to-Fit Greenhouses is yours for the asking.

FOLEY

A neat and attractive little show house

Don't fight for business—attract it

Fighting is destructive, breeds ill will and bitterness. The world at large has had too much of this for the last few years.

What the whole world needs now—what the florists' trade at large needs now and what your business in particular needs now is CONSTRUCTIVE thought and CONSTRUCTIVE action. So forget war and turn your attention to profiting by the law of harmonious attraction.

How does the successful retailer get his valuable patronage? Surely, NOT with a gas pipe. He ATTRACTS it with an attractive window, with attractive display houses, with cheerful, optimistic attention on the part of the clerks, with superior stock, attractive arrangement, attractive packing and attractive delivery service. So again—don't fight for business; simply—study to make everything connected with YOUR business ATTRACTIVE and you'll attract success.

FOLEY BBETTER and Heated Greenhouses are highly attractive and can be built at attractive figures.

This can be DEMONSTRATED to YOU too.

You're ready now.

So are we—so where shall it be?

CYCLAMEN

FERD. FISCHER'S SPECIAL OFFER

OF CYCLAMEN SEEDS.

20% REDUCTION.

We are in receipt of advice from Mr. Ferd. Fischer authorizing us to make a reduction of 20 per cent from the subjoined list on his well-known celebrated strain of Cyclamen seeds. Mr. Fischer is desirous of having you plant some seed about the first part of November, as seed planted at this date will develop stock for your 1922 Christmas trade in 5, 6, 7 and 8-inch pots.

NOTE: Many seeds have come over to this country, supposed to be German-grown, that in reality were grown in other countries. Many of the diseases now complained about among the florists are due to lack of good strain.

Robert Craig Co., of Norwood, Penn., has for your inspection, 50,000 plants in 5, 6, 7, 8 and 10-inch pots, all well established, true in color and healthy, all grown from Mr. Fischer's seed supplied by us.

When securing seed for November planting, we ask that you keep our seed separate from other strains and you can then determine for yourself the quality, and the vigorous growth that Mr. Fischer's strain makes.

This 20 per cent reduction is an inducement for you to plant some now. Send us your order today. It is important and it will pay you to make this experiment.

P. HOPMAN & SONS,
Gladiolus Specialists, Hillegom, Holland.
Headquarters of Le Marechal Foch, White Giant, L'Immaculee, Pink Perfection, Loveliness, Golden Measure and all the leading and fancy varieties. Very cheap prices on application.

GOING DOWN. GOING DOWN.

HEAR YE? HEAR YE?

Le Marechal Foch bulbets now only $1.25 per 100, $10.00 per 1000, $45.00 for 5000 and $80.00 for 10,000 big, plump, healthy, clean bulbets, and with every 500 bulbets ordered I will send absolutely free, one plump, first-size bulb for trial. America will be as scarce as five dollar bills in a collection plate as soon as stock of Le Marechal Foch is disseminated.

As early as Halley, twice the size of America; It has MERIT, I'll tell the population.

PANSY PLANTS,

PELARGONIUMS—Continued

PELARGONIUMS, TEMPLIN QUALITY.

We think the time has arrived when it is up to everyone to do just what he expects everyone else to do; reduce prices to as near pre-war times as possible. "Let George do it" is "progressing" slowly.

To practice what we preach, we now offer you a fine lot of 4-in. Easter Greeting at 15c each in any quantity. This is Templin quality, and will be packed right. Being ready for 5's they are sure to make you money for Easter or sooner. We have "oodles" of 2½ and 3's coming on, which will be listed here in due time at pre-war prices.

To those who can anticipate their wants, we shall be glad to book orders for future delivery in any quantity, in any of the three sizes.

HYBRIDIZED DAHLIA SEED.

This seed is raised from the most up-to-date Dahlias in existence. No place in the world have Dahlias been brought up to such perfection as they have been around San Francisco. This mixture contains all colors and types of Peony, Cactus and Decorative varieties. Our rainless California summers make it possible to get seed even from the very double varieties, a result extremely difficult in States where it is rainy during the time when the seed should set.

The seed we sent out in previous years was highly praised by all who raised Dahlias from it, but this seed is far superior to what we have sent out in previous years. The seedlings will commence to flower two months after sowing and almost a month earlier than plants raised from bulbs.

Walden, N. Y., Feb. 14, 1921.

Richard Diener Co., Kentfield, Cal.

Gentlemen: The Dahlia Seed received from you last year turned out fine. Could not think Dahlias could be grown from seed in such short time. Had some very fine blooms. One yellow Peony flowered that was extra fine, some 8 inches and a clear canary-yellow. Everyone who saw it was amazed at the size grown from seed. Had a clear flesh-pink; beautiful under lamp light. Respectfully, Wm. McBrier.

Interior of one of our iron frame greenhouses, 61 x 500 feet.

Let's Be Friends and Counsel Together

Let's talk things over together.

Let's sit down and go into your greenhouse needs carefully and without hurry.

Let's find out what is best for you to build now, that will still be best when you grow bigger and bigger.

Let's iron out the mistakes now.

Let's be sure.

Let's appreciate the fact that being sharp and shrewd isn't all there is to buying a greenhouse.

Let's stop and consider that if both of us will open up and be frank with each other, both of us will profit.

Let's be friends together.

Let's counsel together.

Let's remember that the more expensive it is to build a greenhouse, the cheaper it is to build a good one.

Remember that, and also that we go anywhere for business. Or to talk business.

—and Walter A. Amling says:

“The time to build is in the winter, when there is no building rush, but, best of all, you get a real crop the first year to help pay for the plant.”

Here is a man who has proven the fact by making a wonderful success himself. We have built three plants for Walter A. Amling Co. and all of them were built in the winter.

Why not get the winter habit? It pays. Don't forget the AGMCO is giving ten per cent discount on all orders for erection before April, 1922. Better plan that house now.

Greenhouse Builders

*Two years ago your money bought the smaller house.
The same amount today buys the larger one.*

Your Dollar How Much House It Now Buys

Not long since, was over in Boston and in one of the big grocery stores up on Tremont Street was a most convincing window display.

In one group was a barrel of flour, a hundred pounds of sugar, a pound of coffee and one of tea, that but a little over a year ago cost close to $50.

In another group was exactly the same thing, along with some 25 or more additional packages, all of which can now be bought for exactly the same money.

Just naturally it set me to thinking about how much more greenhouse your dollars will buy now than two years ago. Some of you think they haven't really come down much.

So let's take a house 60 feet wide and 300 feet long, equipped with ventilating, boiler heating and everything except benches.

For exactly the same money you can now get one 400 feet long. 100 more feet for no more money.

Of course your next question is, won't prices be lower yet? Frankly, it doesn't look very encouraging, considering that both lumber and steel have both started to go up.

Glass may be down a bit, but the variation of even so much as a dollar a box lower, on a house 60 x 100, would only save you $170.

By putting off building, you are apt to lose more on the other materials, than you might save on the glass. Think it over.

When ready to talk building, say when and where and we'll be there.

Cyclamen for Christmas

Many of the larger retailers, as well as growers, who specialize in Cyclamen who have seen the display of plants which we offer for Christmas sales, have highly complimented us on the quality of our stock.

One large grower, with a national reputation, made the statement that he never viewed so many excellent Cyclamen in one lot.

In order to eliminate high transportation costs, we have finished our Cyclamen in the smallest size pot which would insure a satisfactory growth. We can conscientiously say that our 6-inch plants will compare favorably with 7-inch offered by many other growers. Our plants are heavy in bloom with good foliage and in prime condition for holiday sales.

PRICES { 5-inch Cyclamen, $1.00 to $1.25 each
6-inch Cyclamen, 2.00 to 2.50 each
7-inch Cyclamen, 3.00 to 3.50 each

R O S E S

We will cut for holiday sales approximately 150,000 ROSES in best commercial varieties:

GRAFTED ROSES

FOR GREENHOUSE PLANTING

We began to graft roses the first week of this month and have started on orders already on our files. After these orders have been completed, we shall be ready to graft your requirements. Orders needed for delivery the last of February and early in March must be placed NOW if deliveries are to be prompt. We have our usual supply of Manetti from our usual sources of supply and at better prices than have prevailed for some years. This saving in Manetti costs will be reflected in our prices for plants.

Pilgrim and Crusader entail more losses of stock than any other varieties. On these two sorts our price will be $25.00 per 100; $240.00 per 1000.

Columbia
Mme. Butterfly
Milady

Ophelia
My Maryland
Premier

Double White Killarney
Mrs. Aaron Ward

are the best Roses of commerce. Our price for these varieties, grafted, will be $25.00 per 100; $220.00 per 1000.

Grafted Roses pay and the grafting of roses for the commercial trade is a big industry in itself here at Cromwell. We shall put 10,000 per day into the cases and the question is—when do you want yours?

OUTDOOR ROSES

We have available 50,000 home-grown Multiflora Japonica stock which is just right for grafting out-of-door sorts. We have, in addition to the varieties mentioned above:

Radiance
Jonkheer Mock

Red Radiance
Lady Alice Stanley
Los Angeles

Mrs. Charles Bell

and other good out-of-door roses. We can graft these for you for spring shipment on Multiflora Japonica or on Manetti, as you prefer, and deliver them as early as you want them after March 1, or when the ground opens and you are ready to plant. Our price for these sorts on either root stock from 2¼-inch pots will be $25.00 per 100; $220.00 per 1000.

BABY RAMBLERS

We have propagated, this fall, thousands of own-root Baby Ramblers:

Mrs. Cutbush
Triomphe Orleanais

Orleans
Edith Cavell
Erna Teschendorff

Jessie
Ellen Poulsen

These, for winter or spring delivery, from 2¼-inch pots, at $10.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1000.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

These are a big feature of our young plant department.

There has been no better new one in years than "White Surprise." It is a large, fine commercial white, ready to cut November 5 to 10. Rooted cuttings, for February and later, $2.00 per dozen; $15.00 per 100.

December Beauty
Rose Perfection

Sunbeam

are the best of the other new commercial, large-flowered sorts. Rooted cuttings, $5.00 per 100; $45.00 per 1000.

The Chadwick family, Golden Chadwick, Chadwick Supreme and Indian Summer, are the four finest varieties in existence for those who want late Mums and who can grow them well. We are always booked to the limit on these sorts in spite of the 20,000 stock plants of these varieties alone. Rooted Cuttings, from February until June, $5.00 per 100; $45.00 per 1000.

POMPON VARIETIES

We have seen the possibilities in these sorts and have followed the market very closely. Our own seedlings and the varieties selected and introduced by us have held to the top of the cut flower market for years and this season our seedlings have carried an average price on the market nearly 50% above the price of the named sorts of commerce. We planted 45,000 plants of seventy seedlings. Some will, naturally, be discarded, but we shall save 50 of these for another year's growing in quantity. Four of these have been named and will be offered to the trade. Hundreds of visiting florists have seen them and approve the selection. They have been widely exhibited and are in a class by themselves—the best four varieties for the commercial grower that we know:

New York
Louise Davenport
Sarah Townsend

make a succession of the bronze button type that will hold the market from November 1 to December 1. November Gold, the finest yellow of them all, is a strong-stemmed, upright grower that is equaled by no other variety. It flowers from November 1 to 15 and is a wonderful keeper, either cut or on the plant.

Rooted Cuttings of these four varieties, $15.00 per 100; $140.00 per 1000.

Our complete list will be published later, but these varieties mentioned are the ones that you certainly need. This is no year to grow poor varieties and no year in which to lessen production by planting poor plants.

A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.

Christmas Plants

Our stock of blooming and decorative plants is now in fine shape—strong, clean and vigorous. We feel confident that there is no better stock in the market today, and we know a great deal of stock now being offered is much inferior. We feel sure that we can please the most exacting buyer both in quality and price.

If stock is not wanted until later, give us your order, let us set it aside for you and ship to you when wanted. It costs no more and you can feel safe for the holidays.

Remember our central location and that our packing is free. A trial order will convince you of the value of our stock.

We are now booking orders at the following prices for shipment now or later:

This has been one of our specialties for over 20 years. In all our experience we have never seen a finer lot of plants. We are growing our stock in new houses. They are absolutely clean and perfect in every way and not to be compared with weakly, drawn stock offered at less money. We confidently feel that our four large houses containing 25,000 plants will not be enough. They have been pronounced by plant experts from all over the country as the finest stock ever grown.

CROTON LEAVES AND SPRAYS

Cut Croton Leaves and Sprays have been supplied by us in the past few years to some of the leading retail florists, who have featured them in mantel, table and funeral work. Cut Crotons will last in a cool place from three to four weeks. We can supply them every day in the year.

Very highly colored sprays, at $0.50 each; cut leaves, $5 per 100.
When you have orders for funeral or table work, "out of the ordinary," order Craig's Cut Crotons.

ENGLISH IVIES

Small leaf variety. Excellent for made up baskets or trellis work.

4-inch pots, 3 plants, $35 per 100.

150,000 NEPHROLEPIS

(In variety)

We are the largest growers of Nephrolepis Ferns in the country. In fact, we are headquarters for them.

Nephrolepis Norwood

The most beautiful form of Nephrolepis to date, graceful, compact and symmetrical, a vigorous, healthy grower. All growers are invited to inspect it at our Norwood Station greenhouses.

Strong Plants

TERMS: CASH WITH ORDER: Kindly send sufficient to cover the entire bill. We do not make shipments C. O. D. unless remittance has been made on account to guarantee acceptance. This does not apply to regular customers. REMITTANCES: Remittances should be made by money order or New York drafts. If money is sent, letter should be registered. All prices quoted in this list are strictly net. SHIPPING INSTRUCTIONS: Give your name, post office, county and state and the name of your nearest express office to which shipment is to be made. We have always made it prominent in our printed terms that our goods are sold F. O. B. cars at the point of shipment and are at the purchaser's risk while in transit. Because of the present unsettled conditions we wish to emphasize still further that we do not guarantee safe delivery. The ownership of all goods sold by us passes to the purchaser on delivery by us to the carrier, and the issuing of the receipt by the carrier ends our responsibility. Any claims for damage should be made promptly to the agent at the point of delivery. CORRESPONDENCE: We endeavor to answer all correspondence promptly, but owing to the pressure of business we ask that all requests be clearly and concisely stated. ERRORS: Keep a copy of your order. We aim to have our orders correctly filled. When we are at fault we shall make satisfactory correction.

PAYING A VISIT TO PARIS STORE

Despite American wariness of "entangling alliances" and the Chinese wall raised by the F. H. B., the interests of florists of this country more and more include their fellows in foreign lands. This article, by one of the leading florists of Paris, will promote this international trade amity.

By J. MARY.

They may also choose, if they wish, the box in which to send the flowers, or a container for them. The Parisian florist frequently goes to the home of his customer to decorate the latter's table for dinner parties, and also to decorate his residence for parties, musicals or dances. For funerals we are called upon to make many wreaths, crosses, pillows and sheaves.

Stock for the Retailer.

The retail florist of Paris does not grow his flowers, but is supplied by a great number of growers whose establishments are located in the immediate vicinity of the city of Paris and who each of them, for the greater part, specializes in the culture of one kind of flower, perhaps violets, perhaps orchids, roses, chrysanthemums, azaleas, or what not. We are supplied directly at the store by certain growers who do business on a large scale. For the others, the smaller growers, we have each morning a market of cut flowers. On Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays, we have also a market for flowering and foliage plants.

Each year we have, in the months of May and November, a flower exhibition where retail florists and growers may show their choicest products of the season. Our last exhibition, held in May in the grounds of the Jardin d'Acclimation in the Bois de Boulogne, was an exceedingly successful one and drew a great number of people, who admired the displays made by the leading members of the trade. In the center house of the conservatories were banked groups of flowering plants of every description, annuals, biennials and perennials. Another house was given to rose plants and hydrangeas. The former were trained in a wide variety of shapes and were greatly admired by the visitors. The palm house was also filled with roses and hydrangeas, as well as with rhododendrons.

Orchid Exhibit.

Still another house contained a great quantity of rose plants and a notable display of orchids. The orchid plants were placed between foliage plants of various sorts, with palms in the background, so that the blooms showed to the best advantage. A railing in front of the long table on which these were placed restrained the crowds from yielding to their natural inclination to handle the delicate flowers. Individual retail florists made displays calculated to show

IN PARIS the foreigner or the Frenchman who wishes to purchase flowers finds a great number of shops where natural flowers are sold, about 600 altogether. However, it is necessary to include only a much smaller number if one wishes to count only those where one finds a large supply of plants in pots, cut flowers and artistic floral arrangements.

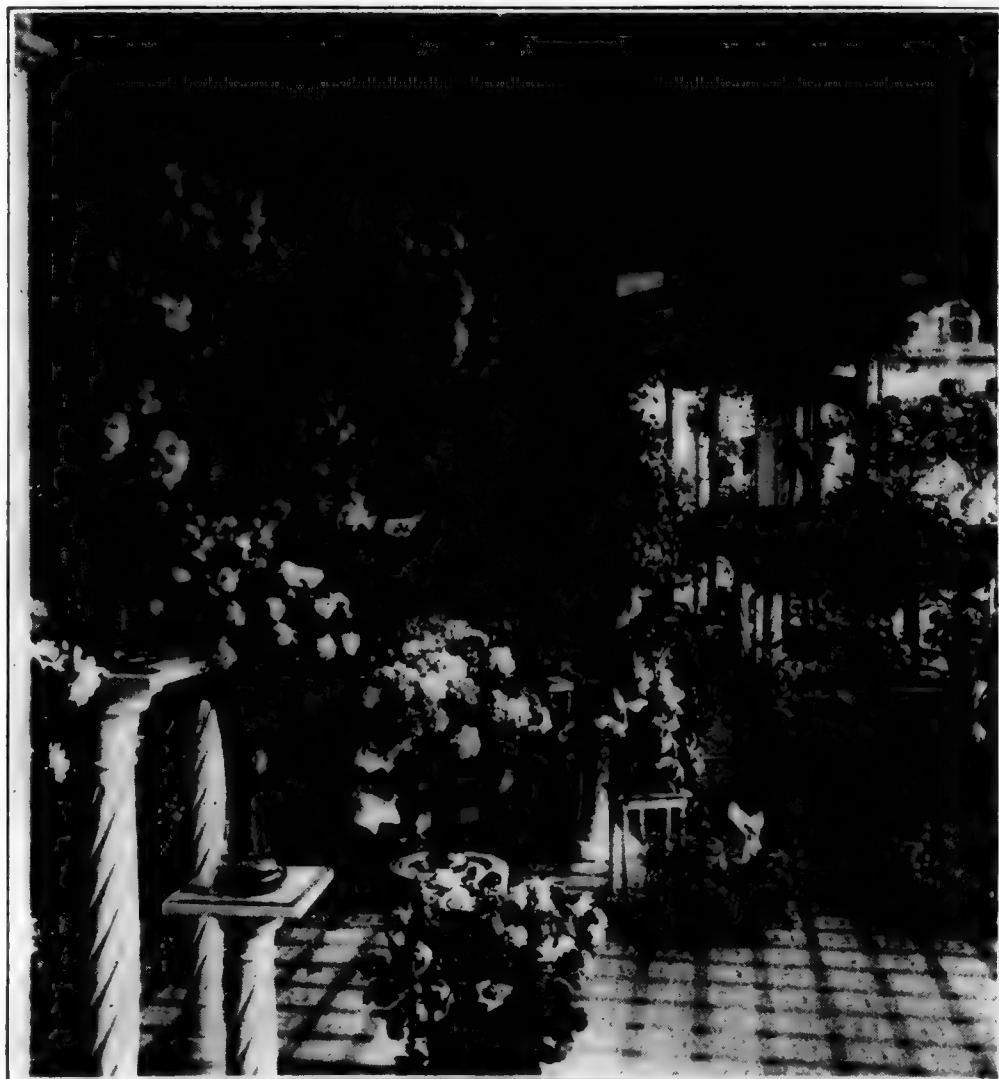

The people who buy flowers in Paris, a most cosmopolitan city, have for the most part visited all the principal cities of the world and they must have the best. So one finds that in Paris the art of the florists represents the highest taste.

In our stores customers find each day a complete variety of cut flowers, including roses, violets, orchids, dahlias, chrysanthemums, lilies, gladioli, gardenias, lilies of the valley and many others. They find, in pot plants, cyclamens, Azalea indica and Azalea mollis, rhododendrons, hydrangeas, chrysanthemums, lilies, crotons, caladiums and others, according to the season.

Varied Stock.

Part of these flowers are sold simply wrapped up in paper. However, the greater part of the plants and flowers which we receive each day we make up in beautiful baskets and other arrangements, in which ferns and ribbons agreeably decorate the flowers.

When customers come into our stores, as they often do, they are able to make their choice from among many baskets made in advance, according to the price they wish to pay and their individual tastes.

Despite American wariness of "entangling alliances" and the Chinese wall raised by the F. H. B., the interests of florists of this country more and more include their fellows in foreign lands. This article, by one of the leading florists of Paris, will promote this international trade amity.

By J. MARY.

IN PARIS the foreigner or the Frenchman who wishes to purchase flowers finds a great number of shops where natural flowers are sold, about 600 altogether. However, it is necessary to include only a much smaller number if one wishes to count only those where one finds a large supply of plants in pots, cut flowers and artistic floral arrangements.

The people who buy flowers in Paris, a most cosmopolitan city, have for the most part visited all the principal cities of the world and they must have the best. So one finds that in Paris the art of the florists represents the highest taste.

In our stores customers find each day a complete variety of cut flowers, including roses, violets, orchids, dahlias, chrysanthemums, lilies, gladioli, gardenias, lilies of the valley and many others. They find, in pot plants, cyclamens, Azalea indica and Azalea mollis, rhododendrons, hydrangeas, chrysanthemums, lilies, crotons, caladiums and others, according to the season.

Varied Stock.

Part of these flowers are sold simply wrapped up in paper. However, the greater part of the plants and flowers which we receive each day we make up in beautiful baskets and other arrangements, in which ferns and ribbons agreeably decorate the flowers.

When customers come into our stores, as they often do, they are able to make their choice from among many baskets made in advance, according to the price they wish to pay and their individual tastes.

They may also choose, if they wish, the box in which to send the flowers, or a container for them. The Parisian florist frequently goes to the home of his customer to decorate the latter's table for dinner parties, and also to decorate his residence for parties, musicals or dances. For funerals we are called upon to make many wreaths, crosses, pillows and sheaves.

Stock for the Retailer.

The retail florist of Paris does not grow his flowers, but is supplied by a great number of growers whose establishments are located in the immediate vicinity of the city of Paris and who each of them, for the greater part, specializes in the culture of one kind of flower, perhaps violets, perhaps orchids, roses, chrysanthemums, azaleas, or what not. We are supplied directly at the store by certain growers who do business on a large scale. For the others, the smaller growers, we have each morning a market of cut flowers. On Tuesdays, Wednesdays, Fridays and Saturdays, we have also a market for flowering and foliage plants.

Each year we have, in the months of May and November, a flower exhibition where retail florists and growers may show their choicest products of the season. Our last exhibition, held in May in the grounds of the Jardin d'Acclimation in the Bois de Boulogne, was an exceedingly successful one and drew a great number of people, who admired the displays made by the leading members of the trade.

In the center house of the conservatories were banked groups of flowering plants of every description, annuals, biennials and perennials. Another house was given to rose plants and hydrangeas. The former were trained in a wide variety of shapes and were greatly admired by the visitors. The palm house was also filled with roses and hydrangeas, as well as with rhododendrons.

Orchid Exhibit.

Still another house contained a great quantity of rose plants and a notable display of orchids. The orchid plants were placed between foliage plants of various sorts, with palms in the background, so that the blooms showed to the best advantage. A railing in front of the long table on which these were placed restrained the crowds from yielding to their natural inclination to handle the delicate flowers. Individual retail florists made displays calculated to show their artistic ability at its best. Vases, baskets and sprays included the use of orchids, roses, pansies, callas, lilies, hydrangeas, carnations and many other sorts of flowers. So numerous and extensive were the displays that the space to show them was all too small. The statuary and the artistic oriental drapes, as well as the great palms which regularly occupy these conservatories, assisted materially in making the exhibition the great attraction to the public that it was.

Organizations.

The florists of Paris are members of an organization, the officers of which meet every two weeks. Twice a year a general meeting of all the members is held.

There is also at Paris an organization of all who are concerned with the growing of flowers, which bears the name of Société Nationale d'Horticulture de France, or the Society of Horticulture of France. This society always arranges for our exhibitions, where everyone may come and present his best specimens of plants and flowers and the latest introductions.

The views of my store which I am sending you will, I hope, give readers of The Review who have not visited Paris an idea of what our flower stores are like. In the right of the photograph which shows the building which houses our store, may be seen the Arch of Triumph, in the Place d'Etoile, famous the world over. On the awning may be seen flowers in three languages: "Fleurs, Flowers, Blumen." Another view shows our store front. To the left is the service door. The main entrance is that to the right, on which appear the words, "English Spoken." The sign, between these two, states that the firm was established in 1866 and gives its old-fashioned title, "At the White Lilac." Below this it reads, "Orchids, roses, violets. Table decorations. Gifts for weddings. Wreaths. Deliveries to the provinces and foreign countries." The view of the interior of the store will show what a customer has before him from which to make a selection when he comes into a flower store in Paris.

RESOURCEFUL ADVERTISING.

The value of resourceful advertising cannot be overestimated nor can its real effects be appreciated until they make their force felt upon the credit side of the profit and loss statement. H. W. Allersma, at Grand Rapids, Mich., has now in his possession a piece of advertising copy which gives his business a prestige and distinction peculiar in its character to itself. The possession of this little piece of copy was made possible by and was the direct result of Mr. Allersma's thoughtfulness November 4, President Harding's birthday. On that day he made use of the florists' telegraph service and sent Mr. Harding a bouquet of flowers in behalf of the customers of the H. W. Allersma Greenhouses. An autographed letter from the White House was received by Mr. Allersma in acknowledgment of the floral tribute sent, which reads as follows: "My dear Mr. Allersma: Just a line to thank you for your remembrance of my birthday anniversary. It was very pleasing to me. Very truly yours, Warren G. Harding."

Mr. Allersma is now running an advertisement in the Grand Rapids press, which includes the autographed letter from the White House. This piece of copy reads as follows:

"President Harding Enjoys Our Service! This autograph letter is an acknowledgment of a floral tribute sent in behalf of our customers to President Harding in honor of his recent birthday anniversary. This 'ship by wire' service is only one feature of our progressive business policy which has forced us to enlarge our greenhouses to take care of our long list of new customers. Give us an order today for cut flowers, ferns or potted plants and be convinced that you've found a better place to buy flowers."

MAKING MASONIC EMBLEMS.

Approved Designs and Colors.

Of course, the Masons do have a great many secrets. But they are willing to disclose to everyone the nature and colors of the designs which are the approved emblems of the various phases of the Masonic order. And that is just the part of Masonry that interests florists. Each and every division of the Masonic brotherhood has a separate and distinct emblem, which florists are often called upon to reproduce in a floral piece.

Unless the florist is familiar with the desired emblem, he is facing a problem when called upon to make up the display. Perhaps a slight understanding of the meaning of that emblem would help him to produce a more appropriate floral piece. If the florist is a Mason, he knows the connection of the cherished secrets with the emblems. If he is not, this article is to tell him a few of the things about them that he is allowed to know.

The Masonic order is composed of distinct steps, called degrees. Three degrees are necessary to be an accredited Mason and entitle the member to be in the fold of what is popularly called the Blue Lodge. The degrees following the third may be taken by either of two routes, the Scottish Rite or the so-called York Rite. The Scottish Rite (the Consistory) consists of the degrees from the fourth to the thirty-second. The York Rite is composed of the Royal Arch Chapters, the Councils and the Commanderies of Knights Templar. The thirty-third degree is an honorary degree conferred by the Supreme Council of the Scottish Rite.

More Orders.

The order of the Mystic Shrine really has no technical connection with the Masonic rites. However, as an offspring of Masonic fraternalism, it is, practically, as much a part of the Masonic order as any of the conferred degrees. The Shrine is a body instituted for social purposes and is composed of only the men who have gone through either the Consistory or the Commandery. The order of the Grotto is conducted on the same principle as the Shrine, except that it is necessary to have only the first three degrees in order to be admitted. The Eastern Star is composed of female relatives of Masons.

These are only the broad outlines of the most common phases, the emblems of which florists are most likely to be called upon to reproduce. Knowing these few facts may enable the florist who knows nothing more about Masonry to talk intelligently to some customer who desires a floral piece, but does not know just the appropriate design. The designs for these various divisions are shown in connection with this article. In most of these emblems there is no fast and set rule restricting designs and colors which florists must follow. There is a latitude allowed which will enable the artists to use judgment in making up a simple and attractive design.

The Square and Compasses.

The emblem of the Blue Lodge is the crossed square and compasses, with the letter "G" in the center. As this is intended to represent steel instruments, probably white would best reproduce the desired effect. There is no ruling as to the required colors; so each florist may use his ingenuity to make it an attractive piece. However, as it is the emblem of the Blue Lodge, a touch of blue somewhere on the design would be appropriate. The letter "G," the square, the compasses, the background or even the whole design might be made of blue flowers, if obtainable. There is no standard rule to follow. Only one thing is necessary to watch; that is, that the compasses are over the square. If the legs of the compasses are behind the sides of the square, the design is wrong.

The emblem of the Royal Arch Chapters is a keystone, with a circle containing the letters "H T W S S T K S," with the letter "H" always at the top of the circle. The keystone design shown in the illustration may be varied. There is another common way of making up this emblem; that of substituting a notched top for the curved top. There is no required color, although white is generally used. With this emblem, too, each florist may use his own ideas, the only necessary points being to get in the keystone, with the circle and letters.

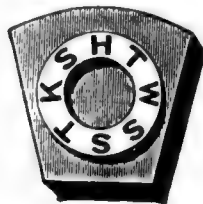

The emblem of the Consistory is the double-headed eagle, holding in its claws a sword and a ribbon either with the words, "Deus Meumque Jus," which is the motto of the thirty-third degree, or "Spes Mea in Deo Est," the motto of the thirty-second degree. However, the ribbon and the words may be omitted. Here, too, the florist has a chance to use a broad range of colors. He may use any colors he chooses. Sometimes the number of the degree is required by an insistent customer, as the thirty-third or the thirty-second. In this case, the number may be placed wherever the florist desires. Sometimes it is placed in a triangle over the eagle's head and sometimes in its body.

Graceful Simplicity.

One of the main points in making this design, as in making all of the designs, is to get away as much as possible from anything fancy or complicated. The simpler the florist makes the design, the easier it is to put it out and the more attractive the finished product will be. An eagle is a hard thing to reproduce, and each added frill and decoration will make it that much more difficult, and make the finished eagle that much more difficult to recognize as an eagle. So simplicity as well as attractiveness must be kept in mind when making up these designs.

The crown and cross, the emblem of the Commandery, or Knights Templar, is one place where a required color is necessary. The cross should be in red. The crown is intended to be of gold, so yellow would be appropriate, if it is possible to obtain good yellow flowers. The words, "In Hoc Signo Vinces," should be placed in the floral design with the cross and crown, but are not absolutely essential.

The Mystic Shrine.

The Shriners' emblem represents a scimitar, from which is hung two tiger's claws in the shape of a crescent. The two claws are connected by a keystone carrying a sphinx's head. From the keystone is hung a star. There is no required color scheme for this emblem. As it represents tiger's claws, white or cream-colored blooms could be used to good effect for that part of the design. The scimitar is of steel, so white would be appropriate for that portion. The star might be of yellow blooms, to represent gold. However, any color scheme which appeals to the florist is allowable. The sphinx's head, of course, will be extremely difficult to reproduce, so the keystone, with a mixture of any sort of flowers, will be amply sufficient for that part of the emblem. The word "India" on the design in the illustration is superfluous in a floral piece, as it is the name given to a body of Shriners in a particular locality. It is unnecessary.

The Eastern Star.

The star in the illustration is the emblem of the Eastern Star. Colors are necessary in this design. Each point of the star is of a specified color. The five colors are blue, yellow, white, green and red, arranged around the points of the star in the order named. The star should always be resting on the white point. This design is often made with two of the star's points set on a base. This is not the accepted design; the white point should always support the star. The pentagon forms the middle of the star. No figures or words are necessary on this design, just the pentagon, with the five colored points of the star. The letters "F A T A L" may be used and placed anywhere in the design. They may be placed one in each point of the star, starting with the letter "F" in the blue point. They may be placed along each side of the pentagon, with the letter "F" at the top of the figure.

There are a great many other designs, one for that particular division of Masons in each town, one for each degree in the consistory, etc., but the emblems given here are the most common, and the others will be called for so rarely that few florists will ever have occasion to reproduce them. Hence space is not taken to describe them here.

BUSINESS THROUGH HOTELS.

Spending Thanksgiving time in a hotel is conducive to thoughts of home and the home-folks. Thanksgiving time is home-time. And every person away from home wants those at home to know he is mindful of them. Goodman & Knudson, of Kemble's Flowers, Mason City, Ia., appreciating the foregoing, planned to suggest a way this year for those at hotels to get in touch with home. Accordingly they placed the following invitation in every room in every hotel at Mason City:

Thursday is Thanksgiving day. It is one day on which we are pleased to gather with friends and loved ones to cement more closely the ties that bind.

But to you who are not permitted to be at home on this occasion this fellowship is not possible and, no doubt, those at home miss you as much as you miss them.

We want to help you "fill the gap" that lies between you and your loved ones by sending them a message that will cheer them and yourself. You can do this with a message of flowers as in no other way.

Through the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association, of which we are members, we can arrange to have your flower orders delivered anywhere in this country, by telegraph, within a few hours.

Our store at 108 North Federal avenue—just across the park—will be open until 12 m. Thursday for the accommodation of our patrons and we trust that we may be able to serve you along with the rest.

Wishing you and yours a thankful Thanksgiving, we are

Yours very truly,
Goodman & Knudson.

Several orders were directly traceable to these cards, states Frank C. Goodman. Though the number was not large, it is to be remembered that neither is Thanksgiving one of the heaviest flower days. Mr. Goodman thinks that if some such cards were got out by the F. T. D. or S. A. F., through their publicity bureaus, so that florists could purchase them at low cost in quantities, this would be an effective and profitable form of sales production.

WHERE DISTANCES ARE LONG.

In the stretches of the mountainous northwest, florists are few and far between. In that district, telegraph delivery service is not what it is in the thickly populated states, because there are few florists to whom one may telegraph an order. So, in place of the telegraph company, the express company and the postal service are called upon to carry the flowers to distant towns.

For that reason the Butte Floral Co., at Butte, Mont., found it opportune to cooperate with the American Railway Express Co. in its "Perfect Package Month," held during November. The firm made a striking window display by placing at the back one of the big posters which the American Railway Express Co. used in all cities of the country, bearing the slogan, "Make this city's record 100 per cent," and symbolizing freight and express shipments by locomotives drawing trains and expressmen busy at a station platform. About the window were packages done up in the form in which the Butte Floral Co. sends flowers to towns in that state where there are no florists. Slogan cards at either side of the window emphasized the message of the display. One of them bore this statement, "The Butte Floral Co. specializes in good packing. They deliver their flowers to towns a thousand miles from Butte." Bunches of chrysanthemums and carnations, palms and ferns, together with branches of oak leaves, gave the window an appropriate November setting.

Concerning the express company's campaign and the florists' participation in it, Philo H. King, secretary-treasurer of the Butte Floral Co., says:

"The 'perfect package' campaign put on by the American Railway Express Co. should interest every individual, we believe, as the losses every year due to improper marking and packing of packages amounts to millions of dollars, and naturally this is a heavy burden, as the final result is that the public pays the bill.

"If every florist will do all he can to educate the public in marking and packing shipments, we believe it will not only prove of great benefit to the public, but to the florists' business as well."

BOSTON RETAILERS PROTEST.

In protest against the selling at retail at the wholesale markets, the following resolutions were passed at the last meeting of the New England Retail Florists' Association:

Whereas the Boston wholesale markets are opened to the public for retailing flowers;

Whereas said action has been duly authorized by the directors of said markets;

Whereas said action is ruinous to the retail flower trade of New England and a menace to the entire structure commercializing flowers, both morally and financially,

Resolved, therefore, that the New England Retail Florists' Association collectively, and its members individually, protest such action of directors of said markets as against the principles of justice and against all interests of the flower business represented by growers, wholesalers and retailers;

Resolved, therefore, that a committee be empowered to represent this organization, whose members pledge full support to take immediate action to remove this menace.

The committee drafting the resolution and signing it, in addition to the officers of the association, was composed of John O'Brien, chairman; William Penn, Carl Becker, Charles E. Boyle and Sydney Hoffman.

FOOTBALL IN A WINDOW.

Max Zaller, of the Spanner Flower Shop, Toledo, O., knows the value of hitching his business to the stars. This year he selected the football stars, with great advertising results. Scott and Waite are two high schools in his city and every year the rival teams clash. On the day of the battle the public is alive with football fever. Mr. Zaller capitalized the city-wide interest in the clash by arranging a window rife with the enthusiasm of the day.

It was a football window aimed at the footballites. In the center was an exact reproduction of a gridiron, with chalk marks and small figures in exact formation. On the sidelines sat and stood tiny spectators in the bleachers. High school pennants added life to the scene, and colorful mums in the background added the finishing touches and suggested the appropriateness of buying mums. This window made a touchdown; to such an extent that the Blade weekly photo news showed a view of the display at the Princess theater—potent advertising.

HIRSCH'S ADVICE.

To bring his store to the notice of South side patrons, Henry M. Hirsch, 833 East Forty-sixth street, Chicago, is sending out post cards to a selected mailing list. His latest message, headed "December," reads as follows:

"Oh, Dan Cupid, tell me, I pray,
Why don't you shoot an arrow my way?
Another year has almost passed
And still a bachelor I am classed."

Dan Cupid smiled and said, "Listen to me,
The girl worth while must be won, you see,
So go to Hirsch and try his powers;
He'll win her for you, if you "Say It with Flowers."

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

The Market.

There was a large cut of chrysanthemums in the market Thanksgiving, more than in previous years. There is still a large cut of late varieties and also pompons coming in. There has been a large supply of carnations, roses and Paper Whites in the market, which have been materially affected by the late supply of chrysanthemums. But as soon as the chrysanthemums are out of the market, no doubt prices will advance on the other varieties of stock.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club held its monthly meeting Thursday, December 1, at Charles Menger's establishment. Charles Menger erected a new store, with greenhouse in connection, during the summer months, which was ready for the opening in time for the florists' December meeting. The new store is well fitted up. It is finished in white tiling and white enameled fixtures. The workroom is conveniently located in the rear of the store. Also the conservatory faces the street. This makes a fine showing, and is attractive also from the outside. The greenhouses are well stocked with plants and the new store should attract considerable trade. The meeting was well attended and refreshments were served. There was also the election of officers. Alfred Locker, of the A. Locker & Sons Co., Wauwatosa, Wis., was elected president; Charles Menger, vice-president; James Livingston, treasurer, and Eugene Oestreicher, secretary. Two trustees were elected for a period of two or three years—Charles Menger, Sr., and A. Reinhardt. The new president is one of our young and active members, and the club should have a prosperous year. The next meeting will be held at the new establishment of the Holton & Hunkel Co.

The Holton & Hunkel Co. moved into its new establishment December 1. This store is well equipped and conveniently arranged to handle the business. The firm has installed a new ice machine, doing away with the old-fashioned ice-box. The new location is on the corner of Milwaukee and Oneida streets.

There was no venison lunch served this fall, as C. C. Pollworth was unable to make his annual trip to the woods.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Plant Registration.

Public notice is hereby given that the Julius Roehrs Co., of Rutherford, N. J., offers for registration the plants described below. Any person objecting to the registration of these plants or to the use of the proposed names is requested to communicate with the undersigned at once. Failing to receive objection to the registration, the same will be made three weeks from date of December 2, 1921:

Cattleya Memoria Roehrs-Lowe.—Parentage: Cattleya Prince Edward x Cattleya aurea; description: Sepals and petals, pale ocher salmon; lip, bright aster purple crested white; throat, deep brown veined golden yellow; habit, strong grower, single leaf, broad.

Laeliocattleya Mount Brilliant.—Parentage: L. C. Luminosa x L. C. Golden Oriole; description: Sepals and petals, citron yellow; lip, Scofield purple, edge fringed white; throat, striped golden yellow; habit, strong grower, single leaf long and thin.

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

Plant Registration.

The following plant registrations have been reported:

Betty Jane; parentage, White Wonder x Mrs. C. W. Ward; color, Ward pink; size, three and one-fourth inches and up; early, free and continuous bloomer; easy to propagate and grow; few splits; best we ever had in this class; registered by A. Jablonsky, Olivette, Mo.

Olivette; parentage, White Enchantress x Beacon; color, white, with pink stripes and markings; size, three and one-fourth inches and over; Beacon habit, but no splits; not quite so early, but continuous bloomer throughout the season; best we ever had in this class; grows well in the field; registered by A. Jablonsky, Olivette, Mo.

A. F. J. Baur, Sec'y.

FLORISTS' HAIL ASSOCIATION.

The Florists' Hail Association will levy its thirty-fourth assessment January 1, 1922. This assessment will be due February 1. Since the annual meeting of the association, last August, approximately 1,000,000 square feet of additional glass has been insured.

quantity grown and perhaps a little ahead in quality."

The following correction of this statement is made by Mr. Butterworth: "In regard to the comparative sizes of the orchid ranges of the Dale Estate and of Thomas Young, Jr., the comparison is corrected and amplified as follows:

DALE ESTATE.

Ten houses, 25x115 feet; two houses, 25x125 feet; containing 65,000 plants.

THOMAS YOUNG, JR.

Four houses, 25 and 30x500 feet; nine houses, 15 and 25x250 feet.

"This places the Young range ahead of the Dale Estate for quantity."

MAKING THAT SUGGESTION.

How often the florists' salesmen hear these words repeated, "Oh, something distinctive, expressive and suggestive of this or that thought, or appropriate for this or that occasion"! These words are the salesman's opportunity; they reveal a mind which is inviting suggestions. It is often easy to offer suggestions, but to offer the thing most fitting for the occasion or demanded by the situation, and thereby render a service which builds business, is not a trick of the mind, but a science of the trade. The human mind is more susceptible to sight than it is to sound; therefore, the easiest and most satisfactory method of bringing your suggestions before your prospective customer is to place before him an illustration of the vision in your own trained and informed mind. Such pictures give the untrained and uninformed mind a chance to function after knowing the facts, permitting it to make a more rapid and more satisfactory decision. Then, too, the customer can see just how the work is going to look and how much it will cost him before he makes an agreement, thus eliminating the disagreeable surprise of having to pay a bill larger than that which he had anticipated. The illustration on page 37 shows a design frequently made, a horseshoe, expressive of success, made by Otto Kastle, 6416 South Halsted street, Chicago, photographed just before it was delivered to the purchaser. Some florists have a collection of photographs of their own work to show customers; others prefer to use a volume of illustrations specially prepared for that purpose.

GROWING CHRISTMAS CACTI.

I have a fine, big Christmas cactus plant, full of buds and ready to bloom. For the care of this cactus I should like to get full cultural directions—how to feed, the best soil to use, the time required for resting, etc. Would it be all right to put the plant under the bench when the resting stage is at hand? Does the plant require any water? What is the best time for potting the cuttings?

G. H.—Ill.

Contrary to general belief, epiphyllums, or zygocacti, as botanists now class most of them, in common with other cacti, must not be rested severely under glass. Outdoors they will stand prolonged droughts, but it is different under artificial conditions. In winter keep epiphyllums moderately, but not dusty, dry. They are commonly called Christmas cacti and lobster cacti and are useful, pretty and satisfactory flowering plants, doing particularly well un-

OPEN LETTERS from READERS

IS THIS AN INFRINGEMENT?

While some florists may look upon the slogan adopted by jewelers, "Gifts that Last," as directed against flowers, I do not think that the jewelers had any intention or thought of discrediting the use of flowers as gifts. I believe, too, that most of the florists will approve of it as fair competition in advertising, which will do our business no harm.

But this kind of advertising does hurt: "Say It with Furniture—Flowers Die!" This advertisement was placed conspicuously in the display window of a retail furniture store downtown. The sign measured about 8x16 inches, with 2-inch lettering. I consider this not only an encroachment upon the slogan of the florists, but a trespass upon honest business methods. Such advertising as this, if used by other firms, will not only cause the money already spent on our slogan to have been disbursed in vain, but will destroy the flower trade as well.

I am not a retailer, but a grower for the trade; yet what hurts the retailer, hurts me. Such matters as this are distasteful, to say the least, and I think they should be nipped in the bud.

The name and address of the furniture store displaying this piece of advertising is the Boyer-Sheridan Co., 211 South Second street, Evansville, Ind. I hope this notice will come to the attention of the officers of the S. A. F., in order that this organization can take such action as its officers see fit. I suggest that a letter be sent to the above firm, explaining to its directors the injury such advertising will do to our business. The owners of this store may not be entirely to blame. It may be the thoughtlessness of a display card writer or advertising man. In either case, however, I hope that this variety of advertising does not spread.

A "MUM POISONING" CURE.

I am enclosing a formula which has proved beneficial in many skin trouble cases, most pharmacists being conversant with the prescription. Possibly this one may prove to be the right panacea for "mum poisoning," as mentioned in The Review for November 17. The formula is as follows: Calamine, one-half ounce; zinc oxide, one-half ounce; glycerine, one ounce; carbolic acid, thirty drops; lime water, four ounces, and rose water, enough to make eight ounces.

COAL ASHES O. K.

As I had glass to clean, I tried the coal ashes as recommended on page 32 of The Review for November 10 and I want to say that it is fine. It did a good job and certainly it is sufficiently inexpensive. I hope that others will try it.

LEADING ORCHID GROWER.

In the digest of the address of George W. Butterworth, Framingham, Mass., given before the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, November 15, which appeared in the November 24 issue of The Review, Mr. Butterworth was quoted as making the following statement: "I should say the place of Thomas Young, at Boundbrook, N. J., stands second to the Dale Estate in der the arid conditions of the average American home.

Propagation may be effected by seeds, cuttings and grafts. Epiphyllum truncatum roots easily in sand if given some bottom heat and if care is used not to water too much. Many years ago I was taught how well it did grafted on another cactus of a climbing nature named Pereskia aculeata, which goes under a variety of common names, such as Barbados gooseberry, lemon vine and blade apple, and charming effects were and can still be produced in a conservatory by grafting Epiphyllum truncatum at intervals and making a veritable arch or arborway of it.

Grafting should be done in late winter and the grafts can be tied in place with a piece of raffia and gently sprayed on clear days until they take. Of course, pereskias can be grown to almost any length or height. Standard epiphyllums are useful and this stock proves useful in growing the necessary stem. These epiphyllums succeed well in a sunny greenhouse and a temperature of 40 to 45 degrees at night suffices for them.

TWO SORTS OF ADVERTISING.

There is an old adage, "Circumstances alter cases." An example may be presented in the illustration of the store exterior on this page. No sign, usually deemed essential, blazons forth the fact that this building houses a flower store. To one who views only the picture there is little indication of what is sold here. In actual life, however, there are modest brass plates on each side of the entrance, which tell that this is the home of the firm of C. F. Baker & Son. And four good-sized display windows give ample view of the large stock of flowers inside.

In view of the age of this firm and its high prestige in Utica, N. Y., the signs that usually advertise a flower store are not felt to be needed by C. F. Baker & Son. Regarding this subject, Frank J. Baker says:

"This is an old, established place, forty years in one location, having been rebuilt several times. The original structure had no store, simply greenhouses. The store stands by itself in a residential part of the city and is really the only business establishment of any character in the vicinity.

"We have used as an advertising slogan, 'Over to Baker's,' describing the location accurately, and have always felt that no sign was needed across the front of the building. There are brass plates on either side of the door. The windows, being kept gay with plants and flowers, have always been sign enough that a 'florist there did dwell.' The old saying that people would make a beaten path to your door, if you offered an article of superior merit, would seem to have been exemplified in our case.

"Again referring to signs, it seems to us that the signs of the times would indicate the best business that florists as a whole have ever enjoyed. The business for years, as we know, has been good, but the future is even better, and that is due to the advertising which has been done."

The new store, two views of which are shown, is the latest change for the better with a firm that for forty-five years has been active, both as growers and retailers of cut flowers and plants of all descriptions. Located in the heart of the city, with twelve up-to-date greenhouses, the firm uses the products of many more, being a large buyer in the markets at both New York and Boston. Many of the older men in the business will remember when this firm was noted for the thousands of small ferns it shipped to all parts of the country. The cut flower end of the business long since crowded out all other interests and today, with most modern equipment, Mr. Baker predicts that the opportunity to do more and greater business is better than at any time in all the firm's experience.

SCALE-TRoubLED PALMS.

I have sent a palm leaf which is covered with some kind of scale unknown to me. Will you let me know what the trouble is and suggest a remedy?

E. C. L.—Minn.

This is the circular scale, also known as the black palm scale, an insect that spreads rapidly and does much injury to the foliage. The best way to check this trouble would be to hand-clean the palms first, using either a wad of cheesecloth or a sponge to rub off the insects from both sides of the leaves and also from the stems; then give the plants a dip in a solution consisting of three-fourths ounce of whale-oil soap and one ounce of some good nicotine preparation to one pail of water. If the cleaning is thoroughly done and the dipping repeated at intervals of one month, the scale may be controlled.

W. H. T.

MITE ON CYCLAMENS.

I received your reply about my cyclamens, in which you say that the pest is unmistakably mite. I thought mite always affected the bloom as well as the leaves. There has not been a bad bloom in my whole batch. Good, large, salable plants, with eight or ten flowers, have only some of the leaves affected. I should like to know whether mite does affect the leaves sometimes and not the flower.

H. W. J.—Ind.

The flowers on the plant received were shriveled badly and I could not determine whether mite had affected them or not. It usually does affect the flowers in some measure, but not always. I still am of the opinion that you have had cyclamen mite on your plants. An attack of thrips would utterly disfigure the flowers. This sometimes raises havoc with cyclamens, but it cannot be your trouble.

DON'T USE INVENTORY

GROWERS' INCOME TAX.

Inventory Not Needed.

Since the inception of the federal income tax one of the questions most frequently raised by florists and nurserymen is whether the use of an inventory is necessary. In an article covering this subject, prepared after consultation with income tax officials at Washington, it was definitely stated in The Review of February 10, 1921, that an inventory was not needed. It was explained at that time that the status of those who grow plants under glass or trees, shrubs and plants in nurseries is looked upon as similar to that of the farmer, a generic classification used in a broad way in the income tax regulations.

But the question which subsequently occurred with frequency was whether the florist or nurseryman who had heretofore included an inventory with his tax return might change his method. Regarding the method of computing income, section 212b of the revenue act of 1918, which appears in the same form in the same section of the revenue act of 1921 just passed, says:

The net income shall be computed upon the basis of the taxpayer's annual income accounting period in accordance with the method of accounting regularly employed in keeping books of such taxpayer; that if no such method of accounting has been so employed, or if the method employed does not clearly reflect the income, the computation shall be made upon such basis and in such manner as in the opinion of the commissioner does clearly reflect the income.

Regarding inventories, section 203, which is exactly the same in the new and old laws, reads as follows:

That whenever, in the opinion of the commissioner, the use of inventories is necessary in order clearly to determine the income of any taxpayer, inventories shall be taken by such taxpayer upon such basis as the commissioner, with the approval of the secretary, may prescribe as conforming as nearly as may be to the best accounting practice in the trade or business and as most clearly reflecting the income.

It is, therefore, left to the discretion of the commissioner of internal revenue to demand inventories if he believes the business is such that the true net income can only be determined by the use of an inventory. Although the commissioner has issued, from time to time, numerous regulations, rulings and opinions regarding inventories and affecting different industries, it was not until the California Association of Nurserymen placed the matter before the commissioner, through attorneys, that a ruling specifically covering the nursery industry and florists was made.

Two Methods of Accounting.

The commissioner had, however, supplied a statement explanatory of what he considered the proper accounting methods. Before quoting this it may be stated that two principal methods are recognized, that of cash basis and that of accrual basis. If income is not considered until it is received in money, and expenses are not considered until paid, the accounting system is said to be upon a cash basis. When income is taken into consideration when earned, even though it has not been paid in cash, and expenses are considered when they are incurred, whether paid or not, the accounting is said to be on the accrual basis.

Generally the courts have held that the cash basis clearly reflects the income. Congress, however, considered that the cash basis is not always the test, and gave power to the commissioner to require the use of a different method whenever he considered it necessary. The commissioner has taken into consideration the difficulty of applying an arbitrary method of accounting for all taxpayers, and on this point he has issued rulings, in regulation 45, article 24, reading as follows:

It is recognized that no uniform method of accounting can be prescribed for all taxpayers, and the law contemplates that each taxpayer shall adopt such forms and systems of accounting as are, in his judgment, best suited to his purpose. Each taxpayer is required by law to make a return of his true income. He must, therefore, maintain such accounting records as will enable him to do so. Among the essentials are the following:

(1) In all cases in which the production, purchase, or sale of merchandise of any kind is an income-producing factor, inventories of the merchandise on hand (including finished goods, work in process, raw material and supplies) should be taken at the beginning and end of the year and used in computing the net income of the year.

Official

(2) Expenditures made during the year should be properly classified as between capital and income; that is to say, that expenditures for items of plant, equipment, etc., which have a useful life extending substantially beyond the year, should be charged to a capital account and not to an expense account; and

(3) In any case in which the cost of capital assets is being recovered through deductions for wear and tear, depletion or obsolescence an expenditure (other than ordinary repairs) made to restore the property or prolong its useful life should be charged against the property account or the appropriate reserve and not against current expenses.

Either the cash basis or the accrual basis may be used by those engaged in agricultural industries, but more generally the first has been used, with the commissioner's sanction, because there is difficulty in correctly computing the value of a crop in process of growing. It may turn out splendidly or it may prove a failure.

Before The Review published the article on florists' income tax procedure, many of them had used the inventory merely because the crops in their greenhouses seemed to be merchandise on hand. After The Review had presented the commissioner's attitude in the matter the question arose whether a florist might change from one method to the other, from the accrual basis to the cash basis, and cease filling out the inventory blank. Florists and nurserymen found in many cases that they had paid the government more on the accrual basis than they would have paid on the cash basis, without an inventory. The California Association of Nurserymen put the question before a San Francisco attorney, "May nurserymen who have been reporting inventories discontinue that method and make income tax returns on the basis of receipts and disbursements?" The attorney's opinion, which has just been published in a bulletin of the association, after referring to the same articles of the tax law and regulations as are quoted above, stated that while nurserymen who were not using an inventory might safely continue to do without it, those nurserymen who had heretofore used inventories should obtain permission from the commissioner before changing their method.

Here Is the Ruling We Want.

At the request of Roy F. Wilcox, president of the California Association of Nurserymen, the attorney wrote for a ruling of the commissioner of internal revenue on the subject, the reply to which is as follows:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT.
WASHINGTON.

Office of Commissioner of Internal Revenue.
Cornish & Moore,
617 Underwood Building,
San Francisco, Cal.

Sirs: Receipt is acknowledged of your letter dated April 1, 1921, in which you inquire "whether the department requires one engaged in the producing and selling of nursery stock, that is, ornamental plants and trees, as well as fruit trees, to submit an inventory with his annual income tax returns." You state that the peculiar character of this business is most difficult to prepare inventories and that there is a question as to whether "the requirements of inventories might not make it most difficult to determine the actual income of the taxpayer."

In reply, you are advised that the use of inventories for the purpose of determining the cost of goods sold by a taxpayer is required where the manufacture or the purchase and sale of merchandise is the chief income producing factor. Where, owing to the peculiar nature of an industry or business, it is impossible to value the articles dealt in and on hand at the end of the taxable year, inventories should not be used for the purpose of arriving at the cost of merchandise sold during the year.

It is held, therefore, that where the selling of ornamental plants and trees, as well as fruit trees, is the chief income producing factor of a taxpayer, an inventory of such trees and plants at the beginning and end of the taxable year should not be used in calculating net income for income tax purposes. Respectfully,

Signed E. H. Batson,
Acting Deputy Commissioner.
By M. E. Stickley,
Head of Division.

Florists on the Pacific coast who are members of the Nurserymen's Association are preparing to file their tax returns on a basis of cash sales less expenses, instead of using the inventory as heretofore. The collector at Los Angeles has stated that the letter from Washington above quoted is plenty of authority to make the change. One large firm of florists near Los Angeles plans to file a claim of overpayments made in the last two years, hoping to get back part of the taxes it has paid on the inventory basis.

DROP FREE SEEDS

GOVERNMENT MAKES BUDGET.

No Free Seeds.

There will be no more free seeds if the recommendations of the director of the budget are carried out. President Harding, December 5, submitted to Congress the first annual budget, on which all governmental appropriation bills for the fiscal year 1923 will be based—and there is no proposed appropriation for seeds.

It is estimated that $360,000 will be saved to the people if this item is forgotten. Whether the House will be willing to forego the pleasure of annually distributing flower and vegetable seeds is a question, but Budget Director Dawes is doing his part by failing to mention them in the large volume which went to Congress to tell what the government needs will be.

In all, the Department of Agriculture is slated to get nearly $35,000,000 for disbursement on its various projects during the twelve months beginning July 1, 1922.

To Test Seeds.

For the investigation of diseases of forest and ornamental trees and shrubs $81,115 is sought. The bureau of plant industry asks for $44,680 for studying and testing commercial seeds, including grasses, clover or alfalfa and lawn seeds secured in the open market, and the publication of the names of persons by whom misbranded or adulterated seeds are sold. It is proposed to station a man at the port of New York to take active charge of sampling and related activities incident to the enforcement of the seed importation act.

For horticultural investigations $76,940 is sought. This is $5,000 more than was appropriated by Congress for the present fiscal year, the additional money being required to permit the Department of Agriculture to enlarge its bulb investigations. It desires to carry on for a number of years the application of principles of propagation as worked out at the bulb gardens at Bellingham, Wash., and to experiment in other sections of the United States possessing advantages from shipping and other economic standpoints.

Nursery Investigations.

For investigating, in coöperation with states or privately owned nurseries, methods of propagating fruit trees, ornamental and other plants, the study of stocks used in propagating such plants and methods of growing stocks, for the purpose of providing American sources of stocks, cuttings, etc., there is requested the appropriation of $20,000, and the sum of $125,000 is asked for investigations in foreign seed and plant introduction, including the study, collection, purchase, testing, propagation and distribution of rare and valuable seeds, bulbs, trees, shrubs, vines, cuttings and plants from foreign countries.

In referring to its failure to seek the usual appropriation for congressional seed distribution, the department states: "The department believes that the congressional distribution of vegetable and flower seeds can be dispensed with without material detriment to the agriculture of the country. It is therefore recommended that the item be eliminated and the funds thereby saved devoted to the prosecution of urgently important investigational work on problems of crop production which will yield results of more direct practical value."

The forest service will require $125,640 for the purchase of tree seeds, cones and nursery stock, for seeding and tree planting in national forests, and the bureau of chemistry will require $20,000 for the investigation and development of methods of manufacturing insecticides and fungicides.

The Federal Horticultural Board asks $105,850 for continuing its work. The continued spread of the gypsy and brown-tail moths will require $600,000, and to combat the European corn borer $125,000 will be needed. In addition the department asks for $178,500 for the investigation of insects injurious and beneficial to agriculture, horticulture and arboriculture, and $90,000 for investigating insects affecting truck crops.

POPPIES FOR SPRING.

Will you give me some information in regard to growing poppies outdoors for blooming next spring? When should they be planted and where may I obtain seed from "Flanders fields"?

H. L. O.—Mo.

The scarlet poppy from Flanders fields is Papaver Rhœas. You should be able to secure this seed from any reliable seed house. If you want it for Memorial day, you would probably have to start it under glass, even in your warm state. It is an annual and commonly known abroad as the corn poppy, having been known as P. Rhœas umbrosum by the ancient Greeks and Romans. The flowers come variable in color, but, if you purchase seed of P. Rhœas, you can depend on getting dark red flowers with black spots. The popular Shirley poppies are a development of the "Flanders fields" poppy. It would be advisable for you to sow the seed under glass early in March in pots or outdoors, as soon as the frost has left the ground.

CUSTING NEMATODES.

Will you advise me how I can get rid of eelworms in greenhouse soil? Will formaldehyde or corrosive sublimate do?

E. C. S.—Ill.

The only really sure remedy for nematodes, or eelworms, is sterilization of the soil by steam. Formaldehyde is a useful soil fumigant and sterilizer, but it is doubtful if it will clean out eelworms. Steam sterilization is valuable as a means of destroying all weed seeds, as well as insect pests. I have not used corrosive sublimate except as a preventive of fungoid diseases. It would, no doubt, fail on eelworms.

WILL HEAR TRADE

TARIFF HEARINGS.

As Applied to the Trade.

The Senate finance committee has resumed hearings on the Fordney tariff bill, and, according to advices just received by William F. Gude, of Gude Bros. Co., Washington, D. C., who is keeping in close touch with all matters pertaining to legislation affecting the florists, seedsmen and nurserymen, several members of the allied trades will be given an opportunity to present their views to the committee at an early date.

"I have just learned," said William F. Gude in a statement this week, "that the Senate finance committee will probably grant a hearing to representatives of the seed trade on the subject of a tariff on grass and other seeds and tulips next week."

"The list that has been furnished me shows that the applicants for a hearing on paragraph 761 of the tariff bill are Curtis Nye Smith, of Boston, who will also discuss paragraph 751, as applied to tulips; J. C. Vaughan, of Chicago, representing the American Seed Trade Association, and A. E. Reynolds, of Crawfordsville, Ind.

Methods of Procedure.

"The finance committee will endeavor to complete all hearings on the tariff bill within two weeks from the starting date, December 7, and then will consider the bill in executive session. It states that to avoid encumbering the record with duplicate statements, the committee will insist that persons wishing to take the same position relative to any item shall decide upon one spokesman to present their case. It declares that such action will greatly reduce its work in its study of the testimony and expedite the early enactment of the tariff bill.

"The representatives of the seed trade have been informed of this situation and advised that extending the testimony on any subject by duplication or repetition in any manner beyond a concise statement is contrary to the best interests of the schedule sought to be elucidated.

"The seedsmen, however, are assured of being courteously received while appearing before the committee, for the senators are anxious to get proper information on which to base the rates and provisions of the new tariff law.

"Prospective witnesses are advised to state first the changes desired and follow such statement with succinct reasons for the changes suggested. Such procedure, it is said, will assist the review of the testimony by those senators who may not have the opportunity to hear it."

Fred Henoch, representing the Ove

Gnatt Co., of Laporte, Ind., will appear before the committee to urge a tariff high enough to protect the industry engaged in the preparation of natural leaves from the competition of Japan and other low-price, low-wage countries. This concern prepares leaves for use in the making of funeral designs and for ornamental purposes, including ruscus, sage palms, etc. A. E. G.

POINSETTIAS LOSE FOLIAGE.

As shown by the plant which I have sent, my poinsettias are suffering from some malady. They started to lose their leaves about October 1. Then the roots decayed and the plants have been doing poorly. I have been careful about the watering, but the temperature has dropped to 50 or 55 degrees at night on a good many occasions. Will you tell me what the trouble is? J. A. & S.—Ia.

Poinsettias usually hold their foliage well while the weather remains warm. As soon as cool nights come and the temperature falls to 50 degrees or even lower under glass, a heavy loss of foliage will result, unless watering is carefully done. It pays to give some heat, and to maintain a minimum temperature of 55 to 60 degrees until the bracts are well developed, when they may be kept somewhat cooler.

Overwatering, underwatering, low temperatures and excessive feeding will all cause a loss of foliage. It is safer to keep the plants a little on the dry side rather than the reverse, and in feeding be sure to give only weak doses. Overwatering causes the roots to decay, especially where pots or pans have not been well drained. C. W.

BEGONIAS DAMPING OFF.

We have a number of Chatelaine and Lorraine begonias in 3-inch pots which seem to be damping off, but still the roots are shooting out healthy young sprouts. I should be pleased to have some one tell me what is the trouble with them. E. A. S.—O.

It is difficult to tell just what is the trouble with your plants. Probably they are being kept too cool and damp. Use care, in watering them, not to dampen the foliage any more than you can help. Give them a temperature not lower than 55 degrees; 60 degrees would be better, although Chatelaine can be grown well in a temperature as low as 50 degrees. W. N. C.

EXTERMINATING WHITE ANTS.

We are writing you in regard to white ants, which have been giving us a great deal of trouble. These ants have entrenched themselves in the bottom of our rose and mum beds. They bore through the hardest wood and eat the roots of the mum plants, which wilt and die in consequence. We have tried several methods of exterminating these pests, but get no results. Would you please advise us in this matter? J. C. S.—Kan.

Ants are hard to eradicate. Remedies, such as follow, will give you considerable relief, at least: Lay good pieces of marrow bone along the ant haunts. Dip these bones in a can of hot water two or three times a day. Scatter Dalmatian powder (black flag) near their runs.

WHO'S WHO IN THE TRADE AND WHY

EARL H. MANN.

RECOGNIZING that the ablest men are not always to be found in the brightest glow of the limelight, the Chrysanthemum Society of America at its meeting in Chicago, November 16, elected as its president one who, as the gentleman who nominated him stated, is "a retiring, but rising young man," Earl H. Mann, of Richmond, Ind. Mr. Mann has been with the E. G. Hill Co. for the last fifteen years. During that time he has been treasurer and during the last five years general manager of the company. He is a son-in-law of the rose raiser of Richmond and one of the quadrumvirate which means so much to rosarians. Mr. Mann occupies a directorship in the Florists' Hail Association and another in the National Flower Growers' Association.

Mix nine parts of sugar and one part of powdered borax and permit the mixture to stand for ten days before using, in order that the sugar may absorb the borax. This will destroy a great many of them. Kerosene painted along the woodwork is an effective antidote. Try one or all of these remedies and they will, at least, greatly reduce the number of the ants. W. N. C.

SWEET PEAS FOR WINTER.

Will you let me know the best type of butterfly sweet peas in a variety of colors for winter forcing in a greenhouse? J. A.—Minn.

The varieties most largely grown are as follows: Rose Queen, light pink; Zvolanek's Rose, dark pink, large; Improved Snowstorm, white; Columbia, pink and white, Blanche Ferry type; Blue Bird, clear blue; Harmony, light lavender, large; Princess, lavender; Glitters, orange scarlet; Flamingo, orange pink, large; Early King, crimson; Mrs. Kerr, salmon, large; Glorious, purple, and Yarrowa, cream pink.

George J. Ball.

Freeport, Ill.—After having served in the capacity of manager of the retail store of the Freeport Floral Co. for twelve years, James Bauscher has relinquished that position. Mr. Bauscher has made no definite plans for the future, but expects to remain in Freeport. His retirement is a result of the recent purchase of the business by Steffen & Balles from the stock company formerly owning it. Mr. Bauscher was a member of the latter company.

LACK OF LIGHT.

Our carnations are not doing well. At the first cutting the flowers were large, but the stems were weak. The plants are beginning to get "grassy" and there are suckers along the stems, with no signs of buds. Our house is not so light as it might be. It is made of hotbed sashes and 2x4's. Why should the carnations wither when they are only about half out? W. R. B.—Ia.

Lack of light is probably the principal cause of your troubles, although there may be other contributing causes not disclosed by your letter. The weak stems are, no doubt, due to insufficient light. The grassy growth may be caused by the same thing, but it may be due to what we know as wild growth. In either case, the buds will appear in time, but it will take longer in your dark house than it would in a light, modern house. Your blooms failing to open is probably due to thrips. Fumigate or spray the plants regularly with one of the nicotine preparations, starting with semiweekly applications and reducing to weekly applications after you have them under control. Then keep it up regularly, once each week.

A. F. J. B.

WEAK-STEMMED CARNATIONS.

What causes carnations to have weak stems? My carnations, Enchantress, White Enchantress and Matchless, seem to be stiff-stemmed until the flower starts to open; then they weaken. I never intend to allow the temperature to run above 50 degrees at night, but, as we have had some warm nights, the temperature may have run up to about 65 or 70 degrees, with the ventilators open. I grow the plants on solid soil, a sample of which has been sent. I had the same trouble last year, but in the spring I gave the plants some complete carnation fertilizer, which stiffened the plants somewhat.

A. J. L.—Mo.

Your soil has sufficient body to produce good carnations, but it seems to lack in humus. You do not state how it was prepared and it is surmised that the soil may not be rich enough to produce a strong, sturdy growth. If you planted early, you could have helped matters somewhat by the use of a light mulch of half-rotted manure, followed with a few light doses of complete carnation fertilizers, applied through the fall months. Always remember, though, that it is impossible to make up for the lack of a properly prepared soil.

If your plants were benched late, these weak stems are a natural result. The next crop will have more vigor, provided you water and ventilate properly. If you have some well rotted manure, apply just enough to cover the soil. Then sprinkle on a 2½-inch pot-ful of bone to each row, halfway across a 5-foot bench, and water it in. At this time of the year, you should not apply fertilizers which are rich in nitrogen, as this has a tendency to soften the growth. When the days get longer and the sun stronger, you may safely begin to feed with dried sheep manure and poultry manure.

A. F. J. B.

POTASH TO STIFFEN STEMS.

My carnations in the greenhouse are blooming well, but they are too soft. I have been told that potash will harden them, but I do not know how much to put on. The soil here is a good loam, with one-fourth part of cow manure that stood in a compost heap two years. Will you inform me as to how I may stiffen these stems? A. L. H.—Cal.

Any fertilizer that is rich in potash will stiffen the stems of your carnations. Sprinkle a handful on the soil in each row and scratch it in slightly before watering. Give the plants abundant ventilation on all favorable occasions.

This will help to keep the growth sturdy and the stems strong. Keep the night temperature as near 50 degrees as possible. Water rather sparingly until the growth hardens somewhat. You will find that it pays better to keep the plants sturdy through abundant ventilation, proper temperature and watering than to dope them continually

CARNATIONS IN GERMANY.

Progress in carnation culture in foreign countries is always measured in terms of the American growers' product. Thus it is that in a recent letter Otto Dellinger, grower for Curt Moll, at Borgsdorf, Germany, writes on this subject as follows: "We grow carnations better than ever before. We are growing most of our stock inside and we have had good results. We still have Enchantress Supreme as our best variety and this makes wonderful growth. White Enchantress is now our finest white. White Wonder and many other new varieties are growing, but not quite so strongly. We have a good stock of Mrs. Ward. Beacon is also of fine quality. In dark red we have Carola and British Triumph, a variety from Carl Engelmann, of Saffron Walden, England. Besides, we grow, in the perpetual Malmaison type, Raphael and Marius, large flowers of good habit. Despite the trouble in our country, we always have a good market for first-class flowers."

TAME OR WILD

LOBELIA CARDINALIS.

Its Native Environment.

This beautiful and rare North American wild flower grows native only in restricted areas and is but little known and seldom cultivated in gardens or parks.

In its native habitat it is found growing most profusely on the narrow strip of soil between low and high water marks on the margins of streams and lagoons. Its seeds are small and light, and are diffused chiefly by floating or by being carried upon the water of the stream adjacent to which it grows. During periods of flood its seeds are cast upon higher grounds and the plants are often found growing native on the higher river bottom lands, in full and open sunlight and in dense shade of lofty trees alike.

Lobelia cardinalis is one of the easiest wild flowers to naturalize by sowing the seeds. Although it is found in its native state growing upon cold, wet soils, its seeds germinate only at the approach of warm weather, and the seeds should be sown for naturalization upon the strip of soil between the high and low water marks along streams, lagoons and wet swales, selecting those spots most free from growths of weeds and grasses. If the soil is wet, no covering of the seeds is essential. Many of the large public parks adjacent to cities afford the natural growing grounds for Lobelia cardinalis and all that is needed to have this beautiful cardinal flower growing in such parks in profusion is to sow the seeds at the proper time.

Garden Cultivation.

In garden cultivation, the seeds can be sown in flats and given warmth in the house or in the open ground of the garden. The soil should be made fine and pressed firmly. The seeds should be sown on the surface and not covered, but kept wet until they germinate. As soon as the seeds are sown, the best covering is fresh wet sphagnum moss and this covering must be kept over the seeds until germination is well begun. If this moss is not to be had, wet blotting paper or wet newspaper can be used, if kept continually wet. As soon as the seeds have started to germinate, remove the covering and keep the minute seedlings shaded for a few days with newspapers raised above them two to three inches. As soon as large enough, transplant the seedlings to their permanent positions and do not let them suffer from drought.

Lobelia cardinalis usually sends up a single flower stalk or spike, often to the height of three feet. Its inflorescence is on the upper portion of the stalk, averaging one-third of its total height. Its flowers open first at the lower portion of the flowering part and, as its inflorescence is ascending, the first and lower flowers fade and form round seed pods or balls about one-half inch in diameter. Each well-developed flower stalk is prolific in seed.

MOTHS ON MUMS.

The common brown moth that appears in greenhouses in the fall of the year gives trouble to the chrysanthemum grower. To those so disturbed Otto H. Cron, of Monroe, Mich., gives his method of cleaning them out. He purchased blue vitriol—copper sulphate—and used it as a spray according to the directions on the can. This, he says, rid his houses of the moth in little time. The copper sulphate he purchased locally in 3-pound cans.

CULTURE OF SMALL MUMS.

What culture would you recommend for earliest single and pompon mums? What culture, in the latest and most practical way, would you recommend for 20,000 plants, including potted pompons? What varieties, in each color, would you suggest as the best in both single and pompon mums? What kind of soil and fertilizer, how high a temperature, when to root cuttings and to plant, what methods of disbudding and what different varieties to plant, would you recommend as giving satisfaction?

R. U.—Mich.

The following list of varieties in each color, both early and late, single and pompon mums, are generally satisfactory.

Early singles: White—Mrs. W. H. Waite, Millicent Piper, Gladys Duckham; pink—Charlotte Waite, Joan Edwards, Mrs. Buckingham; yellow—Phyllis Bryant, Mrs. Lou Thompson, Vivian Cook; bronze and red—Bronze Buckingham, Gloriana, Ida Skiff.

Late singles: White—Mensa, Lily Neville, Snowflake; pink—Mrs. A. Phillips, Mildred Presby, Mrs. E. D. Godfrey; yellow—Golden Mensa, Rose M. Daly, Isabel Felton; bronze and red—Portia, Grant B. Schley, Charles Fairs.

Earliest pompons: White—White Doty, Uvalda, Queen of Whites; pink—Niza, Mrs. H. Harrison, Captain Cook; yellow—Zenobia, Yellow Gem, Connie Dick; bronze—Skibo, Anna L. Moran, Julie de Witt.

Late pompons: White—Baby Margaret, Helen Newberry, Mariana; pink—Nellie Kleris, Mrs. C. Robinson, Western Beauty; yellow—Baby, Eugene Langauet, Christmas Gold; bronze—Julia Lagraverre, Lelia, Mrs. Frank Wilcox.

As regards the culture of singles and pompons, there is no question of any difficulty being encountered in their case. There is no question, either, of bud selection and the cuttings can be rooted from February until the end of June, according as the stock is available. As regards the proper time to plant, any time from June 1 to August 1, depending on whether they are early or late varieties, will be satisfactory.

Plant twelve inches apart in the rows as early in June as possible, and let the flower sprays form naturally and in as great a number as the plants can carry.

In a brief answer of this kind, it is almost impossible to go into detail regarding soil, methods of culture, fertilizer, etc. Would suggest that you buy a good standard work on mums; the book, "The Chrysanthemum," by Arthur Harrington, is recommended. Study this book thoroughly and then if there is further information desired, the individual points can be taken up with you in detail.

METHODS AGAINST MIDGE.

I have a nice lot of chrysanthemum plants, but they are full of the midge. I do not know whether to throw them away or try to get rid of the pest. I

The Editor is pleased when a Reader presents his ideas on any subject treated in

THE FLORISTS' REVIEW

As experience is the best teacher, so do we learn fastest by an exchange of experiences. Many valuable points are brought out by discussion.

Good penmanship, spelling and grammar, though desirable, are not necessary. Write as you would talk when doing your best.

WE SHALL BE GLAD TO HEAR FROM YOU have some good varieties and I do not like to throw them out if I can get rid of the midge. Advice would be appreciated.

M. G. C.—Wis.

If a few points regarding the life history of the midge are clearly in mind, greater success is likely to follow efforts to exterminate the pest. First, several generations are always present in greenhouses during the spring and fall occurrences; second, the adults emerge and mate during the early morning hours, and egg laying quickly follows; third, experiments show that the egg stage may be controlled by means of spraying or dipping the cuttings or plants; fourth, it has been demonstrated that the adult can be killed easily at the time of emergence by consistent spraying; fifth, the adult is easily killed by fumigation either with nicotine papers or hydrocyanic acid gas.

By adherence to a definite control program, involving any of the above cited measures, either singly or in combination, the insect can be readily controlled. In case of a light infestation daily picking of gall-infested leaves will hold the pest in check. Should this practice prove ineffective, nightly fumigation for a period of two or three weeks may be resorted to. When a severe infestation is encountered the most heavily infested plants should be taken out immediately and burned. This should then be followed by either fumigation or spraying as outlined below.

Fumigate every night, with either nicotine papers or hydrocyanic acid gas, for a period of at least six weeks. This will kill all the adults that emerge during such a period and at the same time will prevent the further laying of eggs for future generations. The dosage need not be heavy in either case. When nicotine papers are used, one sheet to every 1,000 cubic feet of space will suffice. If hydrocyanic acid gas is employed, one-eighth to one-fourth ounce per thousand cubic feet will kill all of the adults. The use of hydrocyanic acid gas is not recommended unless in the hands of a competent fumigator, owing to its deadly poisonous effects.

Too much emphasis can not be laid on the fact that the fumigation must be set off after midnight to be effective. It is preferable to start generation between the hours of 12:30 a. m. and 2 a. m. Any fumigation done before midnight would be useless, for it has been pointed out that the adult does not emerge until after midnight. On the other hand, if it is started later than 2 a. m. many adults will have emerged and laid their eggs.

In case fumigation is not advisable, especially where chrysanthemum plants are isolated or when other varieties of plants are present in the houses, spraying is recommended. This must be done consistently for a period of four to six weeks, a forty per cent solution of nicotine sulphate extract diluted (1-800) being used, and soap added at the rate of one-half to one ounce per gallon of solution. The application should be made late in the afternoon in order that the best results may be obtained. In this manner practically all adults can be killed at the time of emergence and any eggs present will be destroyed.

It has been proved that the means of disseminating this insect has been the shipment of infested chrysanthemums, both plants and cuttings. It is therefore imperative that only clean plants and cuttings be brought into commercial houses where chrysanthemums are growing or to be grown. Growers should carefully examine all chrysanthemums received and see that all material intended for shipment or distribution is free from this pest.

As a preventive measure, it is recommended that cuttings be dipped in the following solution at the time they are taken:

Nicotine sulphate, forty per cent.....part 1
Waterparts 800
Laundry soapounce per gallon 1/4-1

Another satisfactory method of securing chrysanthemum cuttings free from midge when the previous season's stock has been infested is to plant the stock in benches or coldframes directly after the season's crop has been removed. This should then be followed by thorough treatment with a mixture consisting of equal parts of dry or air-slaked lime and tobacco dust. It is advisable to keep all new growth covered with the mixture until further operations in the spring.

PINCHING POMPONS.

How late is it safe to pinch pompon chrysanthemums and yet have them bloom? J. M.—Pa.

Pompon chrysanthemums can be rooted as late as July for Thanksgiving and Christmas trade and still give fairly satisfactory results. One may pinch the plants any time up to July 15, but it would be advisable to stop pinching before that date. C. H. T.

MUMS EARLY AND LATE.

Will you give me the names of good early and late pompon mums in pink, white, yellow and bronze? I refer to those that are large and double-flowered, like Diana. We now grow Diana, Lillian Doty and Western Beauty. J. M.—Pa.

The early varieties of pompon chrysanthemums in the colors desired would be as follows: White—White Doty, Uvalsa and Queen of Whites; pink—Niza, Mrs. H. Harrison and Captain Cook; yellow—Zenobia, Yellow Gem and Connie Dick; bronze—Skibo and Anna L. Moran. The late varieties would be the following: White—Baby Margaret and Helen Newberry; pink—Nellie Kleris, Mrs. Chester Robinson and Western Beauty; yellow—Baby, Eugene Langauet and Christmas Gold; bronze—Julia Lagravere, Lelia and Mrs. Frank Wilcox. C. H. T.

NEW MUMS AT CAPITAL SHOW.

A number of promising and unusual chrysanthemum seedlings were exhibited for the first time at the twentieth annual chrysanthemum show held by the United States Department of Agriculture last month in the department greenhouses at Washington, D. C. Several large-flowering varieties were named by Mrs. Wallace, wife of the Secretary of Agriculture, during the show. Mrs. Harding was a deep lavender bloom, while Secretary Wallace was bronze, red and yellow. Mrs. Henry C. Wallace was named by the secretary from this year's seedlings, a conspicuous dark lavender with purple-backed petals. Titian Tints was an exquisite pompon variety named by Mrs. Wallace, and Josephine Wallace was a bronze yellow pompon of delicate formation.

Outstanding among the fifty or more varieties of Japanese chrysanthemums, which were grown from small plants imported last February, was Skikishima, a large flattish head of pale lavender on a well developed bush. Although the Japanese prefer to grow their chrysanthemums to get the effect of the entire bush, this plant especially seems to offer possibilities for development on a single stem.

Many of the Japanese flowers, with their characteristic quill-like petals, sprawly heads and loose arrangement on the bush, are yellow in tone, though two colors are usual. Kaka-no-sui has magenta petals with a pinkish white reverse side. Kabatama is reddish yellow. Matsu-no-tsuru shades from pale pink to yellow white. Hatsuhide has large, loose yellow petals.

The Chinese seedlings, shown in considerable number, were white, white and lavender, white and pale yellow, yellow, and delicate pink. Most of them had flat petals curling toward a distinctly defined center; some were of the daisy type, both white and lavender pink, with yellow centers. They were easily distinguishable from the Japanese plants. These Chinese seedlings were all grown from seeds bought in January, 1921. Of interest in connection with the exhibit of Chinese seedlings is a request from the University of Nanking for the exchange of some domestic chrysanthemum plants with China. After the department has selected the stock it desires to use for another year, including certain plants which will be tested outdoors at the Arlington experimental farm, near Washington, suitable and representative stock will be sent to China.

MUM SHOW AT LE MANS.

The international flower show at Le Mans, France, last month was a thoroughly successful exhibition. It attracted widespread interest in France, and several leading British growers took some fine exhibits across the channel.

H. J. Jones, of Lewisham, gained the highest award, the "grand prix d'honneur," for his exhibit of chrysanthemums, featuring some wonderful specimen blooms, which proved quite an eye-opener to the French. It was composed entirely of large specimen blooms, staged in Mr. Jones' usual effective style, the background being composed of steep banks of such sorts as W. Rigby, R. C. Pulling, George Monroe, Jr., and Edith Cavell. The award took the form of a wonderful bronze work of art, featuring "A Sower," and was beautifully executed. Standing over thirty inches high, it weighed nearly fifty-six pounds, and Mr. Jones must have found it a big task to take this trophy home. Mr. Jones also secured a gold medal for the finest chrysanthemum bloom in the show, exhibiting Mrs. Chichester.

Occupying three immense marquees combined in one, all the 200 odd exhibits were arranged on the ground in bedding style and, viewed as a whole, made a wonderful show of dazzling color. Each exhibit had a turf edging all around, the space being filled to its utmost capacity. Chrysanthemums in pots were the principal feature; some had anything from twenty to sixty blooms per pot, and were trained in many different ways, pyramids, cupolas, etc.

One especially outstanding exhibit was that of the firm of Vilmorin-Andrieux, of Paris, which had a most extensive collection of cut and pot-grown flowers, arranged upon the ground. For an edging they must have used quite 1,500 pot-grown plants of a nice dwarf yellow pompon. The specimen plants were skillfully grown, some having over 250 disbudded blooms on each plant. These plants were shown in practically endless varieties.

A CHICAGO NIMROD.

Gunning for orders is the usual occupation of Max Cohen, who is proprietor of the Jackson Floral Shop, Chicago. Mr. Cohen is known as a good marksman at the business game and has distributed telegraph delivery orders all over America, his business experience dating back to a start in 1912. Occasionally he takes a day off and with his gun goes ducking. The accompanying illustration shows why he enjoys it.

Spencer, Ind.—E. T. Barnes, of the National Show Gardens, has been confined to his bed by a severe illness for more than three weeks, but is now able to be about again.

Helena, Mont.—Business has been extremely good, reports the State Nursery & Seed Co. The mum crop is all sold. William Duncan has been away on a trip through neighboring states.

Richmond, Ind.—In order to provide for its rapidly increasing business, the John A. Evans Co. has moved its business to its new home at the corner of North Fifteenth street and the Pennsylvania railroad tracks. This new establishment consists of a thoroughly up-to-date brick factory with approximately twice as much manufacturing space available as the firm had in the old place.

Sedalia, Mo.—L. H. Archias, president of the Archias Floral Co., and Mrs. Archias spent Thanksgiving as the guests of Frank Lennartz, at Montrose, Mo., when Mr. Archias indulged in a successful hunting trip. As a result the employees of the Archias Floral Co. were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Archias November 27 at an opossum dinner. Twenty-nine guests were present.

OBITUARY

Marcellus A. Patten:

From Lakeland, Fla., has come the sudden tidings that Marcellus A. Patten, noted carnation grower and an ex-president of the American Carnation Society, passed away in sunny Florida December 5. He had been in failing health for some time, but only for a week had he been seriously ill. Mrs. Patten and her son, Wilbur, have taken the body home to Tewksbury, Mass.

The deceased gentleman was old in the trade and widely respected for his ability as a grower, especially of carnations; for his executive propensities and for the active part he played in the various means to coöperation in the trade.

He was born at Lowell, Mass., December 4, 1849, and as early as 1870 he founded the firm of Patten & Co. He worked for Weiland Bros., of Cambridge, Mass., and also at Nonantum Greenhouses, at Brighton, Mass. For twenty-five years he conducted a greenhouse and retail establishment at Lowell, Mass. Then in 1886 he removed to Tewksbury, Mass., where he grew stock for the wholesale market. Up to the time of his death he was situated at Tewksbury.

Without a doubt his chief fame came from his success with carnations, in which he was a specialist. In this connection will long be remembered, among others, the famous carnation, Mrs. M. A. Patten, named for the grower's wife. Out of his love for carnations grew Mr. Patten's interest in the American Carnation Society. He was elected president of this organization in 1908.

Among his other connections, Mr. Patten was a life member of the S. A. F., the American Carnation Society and the Massachusetts Horticultural Society. He was a member of the Boston Horticultural Club, the Boston Gardeners' and Florists' Club and several fraternal organizations. His wife and two sons survive him.

Frederick L. Krekeler.

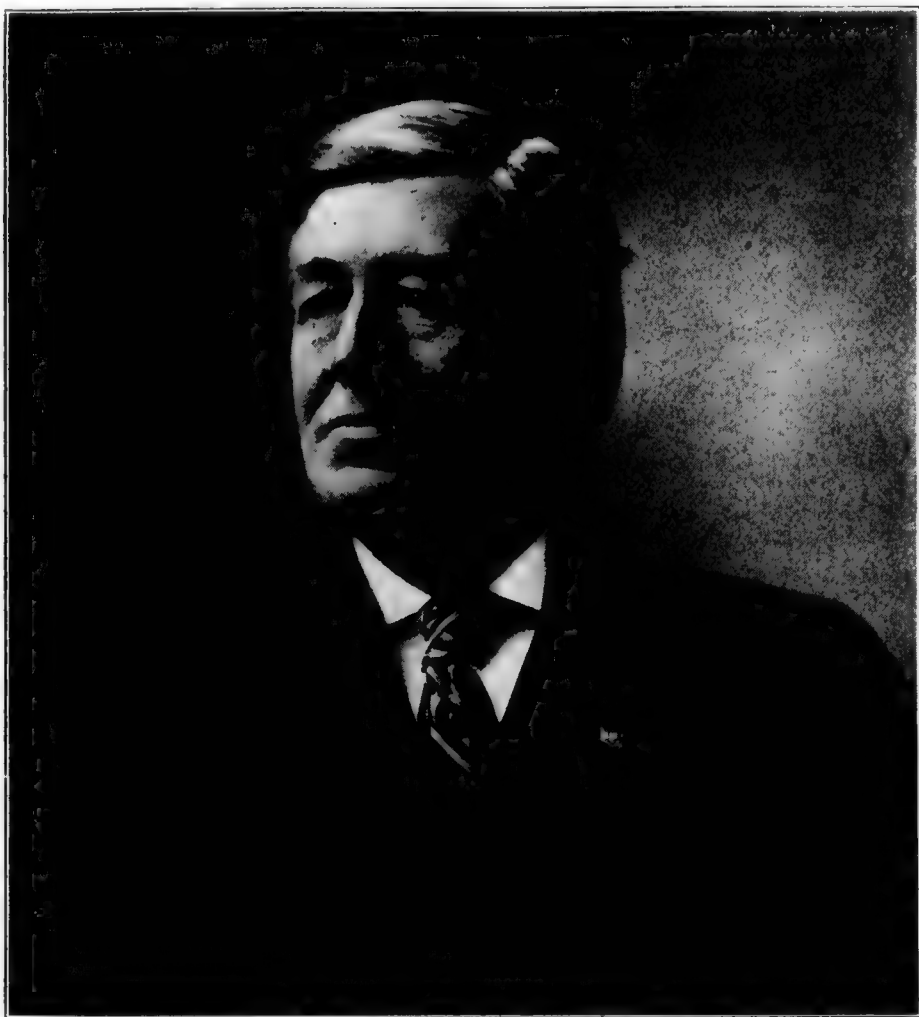

Frederick L. Krekeler, who for more than fifty-six years had conducted a florists' business in Brooklyn, N. Y., died Saturday, November 26, in his seventy-third year. His place of business was at 240 McDougal street.

Mr. Krekeler was born in Germany and had spent most of his lifetime in Brooklyn. Funeral services were held Tuesday, November 29, from the home and interment was made in Evergreens cemetery, Brooklyn.

Those surviving the deceased are the wife, Mrs. Katherine Krekeler; three daughters, Mrs. George Wise, Mrs. James Harvey and Mrs. Frank Gould, and four sons, Louis, Harry, George and Frederick Krekeler.

Fred S. Stimson.

Stricken with a sudden attack of heart disease at his apartment in Seattle, Wash., Fred S. Stimson, owner of Hollywood Gardens, 1622 Second avenue, and Hollywood Farms, near Seattle, dropped dead Thanksgiving day, in his fifty-third year. Mr. Stimson was one of the most widely known and public-spirited citizens of the northwest and was one of the early operators who figured in the development of the northwestern lumber industry. In the later years of his life, however, Mr. Stimson had devoted the greater share of his time to making Hollywood Farms and Hollywood Gardens the show places of the northwest and also to the advancement of cattle breeding. He was a regent of Washington State College. He was president of the Pacific International Livestock Show and held a life membership in the Rainier Club, Seattle.

The deceased is survived by a widow, one daughter, Mrs. Walter A. Moore, two sons and three brothers. Dr. Walter A. Moore, Mr. Stimson's son-in-law, who is in active management of the above-mentioned enterprises, has received the sincere condolences of the entire floral trade over his bereavement.

BONE MEAL FOR SWEET PEAS.

Would putting bone meal on growing sweet peas be of any benefit. If so, how much, and how often should it be used? My peas are planted in double rows under glass and are fertilized with well rotted manure, some bone meal and a little lime. Should I give them liquid cow manure or wait until they bloom? When is it best to feed, before or after watering?

G. G. V.—Fla.

Bone meal should be incorporated with the soil before planting, at the rate of one pound to ten square feet of bench space. Used as a top-dressing, it would be beneficial to the growing crop, but the more readily available acid phosphate is preferable for this purpose, making several applications at about the rate suggested for bone meal.

It is considered that your soil is well supplied with nitrogen for sweet peas until they get in full crop; then manure water may be used freely. No form of fertilizer should be applied to dry soil, as the roots soak it up too rapidly, causing the foliage to burn.

G. J. B.

IT'S CAMPANULA FRAGILIS.

We are sending a sprig of a fern or a green plant. Will you tell us its name? One of our friends has this plant growing in her window. Everybody admires it. Admirers inquire the name and she is at a loss to answer. Has the plant any commercial value?

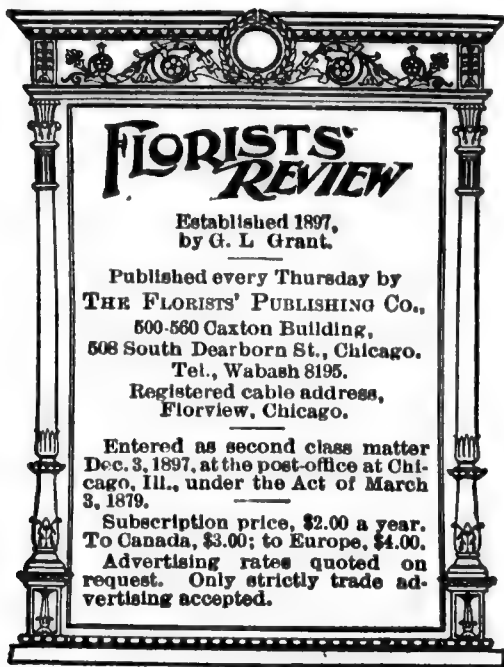

W. F. C.—Ind.

The specimen in question was small and not in good condition, but it appears to be one of the creeping campanulas; it is probably Campanula fragilis. If so, it should flower in the spring or early summer. It would be much easier for us to identify the plant from a specimen in flower. The creeping campanulas are not greatly used in this country, but are in some demand in Europe for planting in rock gardens.

W. H. T.

Spartanburg, S. C.—Fred's Flower Garden is the name under which Fred Gentry and Fred Sass are doing a nice retail business at 235 Spring street. They print the apostrophe after the "d," but it might as well be after the "s," because there are a pair of Freds.

Durham, N. C.—A new flower store is being opened in the new City Club building by Mrs. N. W. Cobb. Mrs. Cobb opened the store of J. J. Fallon and has managed it successfully for four years. The new store, which will be run under the name of the Piedmont Flower Shop, is one of the most attractive flower shops in the south.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

WE want express rates to come down along with freights. How can it be brought about?

LABOR and transportation are the two items the continued high cost of which keeps florists' expenses at a dangerous level.

THE boxboard market has collapsed, after a shortlived revival in early autumn, and prices of florists' boxes again have eased.

SOME of our keenest minded retailers believe that there will be no diminution in the number of flowers sold if retail prices on them are reduced.

OF all the paraphrases of our trade slogan we seem to like best that of Wheat's Ice Cream Co., of Sonyea, N. Y., which advertises, "Say It with Bricks."

"ON the whole," states the Federal Reserve board, "the best opinion now looks to a steady, even if locally interrupted, progress back to normal conditions, although no immediate or sudden expansion or boom is in sight."

THE time is here when buyers can and do "shop 'round." No longer is stock, or goods of any kind, wanted so badly that any price will be paid or any quality accepted, in preference to going without. Those who have practiced the golden rule in their dealings are getting the business, while those who have not are learning to mend their ways.

So many readers of The Review express their anxiety not to miss a single copy of the paper that notice of approaching expiration of their subscriptions is sent out several weeks before the actual date of expiration, in order that there may be ample time for renewal ere a subscriber's name is taken off the mailing list. No one in arrears is carried on The Review's subscription list.

FLORISTS' supply houses handling artificial holly berries have experienced an unusual demand this season. It appears that there will be little naturally berried holly on the market this Christmas. All the way from the woods, artificial berries are being added. Most of the artificial berries come from Germany, but a few are manufactured in New York tenement artificial flower factories.

THE average price of all commodities, according to the bankers' price index, was $413.85 on November 1, as compared with $564.01 a year ago, showing a reduction of twenty-seven per cent. Just about this decrease is seen in a comparison of wholesale flower prices of the two dates.

A RULING that the California law regulating shipments of plants and nursery stock into that state is inoperative has been obtained by the California Association of Nurserymen. Full account and wording of the ruling appears in the Nursery Department this week under the heading, "Can Ship into California."

THE fact that The Review is read by six times as many florists as receive any publication devoted to the retailers' interests alone is considered by several hundred of them to be excellent reason for using space in the Pink Part, no matter what other efforts are made to secure telegraph orders from brother florists.

SOME bulbs of a strain of hybrids of Hippeastrum equestre, Johnsonii and vitatum—more commonly called amaryllis—reached the Editor's desk last week and though they do not decorate it now, they will his home several months hence. They came from Dewson's plant Nursery, Houston, Tex., being of the stock of the late H. J. Condron, Dickinson, Tex.; who spent sixteen years in perfecting the strain. They are large, firm bulbs, whose product will be interestedly watched.

FEELING the pulse of the trade before Christmas, several of the Chicago wholesale houses have had men visiting the buyers in neighboring cities during the last few days. The general report is that the retailers are doing a good business and that the reason they have been buying lightly in Chicago of late is that they have had large supplies of home-grown chrysanthemums, which they have felt impelled to use. Christmas is looked upon as fairly certain to bring a large volume of business, but the disposition is not to handle the highest grade of stock in more than limited quantity. Buyers are ready to place orders for large quantities of roses up to 20 cents, but from 25 cents to 60 cents the demand diminishes rapidly.

GLASS TAKES A DROP.

New discounts quoted in the window glass trade since December 1 are equivalent to a drop in the price of greenhouse sizes of about eighteen to twenty per cent. The sharp reduction in price followed almost immediately the indictment of labor leaders, manufacturers and sales agents, as reported in The Review, for an alleged conspiracy to restrict production and control prices. Those who make no claim to knowledge of the inside workings of the window glass industry, however, say the cut in prices was inevitable, following the accumulation of stocks during the new fire. The cut in the price of plate glass was even greater than in window glass.

LYCOPodium MARKET.

Old-timers in the annual bouquet green deal note with interest many changes with the years. Lycopodium is not now the important Christmas specialty it was in the late years of the last century, but while the call for wreathing for Christmas use has diminished greatly, the price of green has advanced. In the old days a surplus of green was a disaster. After Christmas there was no market. Surpluses could only be disposed of for export to Germany, where the commodity was dyed and perpetuated. Later a few American houses began to experiment with dyeing and carrying along as a means of using up a surplus. Today more lycopodium is handled by the supply houses in a prepared state than is sold fresh to florists for Christmas use. It is the supply house demand which is today responsible for the rising market.

PROFIT OR BUSINESS?

Many leaders in the business world are emphasizing the necessity of establishing correct prices in order to accelerate trade. The changed conditions in the industrial world demand a readjustment. Since some lines have lowered their prices, it follows of necessity that other lines must also. We cannot expect the manufacturer, whose products are bringing less than a year ago, or the merchant, whose margin is less than before, or the salary-earner, who has undergone a cut in pay, to give the same number of dollars for the same quantity of flowers that he did before the change. We must do one of two things; either give him more flowers for his money, or better flowers for the same money. Otherwise we are, in effect, charging each of them more for our products than we did a year ago.

It is not easy to accept lower prices, but it is better than facing a stagnation of demand and consequent losses. A business man, be he florist or something else, is entitled to reasonable profit. Otherwise he will not continue in business. But while profit-making is always an objective, business-making is a prime necessity, even taking precedence of the former. If we would continue to enjoy good business, which seems likely under reasonable circumstances, we must not hesitate to anticipate the public's demand, sure to come sooner or later, for lower retail prices and to accept, for the time being, a lesser margin of profit if need be.

UPSETTING THE DOPE.

A good many diagnosticians of business conditions rely on charts and curves that show cycles of action and reaction, following the theory that history repeats itself. But it is quite likely that the present readjustment will not advance in accordance with the old theories. In other words, the spokes of the cycle are not all there, and the reaction may take place much sooner than the old charts forecast.

Until the war, the basic conditions of the country had not materially changed. We were a debtor nation, with an inadequate banking and currency system, and though our wealth had tremendously increased in the decade since 1903, yet given the same combination of circumstances, there would possibly have been about the same results. Today, however, we are a creditor nation; we have a scientific banking and currency system; at least forty-two per cent of the world's monetary stock of gold is ours and there are sufficient credit facilities for the promotion of desirable and properly financed enterprises. The order of things has, therefore, been changed.

With all these things in our favor and the other nations of the world relying on this country for supplies, the return to brisk business activity is certain to be shorter than in past "cycles." And when the rest of the community is busy, earning money and making profits, florists will be doing the same.

FIGURES ON RETAIL TRADE.

It is of interest to note that in October, for the first time during the current year, the dollar value of sales by department stores in the New York Federal Reserve bank district showed an increase over that of the corresponding month of last year. Making due allowance for price change in the interim, the bank estimates that the actual amount of merchandise moving over the counters was between fifteen and twenty-five per cent in excess of that of October, 1920. Somewhat the same situation is to be observed in the New England cities.

In the New York district the value of sales is reported to have been about fifty per cent greater than in September, an increase which is larger than appears to be usual for the period of the year under consideration.

The fact that retail trade has all along held up remarkably well, everything considered, leads to the belief that unemployment is not so prevalent as it has been pictured. At any rate, latest reports show that it is lessening to a notable extent. The above figures regarding retail trade also indicate that the public has plenty of money to buy flowers if we will energetically try to sell them.

LET'S GET ACTION!

In the issue of November 24, The Review urged its readers to impress upon their respective congressmen how obnoxious would be the removal of the special delivery privilege on parcel post shipments, as threatened in a bill to which the trade's attention was called by William F. Gude. The special delivery service is needed by florists and by their patrons, and its discontinuance would be a real hardship on both. Some florists have already placed the matter before their representatives at Washington. D. C. Horgan, of the Idle Hour Nurseries, Macon, Ga., known to the trade as a man who, when he pushes, pushes, hard, went farther. He put the matter so emphatically before the editor of the Macon News that an editorial, nearly a column long, appeared in that paper December 2, headed "A Blow to Special Delivery." The editorial quoted the statements of Mr. Gude, given in The Review of November 24, in his interview with Second Assistant Postmaster General Shaughnessy. It went on further to say:

The Postoffice department's logic is about as unsatisfactory as anything we can imagine. Because the special delivery feature of parcel post shipments is so popular, it must be destroyed. Such seems to be the argument.

D. C. Horgan has taken the view that an extra 5 cents would be gladly paid by the florists for the continuance of this special service, and we feel sure that the shippers of all kinds of perishable products feel the same way.

The parcel post in foreign countries has developed until it is one of the most popular and convenient agencies in the life of the people, and it ought to be so here.

It is hoped our representatives in Congress will see the wisdom of combating the proposed change. If they will once get it into their heads that the people want service out of the department, and are willing to pay the price, all will be well. A way will be found to handle the situation.

But as it is the bill may be passed at any time and there is no time to lose.

Such public presentation of the florists' case is sure to be of benefit.

The protest, however, should be more widespread. Every florist should, now that Congress is convened again, urgently request his representative to down the bill for removing the special delivery privilege on parcel post shipments.

DOES SOME READER KNOW?

Recently I was at Ormond, Fla., and visited the winter home of John D. Rockefeller. He has a greenhouse covered with so-called "glass cloth." Can you give me the address of the manufacturer of this product? What is its value for a greenhouse in Florida? The light beneath it is soft and the plants seem to do well under it. But the house at Rockefeller's had only been built two months, and his gardener could give me no idea of the lasting quality of the material.

FORGET-ME-NOT DAY.

Florists who wish to participate in a day that will appeal strongly to the sentiment of the public will be interested in what is termed "Forget-me-not day," to be held December 17. On this date will take place a great national drive under the direction of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War for the purpose of raising $250,000 to enable that organization to care for its helpless members.

The Disabled American Veterans of the World War has its headquarters at Cincinnati, O., and has chapters in cities, towns and villages from coast to coast. Its purpose has been to aid the government in the adjustment of claims for wounds, disease and various disabilities incurred by them while in the military or naval service of their country.

With limited funds, supplied mainly by its own members and a few others, the work of the organization has outgrown its means. It is compelled to seek funds for a cause that automatically enlists the sympathy of all America. All the money raised will be collected and its expenditures supervised by disinterested prominent citizens. All will go to the relief of disabled veterans.

A statement issued by the headquarters of the organization says: "Every day hundreds of appeals from all over the country reach the headquarters of the organization asking for assistance. In hundreds of cases, the organization is able to obtain direct government aid for the disabled man through its knowledge of government forms, which in many instances are not thoroughly understood. The organization has interceded successfully with the government in preventing the turning adrift after short periods of training hundreds of men taking vocational training. It has been a big aid to the government in bringing to its attention and securing relief for hundreds whose compensation has been cut down unjustly.

"The figures of the government show the immensity of the problem of the disabled. A thousand ex-service men are reporting every month at government hospitals for medical treatment. There are thousands of ex-service men in government hospitals and the surgeon-general's office has given warning that the peak may not be reached until 1925.

"With sufficient funds, we expect to reach thousands of ex-service men who are not in hospitals but who should be, who are not receiving compensation but who should be, who are not taking vocational training but who should be. It is our belief that the American people want to see justice done to the men who defended the flag at the cost of permanent disability from wounds or disease and whose unhappy experiences with red tape have resulted in two congressional inquiries. Our sole aim is to help wherever possible the disabled soldier and cooperate with the government in discharging its obligation to him."

STILL HITTING ON SIX.

Good progress is still being made by those florists who use a high-speed motor to accelerate sales. If you count the following letters it will be observed that The Review still hits on all six:

Please change my advertisement as enclosed; I am sold out of the variety previously offered.—James O. Jacobs, Irwin, Pa., November 30, 1921.

Please stop my ad quick; all sold out.—Middlebush Rosery, Middlebush, N. J., November 26, 1921.

Please discontinue my ad for the present to give me a chance to catch up.—C. G. Locke, Arkport, N. Y., November 24, 1921.

I had good luck with the ad; am sold out; will hardly have enough left to place an ad next spring.—Henry Bestman, Ottawa, Ill., November 27, 1921.

Kindly cancel my advertisement of stock plants, as I am mostly sold out.—E. H. Montgomery, Fairfield, Ia., November 27, 1921.

Telegram: Discontinue Foch bulblet advertisement; swamped with orders.—J. D. Long, Boulder, Colo., November 28, 1921.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

CHICAGO.

The Market.

The week following Thanksgiving was one of the most difficult the growers and wholesale dealers in this market ever have experienced. Never before have there been so many chrysanthemums and pompons after Thanksgiving. They weighed down everything. Each year the mums run later and later; the growers discard their earliest varieties and replace them with the late-blooming sorts. This year such effort proved unfortunate, as the early mums made good prices and the late ones have sold cheaply. That the condition in Chicago was paralleled in many other places was apparent. Demand from out of town was extremely light and when the wholesalers called their customers on the long-distance telephone, to find out why they were not ordering, the explanation almost invariably was, "Our local market is full of late mums and pompons." Indeed, in a number of cases people who usually are buyers at this season called up to see if the wholesaler was in position to handle their surplus. The oversupply was only of mums and pompons, but it affected the demand for and price of all other flowers.

At the end of last week there appeared signs that a change is impending. Demand began to pick up, December 2 and 3 being moderately good days, indicating that buyers had used up their home stock. Then, too, the quality of the mums received was such as to indicate that the growers were clearing their benches; it was the tail end of the crop. Of course, there will be mums until Christmas, but the number still to be cut will have a negligible effect on the market. About all that remains of the mum season of 1921 is to clean up the accumulation still on hand. The season began late and has lasted about ten days or two weeks later than usual.

Many of the wholesalers concur in the opinion that the market is about to make one of its celebrated changes from feast to famine—and they regret it. After several weeks of extremely low prices it will create a lot of ill feeling if the market advances as sharply as now seems probable. It appears, however, that the public has not shared to any great extent in recent low prices and that the high swing, if it comes now, will be like the low one, a little matter strictly between us florists.

If the mums and pompons had been removed from the market last week there would have been little left. Roses are not in heavy crop, nor are carnations, but some strange combinations resulted. Because of the dull weather, sweet peas were almost unobtainable, and cattleyas were held at $3 each, but Paper Whites were jobbed as low as $2 per hundred, or considerably less than the bulbs cost. Poinsettias made their appearance, while mums still were a glut.

The Christmas Supply.

It is a little early, but attention has begun to turn toward Christmas. There is considerable difference of opinion and much uncertainty as to both supply and demand. One of the shrewdest of the retailers, however, last week took advantage of the depressed state of the wholesalers' minds and placed all his Christmas orders—larger ones than ever before, but at slightly lower average prices.

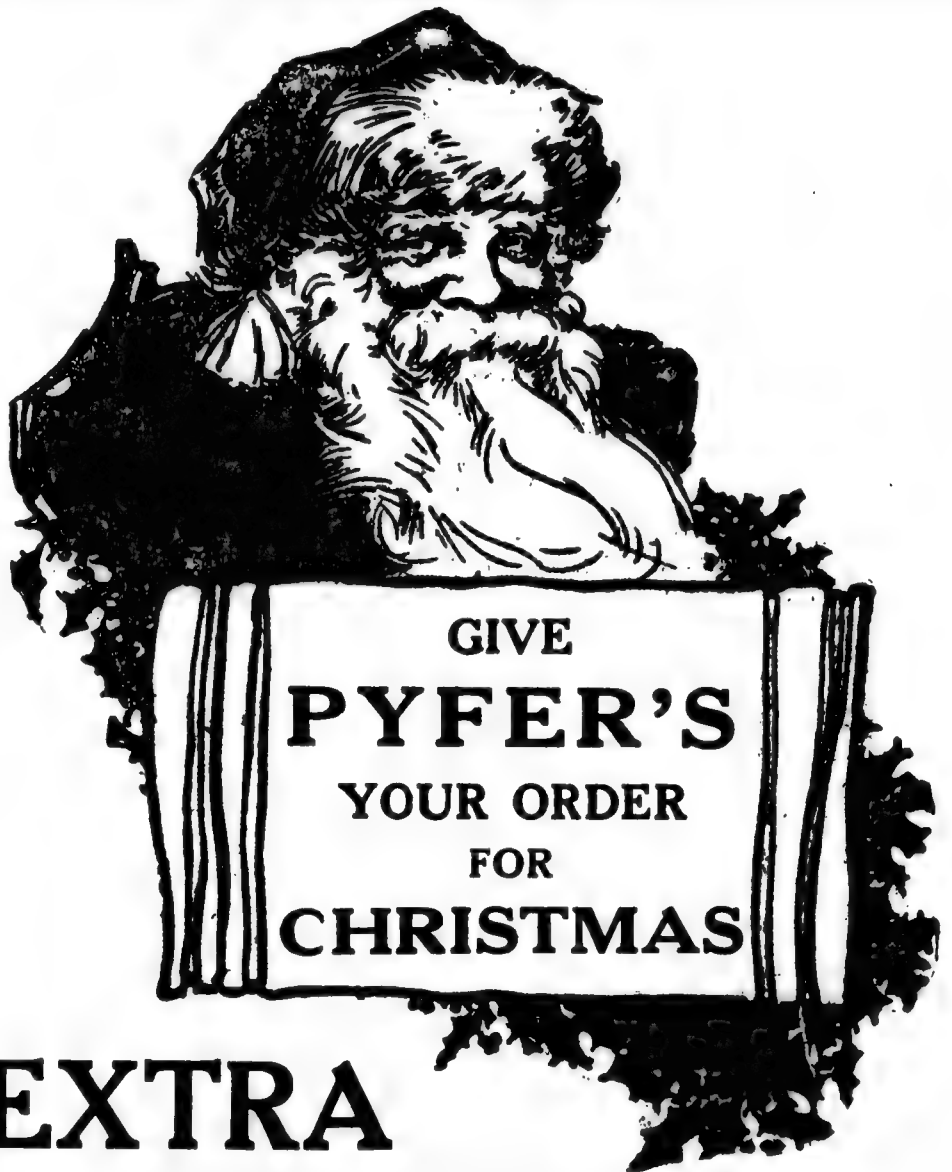

No unusual supply of stock for Christmas is in sight anywhere. Indeed, it is certain the supply of roses will not be so large as last year. Weather conditions are partly responsible for this, but several large growers who cropped nearly all their houses for Christmas last year shortly thereafter concluded it was a tactical error and have aimed at a January crop this season. It all has a bearing on the market. There is wish for clear, cold weather to restore quality. The rose is the principal item so far as the shipping business goes, overshadowing all the rest. There will be the usual supply of miscellaneous flowers.

Orders are coming in well, even before prices are out, but there is an apparent tendency to lay off the high-priced grades. Buyers will take large quantities of roses at from 15 cents to 25 cents, but seem to figure they will not need so many as last year of the grades from 30 cents up. In a general way, prices on short and medium roses are being quoted about as last year, but longer grades are reduced ten to twenty per cent.

November Weather.

The condition of the market may be clear to many if the weather man's records are shown.

The mean temperature for November was almost 2 degrees above normal, but the percentage of possible sunshine was only thirty-five, whereas November normally gives forty-eight per cent of the possible duration of sun. In other words, with slightly warmer weather than usual, we had less than three-quarters the usual amount of sun. There were only four clear days. The rainfall was 3.51 inches, whereas in November, 1920, there was less than an inch of rain. From January 1 to December 1 the

ROSES FOR Your Christmas

Amling's offers the cut from 625,000 Rose Plants

(We expect to handle about 14,000,000 blooms in a twelvemonth)

Premier — The name says it all. We have the largest supply in the West—and unexcelled quality.

Columbia — Without doubt the best Pink Rose. Our supply for Christmas is very large.

Butterfly — The finest of all light Pink Roses. We will have a large cut and expect to fill all orders complete.

Russell — We can furnish the longer grades in quantity. Quality as fine as ever.

Crusader — A new dark Red Rose, just the color for Christmas. We offer a large supply from expert growers.

Milady — Our supply will be as large and fine as ever, but it is impossible to book orders for Milady alone, as we want to treat all buyers fairly and they all want some.

Golden Rule and Sunburst — The best Yellow Roses ever produced. Sure to give satisfaction.

Ophelia — The one Rose everybody likes. Our supply for Christmas is unusually large and fine.

Victor — A fine new brilliant Pink Rose with splendid flowers and foliage. We control the entire stock.

Golden Ophelia — The newest Yellow Rose. We can supply in good proportion to the rest of your order.

Montrose — A very good Red Rose, of exceptional lasting quality.

My Maryland — A fine Pink Rose for Basket and Bouquet Work.

Double White Killarney — When you want White Roses, there are none better.

families in Chicago. In its story of the fund December 6 the News said:

Herman Frank, one of the employees of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, 182 North Wabash avenue, originator of the idea of working group gifts to the Holiday Relief Fund on the principle that, "having worked a year without losing a day, we ought to help those less fortunate," made good today on his promise given last week when he visited the comptroller of the fund.

Mr. Frank wanted to know then if he couldn't get his fellow workers together, each with small contributions. Being advised not only that he could do this, but that such action would be more than appreciated, he immediately got busy. The result was another visit to the Daily News office, this time by George Zarbock, one of Mr. Frank's fellow workers. He carried an envelope containing $25, with the announcement that the following in addition to Frank and Zarbock wanted to help a needy family:

Various Notes.

At the moment growers may be not greatly interested, but glass took a sharp drop December 1, when discounts were increased to an extent equivalent to a reduction of eighteen to twenty per cent in jobbers' prices.

F. M. Johnson returned December 2, after a ten days' trip east. The Randall interests in New York now are splendidly housed at 92 Bleecker street and business is good. At the Chicago factory, according to Sales Manager Edward Galavan, demand is so heavy that all departments began working nights

 December 5.

The A. B. C. received five earloads of lily bulbs from Japan this week, a total of 1,401 cases, nearly all of which went into cold storage. A. Miller has spent a week at Minneapolis and St. Paul.

I. Rosnosky returned December 3, after having spent three months on the road in the south. He looks to have gained twenty pounds.

M. C. Wright, managing director of the western organization of the Lord & Burnham Co., left December 6 to spend a month in southern Texas. This is the first vacation Mr. Wright has had in a long time and he plans to make the most of it, with his family.

Blaine Wilcox, of Council Bluffs, has been in the city for several days, under medical treatment for an injury received in an automobile accident. J. S. Wilson and J. S. Wilson, Jr., of Des Moines, arrived here December 6, and have been in conference with Mr. Wilcox. Rumor has it that an amalgamation of interests is about to be consummated.

Bert Chadwick, who recently joined the staff of the E. C. Amling Co., is planning a short trip next week, for the double purpose of booking some Christmas orders and acquainting himself with trade conditions in a few of the cities where his firm has important customers.

G. W. French is on the Pacific coast.

P. C. Schupp says that the new cerise-pink sport of the Nesbit rose is meeting with much favor among the retailers. The sport occurred among the plants of Nesbit at the greenhouse of A. H. Budlong, who is perhaps the only grower of Nesbit for this market. A considerable stock of the sport has been worked up.

The market is almost bare of bouquet green. The quantity arriving at Chicago this year has been extremely small and florists who manufacture roping and wreaths have found themselves in competition with the supply houses, which want lycopodium for dyeing. For any small lots of green now offered $12.50 per hundred pounds is asked.

Geo. P. Hoefel, of Des Plaines, who ships his stock to the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, has been repeating his usual success with late chrysanthemums. His Seidewitz annually are the envy of many growers.

John P. Degnan left December 4 for Los Angeles, where he expects to locate.

Hans Jepsen says there was an extremely good early demand for rooted cuttings of chrysanthemums and pompons. Last month he spent about $100 in advertising in The Review and received orders aggregating over $1,700.

Wendland & Keimel Co., at Elmhurst, will not be in full crop for Christmas, but nevertheless they estimate the cut for Christmas week at 78,000 blooms. Last year they had 85,000.

It is reported that Ernst Rober is planning to go into business again, this time in California.

Many growers visit the establishment of Fred Stielow, at Niles Center, to inspect the oil burners in operation. It is the Crane system and has given excellent results thus far.

Edward Siebrecht, some years ago a member of the staff of the Fleischman Floral Co., now in business for himself at Marion, Ind., was a visitor, December 3, at the store of Kennicott Bros. Co. He reported an excellent November business, his crop of mums cleaning up well for Thanksgiving at good prices.

frost in the ground, so that all of the water caused by the melting of the snow has gone into the ground. This will give the shrubs and plants outside a better chance of getting through the winter. Florists have been busy clearing away chrysanthemums, planting lilies and rearranging their stock, for better growth between now and the Christmas holidays.

Hans Rosaeker, the Merriam Park

Greenhouse, the Fair Grounds, Holm & Olson and the Chicago Avenue Florists have a fine stock of cyclamens and Christmas pot plants. Business has been better in the last two weeks than it was previous to that time, due to the many society affairs. Indications are that a good Christmas business will be done.

The Market.

The week has been dull, with an improvement towards the close. The supply of flowers is greater than the market requires. Prices are low and unsteady.

Carnations are doing better than most leading rivals. The supply is increasing. They are of finer grade and the buyers are taking more interest in them.

Chrysanthemums seem plentiful for so late in the season. Fine flowers sell pretty well at moderate prices, but the ordinary grades are not popular. The trading in pompons has been listless since Thanksgiving.

Roses are selling, but at low prices; the growers who have cut freely during the fall are keenly alive to the fact. Fancy varieties offered in limited quantities, like Beauties, long-stemmed Russell and American Legion, are bringing fancy prices, but the varieties that everyone grows are selling at prices below those usually paid at this season. Double White Killarney is a possible exception.

Orchids are becoming more plentiful at just the right time. Gardenias are in better demand. Fine sweet peas are selling, but violets are dull. Greens are becoming active. Shipping is brisk.

The Club Meeting.

The December meeting of the Florists' Club was held Tuesday evening, December 6, at the Adelphia. It was a brilliant affair. Before the meeting a complimentary dinner was given to E. G. Hill, of Richmond, Ind., who was the speaker of the evening. A party of seventy-five gathered to meet Mr. Hill, including a number of notable men from other cities. After dinner Robert Pyle, president of the Conard & Jones Co., of West Grove, Pa., spoke in recognition of Mr. Hill's wonderful achievements. He was followed by J. Horace McFarland, of Harrisburg.

Farrell & Co. showed the Dorrance grate.

Enterprise.

A good deal has been said and written about the necessity of going after business this season if we wish to prosper or even to hold our own. This is easily said or written; it is a good deal harder to know what to do and how to do it. Of course, every one of us must decide that for himself; no one else can decide it for us. Here is an incident that will show one of the things now being done by one of the brightest minds in our profession. He is an artist of unusual ability and an alert business man who controls a large establishment. Here are the facts:

The first german in Baltimore has for years been the social event of the season in Baltimore. It is always held on the first Monday in December and to it throng the elite of the southern aristocracy. For the first german the beaux engage their partners ages in advance and for it they are expected to send their partner, be she matron or be she maid, a suitable floral offering. Something like this usually occurs: The beau goes into the florist's shop with a woe-begone expression and confides to his florist that he is in an awful mess, that Miss So-and-So has promised to dance the german with him and he does not know what he ought to do. Then the florist promises and makes up a bouquet, delivers it with the proper card and sends the bill. At one time these bouquets were so numerous and the flowers used in their composition were so rare and choice, that the first Baltimore german made a decided impression on the Philadelphia wholesale market each year. Those days have passed. For various reasons the Philadelphia market scarcely feels the effect of the great social event in its sister city and even in Baltimore itself the coming of the first german causes scarcely a ripple to disturb the calm of the floral world.

So much for the past; now for the present. Sunday morning, November 27, an advertisement appeared in a popular Baltimore paper, to the effect that the first florist of Philadelphia would deliver bouquets by special messenger for the first german, at Baltimore, at prices ranging from $10 to $50 each. This direct offer was the more startling because of the certainty that the standard would be raised. It caused more than a ripple of excitement; it caused a commotion in Baltimore. Such a thing was unheard-of in ye olden time.

Its effect will undoubtedly be good. The standard will be raised. There will be more bouquets and better bouquets at the first german in Baltimore than there have been in the past, no matter who makes them.

This incident is told with an object. Here is the problem: The supply is heavy; the demand is light. You know one of the things that the first florist in Philadelphia is doing. What are you going to do?

The Premier Floral Co.

A handsome new flower shop was opened Saturday, December 3, at 3920 North Broad street, below Erie avenue, under the name of the Premier Floral Co. The company consists of Raymond L. Mayhew, president of the Florex Gardens, at North Wales, and Frank E. Miller, for fifteen years with J. H. Small & Sons, of New York and Washington. Their store is a credit to the city. It has magnificent plate-glass windows on two streets, with marble floors, deep low window sills and a superb staircase. The stock displayed was of the best. A few choice chrysanthemums of great size, splendidly flowered cyclamens and specimen Phoenix Roebelenii were wonderfully displayed. The manager, Mr. Miller, was busily engaged with an assistant sending out announcements of the opening.

Killarney.

The old and highly respected firm of Joseph Beavis & Son, on Limekiln pike, near Chilton avenue, is the last of the wholesale rose growers in this district to flower under glass the once popular rose, Killarney. With them Killarney is in the form that made it the reigning favorite in our cut flower market ten years ago. The present members of the firm of Joseph Beavis & Son—John Beavis and Joseph Beavis, Jr.—have pretty nearly decided that Killarney must go next spring to make room for more mod-

"PEACE ON EARTH, GOOD WILL TO MEN."

The sympathy and admiration of the world goes out in heart-felt throbs to the men of all nations who are sitting in Washington these days; and we all wish them the most splendid culmination of their ardent hopes.

We in the Flower Business are especially with them in spirit and in truth, and we emphasize this daily in our National Slogan:-

in varieties. Should this plan be carried out, Killarney bids fair to set a record in its last year that will make the lower sorts work to beat. The Killarney range contains 5,000 plants. They were planted in solid beds ten and one-half years ago. This year they have been dried off during the summer and put back and pinched for Christmas. So skillfully has this work been done that the range is today a sheet of buds, surrounding plants that are vigorous, even and clean. It is difficult to make an estimate of the number of buds in this range of Killarney, but it is probable that there are 25,000 or more. It is also probable that the growers will be able to send 20,000 Killarney buds to their commission merchants, the Leo Niessen

TORONTO, ONT.

Business has been just fair during the last week. November was the darkest November we have had. The lack of sun not only made flowers, especially roses, scarce, but evidently had an effect on buying. Mums are near the end and, although there was some fine stock, there was some that gave evidences of being near the last cut.

The presence of the governor-general's party in the city was an occasion for many receptions. Many flowers and bouquets were ordered for them.

Some of the florists are busily engaged in elections, which end December 6. J. J.

Higgins is a vice-president of the Parkdale Liberals and a member of the general executive. General Rennie, candidate in North Toronto, is president of the well known W. Rennie Co., Ltd.

At a meeting of the Florists' Club executives it was decided that the banquet December 5 to the growers would be an extra meeting and that the regular meeting would be held December 12.

The growers and retailers are getting closer together. The Christmas advertising campaign was well supported by both and the growers now turn out in full force to the growers' meeting held by the retailers' club. This year the growers will be entertained at the King Edward hotel. J. J. H.

Salina, Kan.—Tatro the Florist opened for business at Thanksgiving time. He has a fine delivery car and his greenhouse is almost complete. The business is going well.

Harrodsburg, Ky.—Harbison's Greenhouses, which were sold after the death of A. M. Harbison, several years ago, have been repurchased by John S. and Mrs. A. M. Harbison. A general retail florists' business will be carried on at these greenhouses and John S. Harbison will be the manager.

Telegraph Delivery Department

THE florists whose cards appear in the Pink Part of The Florists' Review are prepared to fill orders from other florists, for local delivery, on the usual basis. See index by towns on the following page. If your city is not represented, there is a specially good opportunity for you.

SMYTH FOR CHICAGO

The florists who have acquired this habit in sending orders into this city get for their customers the utmost the money will buy—in flowers and service.

MOTT-LY MUSINGS

"Best ever," observed Henry Eberhardt, proprietor of the Rosendale Flower Shop, Schenectady, N. Y., in commenting upon Thanksgiving business. More space was taken for local advertising for the holiday, and the effect was seen in the increased purchases. The number of orders wired out of town exceeded those of previous years.

J. C. Hatcher reports satisfactory returns from both stores, at Schenectady, N. Y., and at Amsterdam, N. Y. Our veteran confrere fully sustains the reputation of the Hoffman greenhouses.

W. H. Grupe, Schenectady, N. Y., was agreeably surprised at the volume of business at Bellevue and at the Carl store.

Julius Eger, Schenectady, N. Y., said, "It was the best in the long experience of the Schenectady Flower Shop and includes Thanksgiving among the leading flower days."

A. J. Hilton, Amsterdam, N. Y., speaking of the preference for chrysanthemums in spray form and the call for pompon and anemone varieties, predicts a good future and is planning to increase the stock of this class.

The Hotaling Flower Shop, Amsterdam, N. Y., had a fine Thanksgiving trade, in which the queen of autumn predominated.

The Mohawk Greenhouses, Schenectady, N. Y., had a fine Thanksgiving business, both at home and at the Barney store, where specials, well advertised, helped swell the volume.

The Schafer Estate, Ballston Spa, N. Y., is well pleased with business conditions, according to Manager Henry Bense, who agrees that a drive by the retailers to persuade their patrons to pay up is thoroughly in order. A fine bench of Seidewitz chrysanthemums was noted here, planted late in June for Christmas flowering. Hydrangeas for Easter were also noted.

The Park Greenhouses, Ballston Spa, N. Y., are experiencing a shortage of carnations. Proprietor Ira Robinson is well pleased with the progress made during the two years of ownership.

Henry Schrade, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., left immediately after Thanksgiving for Florida, accompanied by Mrs. Schrade. The business was left in the able hands of their three sons. "Best season in our experience," said Henry Schrade, Jr. "We anticipate that the Christmas demand will be fully up to the demand of previous years."

The estate of John Ralph, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., excels in roses and carnations. Thanksgiving business here established a record, in which chrysanthemums led, as usual.

Christian Dehn, Saratoga Springs, N. Y., made the usual donation to the local hospital at Thanksgiving time, remarking that, regardless of the big demand, the company found enough flowers to spare for the unfortunates who otherwise would have none.

The Crandell Flower Shop, Glens Falls, N. Y., reports the best Thanksgiving business on record, according to Henry Crandell, who, commenting upon the recent excellent varieties of chrysanthemums introduced, put December Beauty in the top class.

A. J. Binley, Glens Falls, N. Y., speaks of the great advantage of a downtown store, as shown by the big increase in the company's business. He says, "It affords the best means for publicity, especially in a small town; at least, such is our experience."

A. Watkins & Son, Hudson Falls, N. Y., commenting upon the season's business, said, "We give hearty thanks that our efforts to produce the stock and our manner of disposing of it are so successful and stimulating." W. M.

ALBANY CLUB MEETS.

At the monthly meeting of the Albany Florists' Club, Albany, N. Y., held at the Cut Flower Exchange Thursday evening, December 1, officers for the ensuing year were elected. As president, Alfred Jenkins, gardener to Senator A. Sage, who owns one of the fine estates in that city, was elected. Mr. Jenkins received, on motion of W. W. Hannell, who retired in his favor, a unanimous vote. Mr. Jenkins pledged best efforts for the welfare of the club. John Hannell, Watervliet, N. Y., was elected vice-president and the entry of younger blood in this scion of the family of W. W. Hannell augurs well for the future of the club. Thomas Keller was elected to fill the office of secretary-treasurer. Mr. Keller has been with F. A. Danker for fifteen years, fills the position of head salesman at the Danker store and has the esteem of his fellow members.

The Other Side of Happiness in Every Box

All over the country there are springing up a host of chain candy stores.

All of them are bidding for the gift money that's spent for flowers.

One chain is owned by the United Cigars Company.

If you don't believe they are aiming their biggest guns straight at our heads, just read this that appears on the walls of all their stores, and everywhere else they can blazon it:

"United Candy speaks all languages. It dries the tears of little children and wreathes the faces of old age in smiles.

"It is the unspoken message from the lover to his sweetheart; the token of continuing affection from husband to wife.

"It brings joy to the home, comfort and good cheer to the absent.

"There is Happiness in every box."

If we florists don't wake up, there will be gloom in every box for us.

We've been too content. We are altogether too smug.

I tell you fellows we must begin to step. It's up to us to do some [real advertising before the candy man, and the fruit store, and the jewelry people and the book makers cut button holes in our business.

Among the several items of important business transacted during the evening were the decisions to hold the annual banquet at the January meeting, to prepare for the best-ever fall show, to be held in the armory next year, and to accept the offer of Robert Pyle to present his illustrated lecture, so successfully given at Cornell not long ago. This talk is to be given in the beautiful Educational building next spring and notices of it are to be distributed broadcast to insure a record attendance.

The spirit of the meeting was, in the language of Henry Eberhardt, the retiring vice-president, to boost every means of publicity for the profession. F. A. Danker observed that the private shows given by the several storemen were much appreciated and sales were fully

The Market.

The wholesale markets last week were able to supply all demands. Business conditions have improved to some extent. Since Thanksgiving a few dull days have been reported, but from now on business should be healthier, with the approach of the holidays. The outlook for Christmas is excellent. All the wholesale markets are having steady demands from outside shipping points. Prices are probably not so high as they were a year ago, as the receipts from our local growers are much larger than at this time last year.

Christmas ruscus, wreathing, holly wreaths and supplies of like nature are moving well.

SUMMER SEASON, Bellevue Ave., NEWPORT, R. I.

The supply of mums last week was large, with all the early varieties cut out. Bonnaffon, Eaton, Chadwick and Jerome Jones had large demands all the week. With Christmas only three weeks off, the prospects are excellent for a good crop of mums by that time, especially Bonnaffon.

Roses are not in oversupply and the daily shipments clean up nicely at good prices for the best quality. Premier is fine and of full color, also Milady and Ophelia. Ward has a steady call, as well as Butterfly.

Callas, Easter lilies, Paper Whites and valley compose the bulb stock, which has an excellent demand.

Carnations are not in the heavy supply usual at this time of the year and local carnation growers predict that the crop in all varieties will be large for Christmas demands.

Violets have gained in color and stem, now that the days have become colder, and the demand increases daily. Several large society events last week caused a large demand for orchids. Anemone-flowered mums are offered in the various colors, with good demand. Calendulas, daisies, snapdragons and only a small supply of sweet peas are the other flowers offered.

Various Notes.

J. F. Ammann and H. C. Irish, who attended the meeting and fruit exhibition of the Missouri State Horticultural Society at Hannibal, Mo., last week, to extend that society an invitation to hold its next year's meeting and exhibition at St. Louis, report a splendid meeting, a fine exhibition of fruit and a large attendance. Their invitation, along with others, was placed in the hands of the executive board of the association. This board will decide on the place to hold the next meeting and exhibition.

Pierre Schneider, of Creve Coeur, Mo., states that his yellow pompon, No. 16-18, has been named Autumn Glow and that it is a seedling from an unnamed variety and Buckingham. It scored 90 points at the Florists' Club meeting and 86 at the Chrysanthemum Society committee's examination held recently at Chicago.

Friends of Theodore Heil, who has been for the last three years with the American army in Germany, will be pleased with the news that he is on his way home and expects to arrive in time to help his brother, Paul F. Heil, during the Christmas rush.

B. C. Randall has been elected secretary of the Acme Floral Co., located in the Arcade building. Mr. Randall is a brother of the head of Randall's Flower Shop, Worcester, Mass. Dr. Hill was re-elected president and Miss E. Turk, treasurer.

The Bourdet Floral Co., at Tower Grove and Magnolia avenues, has in its new range a fine display of cyclamens, poinsettias and other blooming plants and has heavy bookings for Christmas. Andre Bourdet has charge of the greenhouses and his brother, Roger, looks after the retail end of the business.

The W. C. Smith Wholesale Cut Flower Co. has a house of the finest Begonia Melior at the Kirkwood range. Heavy advance orders for these have already been booked for Christmas.

Adolph Steidle has resigned his position as designer with Grimm & Gorly and is back on the job in the designing department of F. H. Weber, in which also are A. Hoffmann, Jr., John Kern and Miss Gildring. This makes a great quartet of efficient designers.

Samuel Roth's floral department at the Famous-Barr department store is now snugly located in a new place in the extreme western part of the basement, which gives him the much needed room. Miss Roth has charge of the salesladies and Mr. Roth does the designing.

Frank O'Leary, manager for Grimm & Gorly, East St. Louis branch; Haun & Weis and Miss Doussard, all on Collinsville avenue, say they had a splendid Thanksgiving business and a steady demand so far all the season.

Visitors the last week were Mr. and Mrs. George H. Blackman, of the William Blackman Floral Co., of Evansville, Ind.; Martin Reukauf, representing H.

Robbers ransacked the store of Julius Schaeffer, November 27. They got $25 from the cash register and did much damage to plants and supplies in looking for other valuables, thought hidden among the plants.

The members of the Lady Florists' Home Circle will be entertained by Mrs. F. W. Bruenig, December 14, at her home.

According to the returns of acceptance to attend the big meeting and dinner at the Planters' hotel, December 6, by the St. Louis Flower Show Association, the attendance is going to be large.

The younger folks were talking of a florists' dance after the holidays. The "Say It with Flowers" bowling league will give this dance and arrangements will be completed this week after a meeting of the members from a call of President Ruff of the league.

The St. Louis Wholesale Cut Flower Co., according to Peter Pfander, manager of the supply department, had a busy week with supplies, shipping orders to western points.

C. A. Kuehn received a large consignment of fine cut heather last week, which took well with the local trade. A weekly supply will be on sale for the season.

Joseph Witek's staff is experiencing the usual pre-holiday rush for social affairs and the rush should keep right up to Christmas. The new show house here is a sight to behold.

so far this season is ahead of last year.
H. G. Berning furnished 400 of the finest American Beauties to a leading retailer. They are all on 46-inch stems and it looked like the old days when Beauties were a big factor in this market. With this order went several hundred extra fancy mums.

The florist bowlers had a grand time November 30, after a week's lay-off. The feature match was between the Carnations and Sweet Peas, in which the Sweet Peas were victors in two of the three games. The Violets defeated the Orchids by winning the odd game and the Roses surprised by winning two games from the Daisies. The result of the three matches put the Orchids and Daisies in last place with a tie, while the Sweet Peas are still leading the Carnations. The Violets follow closely, with the Roses in fourth place.

BALTIMORE, MD.

The Market.

The end of the chrysanthemum season was in sight last week. There was much stock on the market, but it was more or less passé. And when the mums begin to have that post-season appearance, the demand soon falls off. This was the reason why stock piled up towards the end of the week. Roses are in fine shape to take the place of the mums. While the supply fell off last week, there was sufficient for all purposes. The varieties comprise the entire list of the best commercial sorts. Columbia seems to be a favorite with most growers. Madame Butterfly has its champions and there is a large supply of this variety on the market.

Carnations are beginning to arrive in good supply. Here, again, the varieties are varied. Paper Whites are here; more of them than can possibly be used. It is just a repetition of last year. Just before Christmas last year there was a glut of these and quantities found their way to the dump.

Social Season Opens.

The first cotillion of the season given by the Bachelors' Association, Baltimore's exclusive social organization, took place Monday, December 5, at the Lyric theater. This is the signal for the opening of the social season. Talk to any of those who have been watching this function, much the same as the mariner will watch his barometer, and they will all tell you that there is a big flower season ahead. Orders were being booked last week in the retail stores and in the commission houses. These indicated a big cotillion business.

There is much rivalry among the debutantes to see who will have the greatest number of bouquets sent her, for this determines the most popular bud of the season. This rivalry does not stop with the girls who are coming out, but extends to those retail florists who supply the greater part of these flowers. Each of these young ladies is often looked upon as belonging to some particular florist, by reason of the members of her family having always been customers, and the family's orders, at least, are counted upon. And the florist who has the greatest number of cotillion orders considers himself the most popular florist.

The writer has the opportunity to see the aggregate of this work assembled on the floor of the Lyric theater. The florists themselves have no idea of its beauty. Just imagine a solid wall about four feet high around the orchestra cir-

Florists' Publicity.

Last week a letter was sent to everyone connected with the florists' business in Maryland outlining the proposed Florists' Publicity Association. Many were already pledged to the new organization. The committee, of which William F. Ekas is chairman, in whose hands all of the details of the organization were placed by the club at its last meeting is determined to organize for the equitable collection of funds for publicity and organization in a way that will stand any strain that may be put upon it.

There is an erroneous idea abroad that the money collected by this means is to be used solely for newspaper advertising. This is not the case. A certain percentage will be turned over to the national publicity committee, the balance to be used for any purpose decided upon by the directors to promote the florists' industry. For instance, in the fall of 1922 the F. T. D. will hold its business meeting in our city. Could we have better publicity than this?

The idea is to let individuals take care of their own advertising. The publicity association's money will be used for the industry as a whole. One per cent of your sales or purchases is surely a small amount for this purpose. The time has come when the majority must take this

The Market.

Thanksgiving business cleaned up well and was satisfactory to all. Quantities of good chrysanthemums are seen in all the stores and the present outlook is that they may continue to reach us for some time. With Thanksgiving past, the stores have all changed their appearance and are now profusely showing the Christmas novelties in made-up wreaths, baskets of strawflowers, etc. According to the dealers, many orders are already placed. Laurel roping and other Christmas greens are being used for store front decorations and this helps to create the Christmas spirit.

Cut flowers are reaching us in good supply. The larger varieties of mums are, perhaps, not so plentiful. Pompons, however, are not in large supply. Plenty of violets are seen, but for some reason or other they are not being used extensively for corsage work, so the majority go into funeral work. These for the last few days sold for $1 per hundred. Excellent cattleyas are seen and the demand is good, although the prices keep up well. Cyripediums are plentiful and sell readily. Lily of the valley is good and moves well. The supply of carnations is not so large as it might be, but enough are received to supply the local demand. Good Delight, White Enchant-

Paper Whites and yellow narcissi are seen, but not in large quantities. Easter and calla lilies are not seen to any great extent, but they sell well. Excellent roses are seen and the demand continues good. Columbia, Ophelia, Sunburst, Double White Killarney, Hoosier Beauty, Premier and Ward are all in fair supply. Calendulas, baby's breath, mig-

LANKFORD'S Orders solicited for University of Va.

With larger quarters and new facilities, he is now able to render better service in all departments. He will operate a Christmas service store, for the month of December, at 806 Monroe avenue.

Cohen & Bloom, of the Rochester public market, are handling some good quality holly this year and are receiving it in large quantities.

John Shuster, of Darien Center, N. Y., who annually breeds approximately 1,000 or more canaries, has a large collection of them at the seed store of James Vick's Sons, at 49 Stone street. They are selling well and many orders have been placed for the coming holiday. We are glad to hear that William H. Dildine, president, has fully recovered from his serious illness, covering a period of several months, and is back again at his desk.

The monthly meeting of the Rochester Florists' Association will be held at headquarters in the Osborn House, Friday, December 9, when an interesting address will be given. The resignation of Ambrose Secker, as secretary, will be taken up at that time.

It is interesting, as well as encouraging, to note that several of the uptown florists after closing up their November business notice a favorable increase over the same month a year ago. This was the case in October. While this increase is not large, nevertheless, taking into

The Market.

Prices are being held down by the glut of mums still on the market. Fine Chadwick, Bonnaillon and other varieties are being cut in large quantities. Chadwick is being offered by the commission men for $3 and $4 per dozen; Bonnaillons, for $2 and $3. Fifty cents a bunch is asked for pompons in all colors. The flood of mums is affecting the prices of roses and carnations, which are of splendid quality and plentiful.

Various Notes.

T. J. Noll, president of the T. J. Noll Floral Co., says he never saw such a crop of chrysanthemums so late in the season. The last of the mums are usually in the market a week after Thanksgiving. At the present rate of cutting, mums will be in two weeks longer. Some of the late crop are only in bud. Mr. Noll anticipates a good holiday business.

Samuel Murray has two houses of Melior begonias that are said to be as fine as any ever grown in the United States. Those who have had the good fortune to visit the greenhouses say the plants are so uniform that they look like a carefully trimmed, massive, pink hedge. The most wonderful feature of the plants is that some of the leaf cuttings put in last January are now in 12-inch tubs. This is phenomenal growth.

Frank Stuppy and Mr. Mueller, of St. Joseph, Mo., and C. H. Frey, of Lincoln, Neb., were in the city the first part of last week. They left in Mr. Stuppy's Cadillac for southern Arkansas and Oklahoma for a hunting trip. They enjoyed a successful quail shooting December 1, with Mr. Furrow and Mr. Stiles, of Oklahoma City, Okla.

Martin Reukauf, of H. Bayersdorfer & Co., and Robert Newcomb, of the Burlington Willow Ware Shops, were in the city last week.

Longview Farm will have a fine crop of roses for Christmas. These houses will have a heavy crop of Milady.

R. O. Hines, Leavenworth, Kan.; E. E. Kice and Joseph W. Whitsell, Muskogee, Okla.; L. H. Archias, Carl Hagemeyer, Paola, Kan., and Mr. and Mrs. William Hasselman, Independence, Kan., were recent visitors.

C. J. Tucker, manager of Longview Farm, has returned from the Chicago cattle show. Mr. Tucker also attended the horse show in New York.

William Wade has resigned as assistant manager of the Stuppy Supply Co. and has accepted a position with the William L. Rock Flower Co. Joseph Griffiths, who has been in the wholesale department of the Stuppy Floral Co., St. Joseph, Mo., for the last five years, has succeeded Mr. Wade.

A. Newell's force is working on novelties for the holidays. Strawflower arrangements in baskets and bowls and colonial corsages are being made. Mr. Newell is specializing in Christmas wreaths, especially for cemetery use. All of the cones, grasses and cat-tails used are being painted in the Newell shop.

J. E. Murray & Co. made a handsome blanket of Butterfly roses, violets and orchids for the Thomas R. Morrow funeral, December 1. It also made a 6-foot cross of Sunrise roses and orchids and two large sprays of mums. More than 800 roses were used in the blanket and 700 in the cross. The cross was of solid white carnations under the roses. Business was extremely good all the week in Miss Murray's shop.

The eighth annual banquet of the local St. Andrew's society was held December 1, in the Hotel Baltimore. Dr. W. R. Wedderston, of Chicago, was the principal speaker. Samuel Murray followed his usual custom of furnishing the decorations and favors for the occasion. Woodwardia was used on the chandeliers, and ferns and palms about the banquet room. Twenty-five tables, each seating eight persons, were decorated with Premier roses and purple heather. Corsages of Premier and Columbia roses and heather were presented to the 100 women guests. Miss Hayden arranged the decorations.

R. L. Isherwood, of Chillicothe, Mo., is now general manager of the Pinehurst Floral Co., in Pleasant Hill, Mo.

An executive meeting of officers and trustees of the Florists' Club was held December 1, in the office of William L. Rock. Those present were: W. J. Barnes, William Wade, L. R. Bohannon, William L. Rock, C. A. Chandler, Robert Fields, P. A. Manson and Arthur Smith. Mr. Rock presided and appointed the following committees to prepare for the S. A. F. convention next August: Convention hall, Samuel Murray, W. J. Barnes, W. L. Rock; banquet or barbecue, E. A. Humfeld and L. R. Bohannon; membership S. A. F., P. A. Manson on road and A. R. Smith, city; program, L. R. Bohannon, chairman; automobiles, Robert Fields and C. A. Chandler.

M. E. Carter, manager of the William L. Rock Flower Co., worked all the week on the Allied Charities campaign. The goal was $750,000. This amount was exceeded by more than $17,000. J. E. K.

CINCINNATI, O.

The Market.

Conditions here are much the same as they were last week, with the exception of the enormous amount of good stock. Mums are not to be had in the better varieties and the poorer ones fail to move. Pompons move fairly well. Carnations find a good market, selling at $3 to $4 per hundred. Roses now are more prominent than last week, but do not move any better because of business conditions, which are much unsettled.

Calla lilies are seen more and more daily as their season comes on. They move well, because of their popularity here and price. Valley finds a good market, because of the limited amount arriving and because of the reasonable price. Violets can be had now at 50 cents to $1 per hundred, but the flowers are still small and therefore these do not move readily.

Stevia, an ever welcome flower, is now to be had and it moves out well on every shipment.

Green goods move well, including

The florists have had a pretty good week, considering the condition of the weather, which has been cloudy and rainy. In fact, we have nearly forgotten how sunshine feels. Roses are in great demand now that the mums are gone. Carnations are scarce in this market and are not of the best quality, owing to the dark weather. A good demand for plants for sick rooms has been felt.

strong demand for roses. He is carrying a fine assortment of cherries, prim-roses and cyclamens.

The Blossom Floral Co. has purchased a new Ford truck. This firm has had a good business and a great demand for potted plants.

A number of Holland bulb salesmen have visited the florists during the last week.

George M. Eggleston and wife, of Angola, Ind., were recent trade visitors.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

During the last week there has been little change in the market. Stock has been arriving in large quantities, especially chrysanthemums, pompons and Paper White narcissi. The demand for these goods is limited. The majority of retail florists are reporting business slow, the larger part of their business depending mostly upon debutantes and marriages. One florist from a local suburb reported that he had not had a funeral for six months. This, of course, is favorable in one way, but not profitable for the florist.

The supply of roses last week was not exceptionally large. Some good Columbia, Premier, White Ophelia and Crusader have been in the market the last week. The demand for American Beauty roses was exceptionally heavy during the last week and in some cases it was not possible to take care of all orders, especially in the longer grades. The supply of lilies is exceptionally large at the present time and the demand is limited, thus causing the market to be glutted with lilies at times. Lily of the valley has also been plentiful, but has been moving out fairly well. Violets are beginning to come in daily, but there is absolutely no demand for them.

Stevia is another item that has been coming into the market in large quantities.

ties and is moving well. Sweet peas are also being received, but the demand is limited. Business during the last week has been reported only fair, but, no doubt, this is caused by just passing through the Thanksgiving holiday season. The majority of wholesale houses are exceptionally busy in their supply department, getting out Christmas goods. These departments make one feel that we shall have an exceptionally good Christmas season.

The Market.

Last week found the market still congested with mums, as Thanksgiving did not begin to clean them all up. The beginning of last week's business was rather slow, but toward the end it picked up considerably and took on some of the old-time "pep," which seemed good after the long siege of slow business.

ness. Roses are still rather scarce, while carnations are getting better daily. Pompons are still coming, although the average quality is not so good as it was previously. A few Easter lilies and callas are appearing and good double and single violets are now coming in regularly. Paper White narcissi are making their appearance, but are moving slowly. String smilax has been arriving, but has moved slowly. Leucothoe leaves are on the market and are being used extensively by the trade.

BOSTON, MASS.

The Market.

Business is only moderately good. It is never brisk between Thanksgiving and Christmas, and quiet conditions generally prevail until the festive season begins. The quantities of flowers arriving are being steadily reduced, and there is no unwieldy surplus to handle, as there was a few weeks ago. Chrysanthemums begin to show signs of age in many cases, and only a limited number of single-stemmed blooms are now of good quality. Seidewitz is prominent and a good number of Bonnaffon still come in. The old Maud Dean, Chadwick, Frick, Wells' Late Pink and a few others are also seen. Some bunch pompons and singles are still arriving. Mrs. Wilcox sells well, as does Mrs. Godfrey and single pink.

Roses are in smaller supply, and prices are firmer all along the line, with short-stemmed stock bringing $8 to $10 per hundred. There is a marked shortage of red blooms; growers are timing as many of these for Christmas as possible. Columbia and Ophelia continue to meet with the largest sales, but Mme. Butterfly is a coming favorite. Carnations are rather weak, but should improve now that mums are passing. Their quality is first-class. Violets are lower, although the flowers are now of a fine size and color. Of pansies there is a fair supply, as there is of calendulas, myosotis, bachelor's buttons and yellow marguerites. Snapdragons are mostly short-stemmed. Sweet peas are arriving with extra fine stems. The best of these bring $2.50 to $3 per hundred, but a good

The Aftermath of the Great Storm.

The terrible ice storm, mentioned in last week's Review, commenced on the morning of November 26 and continued until November 28, rain falling all that time, with the temperature below freezing. The consequent weight of the ice on the trees was terrible, and a large area in Massachusetts and some parts of other New England states suffered enormous damage. Hundreds of miles of telephone and electric light wires are still down. Many towns and cities are dependent upon gas, oil or candles for light. The street car service in many sections is abandoned. Orchards are seriously damaged and shade trees are either leveled entirely or disfigured beyond redemption. The larger and more handsome trees, with a great branch area, suffered the worst, and thousands of beautiful elms, oaks, maples, lindens and willows present a truly pitiful sight. Woodlands in the Gardeners' Conference.

A conference of the New England members of the National Association of Gardeners was held at Horticultural hall, November 30. The transportation systems being largely paralyzed prevented the attendance of many gardeners from a distance, but a good meeting was held. W. N. Craig presided, and in his introductory remarks stated that arrangements were being made for a professional gardeners' course in the Massachusetts Agricultural College at Amherst, to commence in 1922. Full details of the plan will be announced later.

It was voted to hold the Boston convention before the middle of September; two days were to be devoted to business and two to sight-seeing trips. Meetings would be held in Horticultural hall. There was a general discussion of problems pertaining to the craft, participated in by M. C. Ebel, who came from New York for the meeting, Robert Cameron, William Downs, I. H. Westwood, James Donald, W. H. Golby, George F. Stewart, W. D. Coutts and others. It was voted to organize a local branch of the National Association of Gardeners, with meetings at times to

Various Notes.

Committees representing the retailers and growers met, and had a further conference, December 3, in an attempt to iron out existing differences. The result of the meeting was not announced, but a conciliatory attitude was adopted by both parties, which is encouraging.

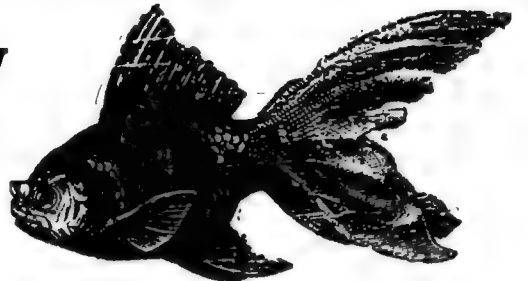

Frank J. Edgar's wonderful cyclamens are attracting a host of visitors. They are the best he has ever had, and are selling fast, many going to New York parties. One half of his new house contains a fine lot of poinsettias, cinerarias filling the remaining half. A splendid lot of begonias, chiefly Melior, are in good shape for the holidays. Chrysanthemums are about all cut, while hydrangeas and roses are being prepared to occupy all vacant spaces. Mr. Edgar mourns the destruction of a grand elm and some old apple trees, in the terrible ice storm of last week.

The King Construction Co. has the contract for the construction of a greenhouse for Castle Hill Farms, Ipswich, where Robert Cameron presides. The dimensions of this house are 16x160 feet.

A local retailer had an order for 100 white carnations a few days ago, and wired to New York for them. Local wholesale prices were $4 for the best stock. The New York price delivered was more than $15, and a tag within the box indicated that the flowers were grown by a specialist quite near Boston.

December 20, when the next meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club will be held, F. E. Palmer will speak on cyclamen culture; James Marlborough, on winter-flowering begonias of the

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Business in the New York cut flower market is little improved. The supply has shortened considerably, but the demand has diminished to an extent which permits of no advantage due to a lessened supply. It is usual, in this market, to expect only a moderate demand for flowers from now until the opening of the holiday business, but the sales of last week do not augur well for this period.

The bulk of the chrysanthemum cut is out of the way, but the market is still well supplied with the autumn flower, chiefly of the mid-sized varieties, pompons and singles. The larger sorts bring from $2 to $4 per hundred, with selected stock occasionally bringing $5. The bulk of the others move at about three bunches for $1, with one or two varieties a little better. Roses are plentiful, and fairly good. The supply of special grades is greater and the demand for them is somewhat better. American Beauty is in liberal supply at quotations last reported. Hybrid teas have stiffened in price a little, long-stemmed stock moving to the $20 mark, for the best. From the No. 2 grade to specials, the range of price is $3 to $20.

Carnations are plentiful, but their movement is fairly active within a range of $3 to $6 per hundred, one or two varieties bringing $8. The variety Mrs. C. W. Ward is in greatest demand, for the reason that it is not in full crop just now. Orchids continue scarce, and arrivals clean up easily at prices previously quoted. Reports are to the effect that the Christmas supply will be good, and the shortage just now is, perhaps, correctly explained by the holding back for Christmas prices. Lilies are not particularly plentiful and the market absorbs arrivals well at $20 to $25 per hundred. Callas are fairly plentiful at $2 to $3 per dozen. Lily of the valley continues in good supply at $2 to $6 per hundred sprays, with a little selected stock occasionally bringing $8.

HINDE & DAUCH FLORAL BOXES

SPECIALLY constructed to meet the rigid requirements of floral shipments, H & D Boxes are the accepted standard of the trade. Strong, sturdy and economical. No gaping of the boxes under the weight of other merchandise in transit. Cut flowers and plants are invariably in better delivery condition when packed in these specially designed containers. All standard and special sizes to your order. All comply with parcel post and express regulations.

Hinde & Dauch Corrugated Fiber Board Boxes are light-weight, accurately cut containers that afford a most economical and satisfactory packing method. Prices on request. Give specifications.

There is a considerable variety offered in miscellaneous flowers. Paper White narcissi are plentiful, and move at three bunches for $1. A considerable amount of the yellow variety, Soleil d'Or, is available, too, at the same price. Violets are plentiful enough for the demand, good stock bringing $50 to $75 per thousand. Sweet peas are not overabundant and arrivals sell within a range of $2.50 to $4 per hundred, with selected stock bringing as much as $6. Pansies, wallflowers, mignonette, myosotis, calendulas, forced gladioli, delphiniums, snapdragons and bouvardia make up the rest of the offerings, and meet a moderate demand.

Various Notes.

The first holly and pine roping from the south came into the market last week, but few sales are reported, and most of the arrivals went into the warehouse. So far, the little business done in holly was at $7.50 per case. The quality is considered to be fairly good, and there is no question as to a liberal supply for the season.

Amsterdam avenue, from December 7 to 23.

John Young, secretary of the S. A. F., left December 5 for Scranton, Pa., to make an address before the Scranton Florists' Club, December 6.

A large attendance is expected at the meeting, December 12, of the New York Florists' Club, in the Engineering Societies' building, 25 West Thirty-ninth street. It will be election night, and with three candidates in the field for the presidency, a lively time is anticipated. It is some years since there has been an actual contest for this office. The candidates are Roman J. Irwin, Arthur Herrington and J. H. Fiesser, each of whom is popular and has a good following of the members.

Thomas Roland, Northampton, Mass., and S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia, were visitors last week. Richard Vincent, Jr., was in the city on business connected with the American Dahlia Society, December 5.

George Heebe, the violet grower of Rhinebeck, N. Y., was a visitor at the establishment of his wholesaler, Joseph S. Fenrich, of the Eighteenth street flower market, last week. He brought with him some loose violets which he made up into a regular bunch, and rarely has your correspondent seen such a bunch in point of quality. It could have been sold a hundred times over, but, alas, these violets were destined for Mr. Fenrich's better half, whose fondness for violets is well known among her friends in the trade. J. H. P.

HARTFORD, CONN.

The Market.

After a continuous rain storm, lasting a week, followed by clearing and beautiful weather December 3, the call for cut flowers was moderate. The call for funeral pieces at some of the stores has been heavy, caused by the many deaths reported in this city. Carnations of good quality have advanced to $1.50 and $2 retail. Roses are $2 to $4. Paper White narcissi are selling at $1 per ten. Violets of good quality are $1.50 per bunch of fifty. Chrysanthemums are about finished, except some late-flowering pompons.

Various Notes.

The W. W. Thomson Co., of West Hartford, has the finest carnations coming into this market, with a good demand. The company's violets have also improved in form and color. Demand for the chrysanthemums, which were of fine quality, was heavy this season and several thousand were sold in the New York market. The entire crop has been cleaned up well.

The demand for goldfish in glass bowls is heavy at J. Albert Brodrib's. A tasteful and snappy advertisement, in the Daily Times, brought them business. "Nothing like telling the people what you have to offer," says Mr. Brodrib.

A meeting, called by Wallace Pier-son, of the different committees on the coming flower show, was held at the Hotel Bond December 6.

Kenneth Mackay is feeling rather proud these days. The stork presented him with a 9-pound baby boy, Ken-neth Stilman Mackay, recently.

Carl Peterson is out again, after a severe case of blood poisoning, caused by a blood blister which he received while working among his carnations.

Luckily, Mr. Peterson's robust health stood him in good stead, as at one time it was thought one hand would be amputated, but he is convalescing favorably.

Al. Linder, of the Cedar Hill Greenhouses, was the first grower here to offer Paper White narcissi, and is having a good demand.

George F. Lane, of Asylum street, went over the road and spent a few days in Boston, buying cyclamens and other plants for his Christmas trade, last week. He found this a rough trip with a machine, after the heavy storm which visited the section over which he rode. From Springfield to Boston every telegraph and telephone pole was down, with masses of tangled wire strewn about, which it will take months to repair. Hundreds of acres of woodlands and orchards were destroyed, and one is reminded of the events of the war, when looking at the landscape.

tion of several hundred people who pass the show windows of the Spear & McManus Co. daily. It is a beautiful deep bronze color, changing to a lighter bronze when fully open, and exceedingly prolific. C. B. M.

NEWARK, N. J.

The Market.

Everything is in readiness for the early Christmas sale of wreaths, ropes, etc. Florists are now beginning to put their Christmas specialties in the windows as a part of their regular window displays. Christmas plants are also arriving and are ready for an early sale. Notwithstanding the business depression, the local florists expect to do a good business during the approaching holidays. The indications are that, while prices will be higher than they have been for the last few weeks, they will be lower than those of any Christmas for three or four years, perhaps longer.

Various Notes.

The Rosary Floral Co., Market street, near Broad, received its full supply of Christmas specialties with the exception of plants and flowers. The members of this firm look for a good holiday business.

John A. Feley opened a flower store this week at 233 Springdale avenue, West Orange. Mr. Foley was formerly in business in New York. R. B. M.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.

The Market.

Business is dull, but not alarmingly so, as there is usually a lethargy at this time of the year. Stock is plentiful. It is not, however, in such abundance as was the case in previous weeks, and little goes to waste. Chrysanthemums are available in white, pink and yellow in the large types. Some pompons are to be had. The demand is none too brisk. Carnations are about equal to the demand. These have been none too plentiful all the season and the price has been steady at from $4 to $6 per hundred. Roses are scarce, the result of pinching back the crop for Christmas. Prices have been holding well at from $6 per hundred up. Narcissi have been arriving in larger supply and are bringing good prices. Stevia is popular, selling readily. Other stock includes sweet peas, violets, calendulas and orchids. The demand for these has been slow. Potted plants are not in demand at the present time. However, the Christmas trade will utilize everything available in this line, as the supply is not particularly large.

Various Notes.

Mr. Huddleson, of the Ove Gnatt Co., called on the trade last week.

Bertermann Bros. Co. has added an attractive new car to its delivery service.

The Thanksgiving Pink chrysanthemum of Baur & Steinkamp has developed into an attractive potted plant. It is a dark late pink which will be in good demand for the holiday season.

Adam Scheidler, of Muncie, and A. S. Pett, of Crawfordsville, Ind., were visitors this week.

Peter Bogas is in the St. Vincent hospital, where he underwent an operation.

FOR

Florists' Trade

Hill's Xmas Trees are cut fresh the day your order is shipped. They arrive bright and fresh, so that the needles will remain on until the Holiday season is over.

NOTE: As shown in illustration, trees are shipped without roots. Some of our customers prefer to use trees with roots for potting. We will gladly furnish trees with roots, if specified at time of placing order, in which case no holder is furnished.

Trees are packed in wooden cases and are shipped by express, so as to arrive a few days before Xmas. These prices include attractive holders painted green. Retail prices, 50c, 75c and $1.00 each.

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Business is "spotty," in the expression of one of the downtown dealers. There are few funerals. There is a scattering of wedding work, but nothing like the usual amount at this season. Chrysanthemums have gone over the top for this season and are beginning to give place to other offerings. Roses, always popular in Providence circles, hold well to the front and the demand about keeps pace with the cut. Several of the larger growers, however, still find an outlet through Boston and New York for most of their stock. The long period of dark, damp, rainy weather has set the carnations back temporarily, and their price stiffened several cents, but a few bright, sunny days will bring them back in abundance and quality. The vanguard of the green goods men reached town last week, heralding the approach of the Christmas holidays.

A Dependable Source of Supply

We want to suggest that you place your order for December and the Holidays' supply of GREENS at an early date. It may save disappointment. We are prepared to take care of your orders and make immediate or future shipments as wanted.

We have a good supply of GREEN GALAX, DAGGER FERNS and PREPARED BRONZE GALAX. The Natural Bronze Galax coming in slowly and expected in ample supply by Dec. 15th. The Green Leucothoe plentiful now, the Bronze Leucothoe a few weeks later. The Laurel Tips, Laurel Festooning and Natural Green Lycopodium all ready for immediate shipment.

Every Florist should have some Prepared Oak on hand. A few pounds makes a big show and can be used several times over.

Try us on a small order of Oak and Magnolia Wreaths and let us show you something good.

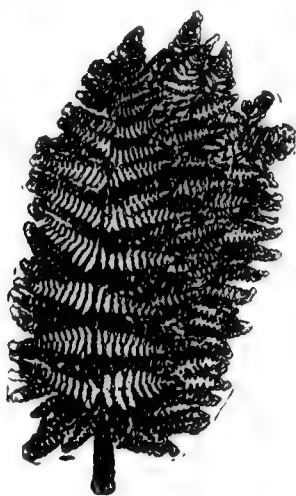

Remember our stock of GREEN GALAX and DAGGER FERNS (as well as Bronze Galax, little later) will be ample to supply your wants on a moment's notice, for December, January and probably all of February. You can depend on it. Write for illustrated folder.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

LOS ANGELES, CAL.

The Market.

While the Thanksgiving business, both in the retail stores and with the wholesalers, was all that could be desired, a considerable slump followed and the early part of the following week was by no means good. Funeral work saved the day for the retailers, but, aside from this trade, there was little activity. The stores already are taking on a holiday appearance. Cyclamens, poinsettias, plant baskets and other items are to be seen. Cut poinsettias are coming in nicely now and are of excellent quality. Mums are practically gone in the large blooms, but there are too many pompons for the demand. The violet situation is much improved and the flowers ship well. Roses, carnations and other leaders are about as last reported. Good heather is arriving and buyers at a distance should insist upon getting the best quality sent out by the leading wholesalers. All the green goods men are busy preparing for Christmas. Carloads of decorative stock are arriving daily.

Various Notes.

Indicating how a good class of florists will go into the outlying districts of the city, Harrison G. Morgan opened a store this week at 1913 South Western avenue. Mr. Morgan, who came to this city from San Francisco some years ago, has been working in the leading stores here, including Lichtenberg's and the Dostal-Wolters Flower Shop. He is a clever florist, used to high-class work and well liked by everyone in the trade. He is located at Western avenue and Washington street.

Tassano Bros. & Co. have opened a fine store at 912 South Broadway for the Christmas season, where they will handle their specialties in Christmas trees and decorations of all kinds.

Arthur Gleave, of Santa Barbara, was in this city last week on his way home from an extended eastern trip. He left Santa Barbara six weeks ago and visited Portland and Seattle, going east via Chicago to New York, Boston, Philadelphia and Washington, returning via New Orleans and Texas. Mr. Gleave had been working hard for a long time and he certainly looks as though his trip had improved his health. He is doing his Christmas buying and has placed large plant orders with Walter Armacost & Co., F. R. Hills and others. He speaks highly of the wonderful cyclamens at Armacost's, and also of the new additions to the greenhouses there.

At the store of the E. C. Amling Co., on Wall street, large quantities of Christmas greens and similar stock are being unloaded, evidently in expectation of a strong local demand. The roses are arriving in fine shape now from the Santa Ana range of Amling Bros.

John Miller, the railroad man who was so badly injured north of Chicago some years ago while trying to save the life of a woman whose foot had become lodged between the rails of the track, arrived in Los Angeles recently. He hopes that by selling flowers he will be able to remain in southern California, and benefit by its sunny climate.

The Broadway Florist reports a busy week and every day large quantities of funeral work go out. The funeral of the Southern Pacific railroad officials, killed in the recent accident here, called for a large amount of good work.

S. Murata & Co. are receiving extra fine roses now.

Thomas Wright has just returned from a trip to Death Valley, where he has been looking after his mining interests. He was accompanied by state officials who have been looking into the question of selling stock in this venture. According to Mr. Wright, there is the biggest deposit of magnesium sulphate in the world on his land and, as this material is used in every rubber tire made, it looks as though he is in for a good thing.

Manager Williamson, of Walter Armacost & Co., says that orders are coming in earlier and more freely this year for Christmas stock than at any previous time in his experience. Plants, especially, are in big demand and he is also pleased with the fact that, out of the many thousands of cyclamens shipped this season, not a single complaint has been received, but, on the contrary, many letters of commendation for the excellent stock and methods of shipping are on file.

George Eischen, manager of the Alexandria Florist, started November 29 on a trip to Baldwin lake. He was accompanied by O. H. Drew, whom eastern seedsmen will remember as being in the mail order seed business in Hibernia, N. Y., some years ago. Mr. Drew has a 70-acre ranch high up in the mountains and is always pleased to see any persons connected with the trade when they are on a duck hunting expedition or fishing trip.

W. Clark, who is with C. Groen at the Montebello nursery, is now blessed with a son. Both Mrs. Clark and the baby are doing well.

WE NEVER MISS

Armacost's Christmas Catechism

Quick answers to timely questions designed to save your time, postage stamps, telegraph tolls and patience, and to help you make money.

- Q. How will your Rose crop be this Christmas?
A. We will have a heavy crop, being particularly strong on Milady, Columbia and Russell.
- Q. How will your prices run?
A. The same as last year. Price lists are being mailed this week. Be sure that you get yours.
- Q. Can you furnish us with a good proportion of short to medium lengths?
A. Yes. We will be especially strong on medium length stock this year.
- Q. Will your stock be nice and clean?
A. Certainly. Am surprised that you should ask such a question.
- Q. What will you have in Pot Plants?
A. Principally Cyclamens.
- Q. Why don't you grow a greater variety of stock?
A. Because Cyclamens are the most satisfactory plants in the market today. They come in a great range of colors; are beautiful both in foliage and flower, and are profitable to the dealer and satisfactory to the purchaser.
- Q. Are they cheaper than last year?
A. Yes. A postal card will bring you the price list if your name is not on our mailing list.
- Q. Do you have Table Ferns?
A. Only two varieties left—nice, bushy, 3-inch stock for $15.00 per 100.
- Q. Are we still in time to order Pot Heather?
A. We are sold out on all sizes except 4-inch at 75c and 8-inch at $2.50 to $3.50.
- Q. Can you furnish us with Pot Poinsettias and Begonias?
A. We did not grow Poinsettias this year and Begonias will not ship through satisfactorily.
- Q. Can we get all the Plumosus that we want?
A. Yes, of course. We grow 15 acres.
- Q. Will you have Valley for Christmas?
A. All you want at $8.00 per 100.
- Q. Can we get outdoor flowers such as Poinsettias, Carnations, Marguerites, Violets, etc?
A. Yes. We are Headquarters.
- Q. Do you carry Florists' Supplies?
A. Yes. Tell us your wants. We can supply them.
- Q. Which is the BIGGEST, BEST AND BUSIEST STORE IN THE WEST?

Florists' Exchange was held at the market, November 30, with a large number in attendance. Thanks to the hard work of W. Kent, everything was ready on time and a picnic supper was enjoyed, after which a lively entertainment program was carried out. S. Purdie was again the entertainment committee and did well. John C. Bodger was referee at the boxing contest. Thomas Wright, H. E. Gage and other officers of the exchange also helped in various ways to make the evening a success. H. R. R.

OAKLAND, CAL.

The Market.

The Thanksgiving trade in Oakland and other east bay cities was above expectations at most of the establishments, its volume being sufficiently large to cause the florists to look forward to the greatest Christmas business they have ever had. Chrysanthemums showed the effects of the early frost and rain, especially the large blooms, but there was a fair supply of mums and an abundance of salable medium and small varieties to meet the demand. Other outdoor stock is holding its own with remarkable persistency in spite of the wintry weather. Indoor carnations show excellent quality and are in good demand. Shortening of the supply of outdoor roses has caused prices to advance.

Potted plants were a big item in the Thanksgiving trade, cyclamens being offered as well as azaleas and Boston ferns. There was also a limited supply of poinsettias. The outlook is favorable for an ample supply of fine poinsettias and rhododendrons for Christmas. California red berries are scarcer than usual, for this time of the year, owing to the restrictions placed upon their being gathered in certain localities.

Various Notes.

Mr. Harris, of Thomas & Harris, said that the Thanksgiving trade was like that of a young Christmas. The staff of this firm was up nearly all night filling orders for table decorations. He added, "Tell the people we're members of the optimists' club. This is a great year." Edward Daniels, formerly with Clarke Bros., has been added to the staff.

G. Rossi & Co. opened a new store at 921 K street, Sacramento, Cal. Mr. Rossi says that stock is plentiful and good. There is still some outdoor stock arriving, in spite of the recent rains. Chrysanthemums were better this Thanksgiving than usual. Cyclamens and first-class Boston ferns are now coming in. Azaleas sold well for Thanksgiving. Rhododendrons are expected by Christmas.

A. E. Evers, of Hogan & Evers, was well satisfied with the Thanksgiving business, as it showed some increase over last year. Frost on two mornings last week ruined most of the outside stock and did several thousand dollars' worth of damage in the more exposed districts. However, the greenhouses are in fine shape, with good Christmas stock. Poinsettias are expected to be unusually good this Christmas. Some were already on the market for Thanksgiving. Hogan & Evers plan to lay in the biggest supply of Christmas stock they have ever had. Mr. Evers is especially enthusiastic over the telegraph business, which is growing by leaps and bounds.

Mr. Clarke, of Clarke Bros., 1129 Clay street, said it was a pleasure to see someone who asked for something other than money. According to his observations, the rains have spoiled most of the outdoor roses and caused prices to treble within the last ten days. Most of the outdoor stock is about gone, including chrysanthemums. A new lot of carnations are arriving on the market and are of good quality. California red berries were in demand for Thanksgiving, but the quality has been poor, owing to the late rains. Various associations are endeavoring to prevent the picking of red berries, claiming that the shrubs are being exterminated. Should they succeed, the berries will disappear from the market. M. M.

SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.

The Market.

The lull following Thanksgiving has rendered the market somewhat quiet, although business is still reported to be fair. In spite of nearly a week of rainy weather, the outside stock is far from having given out. This rain, however, has been warm and not heavy enough to beat the life out of the stock. There is still a good supply of satisfactory large chrysanthemums, although they are not of such good quality as the mums of two weeks ago, especially for shipping. The end of the chrysanthemum season is at hand, although the Japanese market has been well supplied with them to date. There will be pompon mums until after the Christmas holidays, unless the weather should become unusually inclement. Plenty of medium-sized chrysanthemums are also coming in. Carnations are in greater abundance. There are plenty of Ophelia and Columbia roses, the only shortage of these being in Russells. The outdoor offering consists of marigolds, both the common varieties and the French, some stocks and a few other garden flowers. Violets are plentiful and good. The only real shortage is in orchids, gardenias and lilies of the valley. Orchids, especially, are scarce and in considerable demand.

Various Notes.

Mrs. Gooch, wife of General A. J. Gooch, of Darbee's, is at her position in the store again, having fully recovered her health.

M. Thomas, of the Thomas Floral Co., of which he was the senior partner, has left for Egypt, where he proposes to spend some time. His brother, Thomas Thomas, is continuing the Polk street store under his own name. John Russo has purchased the Conservatory, at Geary and Larkin streets, while a Greek firm, the members of which were associated with M. Thomas, now controls the Thomas store, at Jones and O'Farrell streets.

The Conservatory reports satisfactory business in weddings and funerals.

F. C. Jaeger & Son are placing orders for Christmas berries and redwood sprays somewhat extensively. They anticipate a good business in forest products this year. Drastic action is being taken by county authorities to prevent automobilists in Marin and other counties from entering the forests and helping themselves to sprays and berries.

J. A. Axell came well to the fore with several large mounds of valley when the market was almost depleted in this stock.

Fred Moore, of Meldrum's, Sacramento, has been calling on the San Francisco trade and placing holiday orders. He says that the Thanksgiving business in Sacramento surpassed all expectations in the number of flowers ordered.

H. A. Avansino, who purchased a nursery at San Leandro recently, is cutting his Columbia roses.

G. J. Arellano has added the Casino theater to the houses that buy cut flowers and potted plants weekly. They use them to enhance the attractiveness of the stage settings.

The Growers' Floral Co. is handling a number of good violets. Yukichi Noda also states that the firm is dealing extensively in dried statice and helichrysum. Shipments of colored mats and plant tubs have recently been received from Japan in ample quantities to take care of the trade.

The Market.

Thanksgiving found the market none too well supplied to meet the demand, especially in chrysanthemums. The main stock seen was Turners, Bonnaffons, pompons, pink and white Chieftains, with a limited supply of Chadwicks. A number of orders were turned down by the wholesalers for out-of-town shipment. All these varieties are not only winter-flowering, but they will produce more and better flowers out of doors than the old late Spencers, because they bloom 3 to 4 weeks earlier, before the hot weather sets in. Plant after the Chrysanthemum and get full crop for Easter. Plant in cool frames or outdoors just before the freezing begins and get full crop in May for Decoration Day. Plant out of doors in the spring and they will bloom early in June.

and carnations were in keeping with the demand. Violets were sparingly seen at the market, on account of the trains being blocked by snow in the mountains. A few potted mums were to be had, together with cyclamens and primulas.

Thanksgiving weather was mild and the demand for flowers was good. The stock offered by the various stores was of such a quality that the public received full value. The price remained the same; consequently the buying was brisk and most of the stores were sold out by noon Thanksgiving day. The larger varieties of mums sold first, with pompons next in the lead. Roses and carnations were not much sought, while potted plants gave way to cut flowers.

Various Notes.

E. Hedger, of the Davenport Flower Shop, reports a good business, especially in the morning of November 24.

The City Floral Co., recently opened, reports business for the holiday beyond expectations.

Jack Burt's large windows were filled with a stock of mums, which moved well. Mr. Burt was pleased with the Thanksgiving trade.

S. Yonkin, of Hoyt Bros. Co., reports a record business for Thanksgiving. The fact that prices were not advanced November 25 increased the demand for flowers.

The reports from Eugene's Flower Shop and the Spokane Florist Co. bear the same good tidings. Wholesalers are now receiving orders for the large Christmas harvest.

The Florists' Club of Spokane sent a large basket of Columbia roses to the room occupied by Marshal Foch at the Davenport hotel November 29.

The regular meeting of the Florists' Club was held December 6, at which the election of the chairman was in order.

Vases were donated to the three hospitals of the city by the Florists' Club. Men of the trade believe if the right-sized vase is used, the flowers will last much longer in the hospitals. H. H.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

Good general business was the rule for Thanksgiving week and the following days were marked by such a rush of funeral work that retailers were hard pressed for sufficient stock in a number of lines. An outstanding feature of the Thanksgiving business this year was the way the public demanded standard lines.

High-priced mums were cleaned up and this was also true of the more expensive roses, while medium-priced offerings, for which there is generally the largest demand, were the last to sell. Total sales, however, were greater than those of a year ago and, in a number of cases, better prices were secured on first-grade offerings than formerly. In some cases retailers, who had purchased lightly in anticipation of slower business, had to send calls for more stock at the last minute. Chrysanthemums were in the largest demand and advertising by the Seattle Florists' Association, aided by the individual efforts of the retailers, is admitted to have been the promoting factor. Window streamers, carrying the words "Say Thanksgiving with Flowers," and used by every retailer belonging to the association, called the attention of shoppers to the window dis-local supply was cleaned up, and the Portland market had to be drawn on for additional supplies. Lily of the valley is plentiful and of good quality, while bouvardia is common. The cut of roses has not picked up fast, but it, nevertheless, retains its pace with the general demand. Carnations are coming to hand in the best of condition for this season, especially Laddie. Among the potted offerings cyclamens continue the leader. Ferns and small potted pompons are also good sellers, but the primrose is a little slow in arriving this season.

Various Notes.

F. Schlager, of the Key City Greenhouses, Port Townsend, was a visitor last week. He is shipping large quantities of Oregon grape at this time and advises that the 1921 crop of holly is the finest he has seen in a number of years.

Felix Rosaia developed a novelty recently through the use of a flower pot, violets and violet leaves. The leaves were heaped so as to form a mound of foliage, hiding the pot. The violets were so wired as to produce six or seven standing stalks of blooms. This shop enjoyed a rush of funeral work over the week-end following Thanksgiving.

Great activity is reported at the greenhouses of the Hollywood Gardens. Laddie and pink and white Delight carnations are at their best and there is a good cut of Hadley, Russell, Ophelia and Butterfly roses. Sweet pea planting is now under way and Gus Bjorkman, of this greenhouse, advises that about all the mums except pompons have disappeared. An attractive window was featured just before Thanksgiving, which consisted of a mass of flowers flowing from the mouth of an overturned golden cornucopia, about three and a half feet in diameter.

A wholesale house has been opened at 1008 Post street, Seattle, by B. E. Hammond, who has been actively engaged in the flower business at Edmonton and Calgary for a number of years, and who will carry on a local and shipping business. His father will remain in Alberta, but Mrs. Hammond's health necessitated her removal to a milder climate. Mr. Hammond has had a considerable amount of experience as a grower, in ad-

Seed Trade News

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.
President, L. L. Olds, Madison, Wis.; secretary-treasurer, C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

A RECEIVER has been appointed for the Holmes Seed Co., Harrisburg, Pa.

W. F. VAN DER SCHOOT and J. Res, representing R. A. van der Schoot, of Hillegom, Holland, arrived recently on the S.S. Noordam.

No free seeds are included in the Department of Agriculture budget for next year, particulars of which will be found in the article on a forward page headed "Government Makes Budget."

LESTER L. MORSE, of San Francisco, is on an eastern trip. He was at Chicago last week and commented on the degree of cheerfulness he noted in the demeanor of certain seedsmen there.

SEEDSMEN who have been submitting an inventory of stock growing in their trial grounds or seed farms will learn that they may discontinue doing so, in the article headed "Growers' Income Taxes" on a forward page.

THE Senate finance committee, it is expected, will hold hearings on the Fordney tariff bill covering grass and other seeds and bulbs next week. Further report of this matter appears on a forward page, under "Tariff Hearings."

THE onion set market is extremely quiet. The supply of sets is small and prices nominally are rather high, well above the contract growing price, but there is nothing doing at present, with an uneasy feeling that the small supply may prove more than enough.

D. B. GURNEY, president of the Gurney Seed & Nursery Co., Yankton, S. D., is sojourning in Chicago for a month, editing and supervising the publication of the company's general catalogue for 1922. The book will contain 160 pages and the run will be half a million copies.

PROOFSHEETS of some of the 1922 general catalogues suggest that some members of the seed trade do not know the war is over. One instance has come to notice in which seed corn is so priced that a farmer in Iowa would have to haul to market about eight bushels of his 1921 crop in order to buy a quart of the catalogue corn.

At the store of James Vick's Sons, Rochester, N. Y., John Shuster, of Davien Center, N. Y., a breeder of canaries, has a large collection. These sell well and many orders for the coming holiday have been placed. It is pleasing to note that William H. Dildine, president of the company, has fully recovered from his illness of the last few months and is back again at his desk.

ADRIAN J. SCHOORL, San Francisco, Cal., states that his bulb season has been exceptionally good. He has been shipping his Holland bulbs direct from Europe to San Francisco by the Holland-America line, via the Panama canal. "This has enabled me to have bulbs delivered in San Francisco at practically the same cost as for shipment from Holland to New York," stated Mr. Schoorl, who added that he is importing a quantity of valley pips from Hamburg by the same route. Now that the bulb season is about over,

SEEDS

Stump & Walter Co

30-32 Barclay Street, NEW YORK CITY

Mr. Schoorl is dealing extensively in flower seeds, many of which are California-grown. He is exporting some sweet pea seed of fine quality to England and Holland.

THE partnership between J. A. Vendel and Jack Van Ginhoven, of Lisse, Holland, trading as Vendel & Van Ginhoven, has been dissolved. The bulb business will be continued by Van Ginhoven & Co., with Jack Van Ginhoven as president.

THE daughter of W. E. Marshall, president of W. E. Marshall & Co., New York, Miss Mildred Lucie Marshall, was married December 7 to Levon Murachanian at St. John's Episcopal church, West Hoboken, N. J. A reception was held immediately after the ceremony at the Woman's Club of Jersey City.

SHIPMENTS of the 1921 crop of black-eye cowpeas from California will be approximately three times as large as the 1920 crop shipments, as indicated by reports received by the bureau of markets and crop estimates of the Department of Agriculture from California shippers. This greatly increased supply is attributed almost wholly to the larger acreage.

THE German steamer, Wurttemberg, arriving at New York from Hamburg November 30, carried on board 237 cases of lily of the valley pips consigned to C. J. Speelman & Sons. The American steamer, East Cape, arriving at New York from Hamburg November 28, carried thirteen cases of lily of the valley pips for the International Forwarding Co.

THE arrivals of seed at New York and Baltimore during the week ending November 26 were reported as follows: 81,000 pounds alfalfa from Argentina and Chile; 33,000 pounds crimson clover from France; 22,000 pounds white clover, and 79,000 pounds clover seed (kind not specified) from Germany; 122,600 pounds rye grass from Great Britain; 17,400 pounds orchard grass from Holland, and 88,000 pounds rape from France and Holland.

THE supply of new crop velvet beans from which commercial seed stocks may be selected is probably forty per cent less than that of last year because of low average yields per acre in many heavy producing sections as the result of drought and because the low prices offered are no incentive for farmers to harvest their beans. Weather conditions have been quite favorable for harvesting velvet beans and the quality for seed is uniformly good.

WESTERN SEEDSMEN TO MEET.

The fall meeting of the Western Seedsmen's Association will be held in Kansas City, Mo., Saturday, December 10, at the Hotel Baltimore, commencing at 10 a. m.

Due to unsettled conditions prevailing at the present time in the seed trade, it is of utmost importance and to the interest of each individual member that the attendance be large at this meeting.

Roy Edwards, of the Rudy-Patrick Seed Co., is chairman of the committee on arrangements. Reservations for the noon-day luncheon should be made immediately with Mr. Edwards, and he will also reserve rooms for those desiring them.

Please do not let anything interfere with your attending this meeting. You will again have the opportunity of meet-

MISS SALZER A BRIDE.

November 16 a pretty wedding was that of Miss Ruth Ferndale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Salzer, to Russell Thompson, both of La Crosse, Wis. The ceremony took place in the Salzer Memorial church. The floral decorations were, perhaps, the most elaborate ever displayed at La Crosse.

John P. Salzer, the father of the bride, is president of the John A. Salzer Seed Co., of La Crosse. The church in which the marriage was solemnized is a memorial to the grandparents of the bride, the late Mr. and Mrs. John A. Salzer. The former was the founder of the seed company which now bears his name.

are now so well known and are in such great demand that you, as a grower or florist, cannot afford to be without them. No other strains are now so popular, nor can you secure so many beautiful blooms from any other. They always bring top prices in the markets.

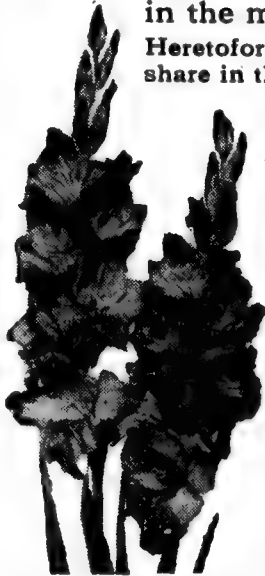

Heretofore there has not been a sufficient supply to afford growers a share in their great sale.

*I offer you a for the first time to secure a select collection of about ninety choice varieties listed and described in my wholesale price list. All authorities are agreed that my new strains represent by far the greatest improvement in gladioli today.

You will miss many of your best customers if you let them go elsewhere for their cut flowers and bulbs.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

ITEMS affecting nurserymen in the 1923 budget of the Department of Agriculture are noted in the article on a forward page headed "Government Makes Budget."

THIS week the Senate finance committee resumed hearings on the Fordney tariff bill, which it is hoped to conclude in two weeks. Whether representatives of the nursery trade will appear is not evident.

DEFINITE statement from the commissioner of internal revenue that nurserymen do not need to file an inventory with their tax returns and if now doing so, may discontinue the practice, is contained in the article headed "Growers' Income Taxes," on a forward page of this issue.

THE Canterbury Nurseries Co., of Easton, Md., has just been incorporated by Elliott Wheeler. This company will operate a nursery on the grounds of Mr. Wheeler's country place, at Canterbury Manor. Associated with Mr. Wheeler in this enterprise is Ernest Hemming, of Philadelphia, and Graham Brush, of Easton, Md.

HUNT FOR AMERICAN STOCKS.

Progress of Work for Nurserymen.

With the passage of Quarantine 37, a few leading nurserymen in the country began to see that in addition to an agency which was serving as the regulatory arm of the Department of Agriculture in preventing nurserymen from introducing dangerous diseases and insect pests, there should be another agency working in close coöperation with the nurserymen in attempting to develop methods of growing even a better grade or better quality of stock than we had been in the habit of importing. And so, largely as a result of this feeling, a special item of $20,000 was secured last year for nursery stock investigations. The same sum is carried in the agricultural bill for the present year. The item reads as follows:

For investigating, in coöperation with states or privately owned nurseries, methods of propagating fruit trees, ornamental and other plants, the study of stocks used in propagating such plants and methods of growing stocks, for the purpose of providing American sources of stocks, cuttings or other propagating materials, $20,000.

A large order to be covered with a small appropriation. Nevertheless it represents a beginning. With such a limited appropriation, we of course will not begin to cover the entire field of nursery stock investigations.

A survey of European nursery conditions was made by Dr. L. C. Corbett, who is in charge of the office of horticultural and pomological investigations, during the summer and fall of 1920, and during the last spring the speaker made a rather extensive survey of nursery practices in this country. As a result of these trips, we decided that our best plan would be to concentrate on a few sub-projects, concerning which we already had some preliminary information.

All of our nursery investigations this year are conducted at Bell, Md., adjoining the tract where Dr. Walter Van Fleet conducts his rose-breeding work. In fact, Dr. Van Fleet's salary is carried for a part of the year on our nursery stock pay roll and we feel we are especially fortunate in being able to utilize Dr. Van Fleet's great fund of information regarding rose species and varieties. It is doubtful whether we could have attempted our rose stock sub-project if it had not been for the hearty coöperation we have received from Dr. Van Fleet, and the assistance, both in the form of coöperation which he has given us and permission to utilize many of his specimen plants and hybrids in our work.

Associated with me in a full time capacity is G. E. Yerkes, a graduate of the Kansas Agricultural College and the Yale Forestry School, who has had considerable experience both as a nurseryman and florist. In addition, we have one clerk and one unskilled laborer, who devote their entire time to work in connection with the nursery stock project, as well as a propagator who gives part time to this work. We hope before the year is over to add a scientific assistant to our staff.

One thing that may be said to be possibly a favorable condition in having a small appropriation is that we are forced to work with limited equipment and, to a certain extent, we can get the viewpoint of the small nurseryman. It is true that we hope for increased appropriation so that we can add greenhouse facilities to our present equipment, and also carry on some physiological and histological investigations which should go hand in hand with our propagation studies.

Projects Undertaken.

Our important sub-projects may be grouped under the following headings:

(1) Comparison of growth of apple seedlings from different sources.

(2) Propagation of apples, pears and other fruits by root cuttings.

(3) Comparison of a number of tea and perpetual roses on some promising new stocks.

Under the comparison of growth of apple seedlings from different sources we have purchased seedlings from a number of commercial sources, seedlings imported from abroad, seedlings purchased in Kansas, raised from imported seed, seedlings raised in this country from Minnesota and Vermont seed. While selections will be made from these 2-year-old seedlings late this year, up to date we find the seedlings which have made the best growth are those which have come from northern seed, either Minnesota or Vermont. There is, of course, individual variation within these groups, as would naturally be expected, as the term, "Minnesota crab seeds," may include seeds of Wealthy, Northwestern Greening, Okabeena and, in fact, any apple grown in Minnesota. Next year we hope to include seedlings grown in the Yakima valley of Washington.

If it were possible to find some one variety that produced uniform seedlings, this might solve our stock problem with apples. Unfortunately, even though such a variety were found whose seedlings had outstanding characteristics which made them desirable for use as stocks, with present methods of seed extraction, it is exceedingly doubtful if nurserymen would be able to secure seeds in sufficient quantity for many years.

Nevertheless, the variation which we find in individual root stocks must be responsible for many of the stunted orchard trees we have. Investigations which our office of horticultural and pomological investigations has conducted has shown that many variations which we find in established orchards of citrus fruits, such as trees bearing poor quality or off-type fruit, has been due to a lack of selection or faulty selection of bud wood on the part of the nurserymen propagating the trees. We believe that this factory method of using stocks from miscellaneous sources cannot help also but have a marked effect on the orchard tree. What is the actual effect of stock on scion no one can tell, but undoubtedly the stock does influence the character of growth of the tree and the development of the root system if nothing else.

Effect of Stock on Scion.

A striking example of the effect of stock on scion is shown in the work of Prof. Hatton, an English experimenter who has worked with Paradise stocks. He has taken the same bud stock, placed one bud on one strain of Paradise and produced a small dwarf tree; he has taken another bud and placed on a second strain and secured a medium-sized tree; he has taken another bud and placed on a third strain and secured a tree as large as a standard orchard tree. Now he is working with a stock which is propagated vegetatively. Think how much greater chance for variation there is in the case of seedling stocks, where each seedling represents, theoretically at least, a distinct variety. For this reason we are intensely interested in the possibility of vegetatively propagating root stocks and also varieties as well.

The propagation of apples by hardwood cuttings has been undertaken a number of times. Probably the most extensive work of this kind has been that of Prof. Shaw, of the Massachusetts Agricultural Experiment Station. The difficulty with this method of propagation has been the relatively small number of cuttings which root. Propagation of certain varieties of pears by hard-wood cuttings was formerly practiced in the south, but was never undertaken elsewhere. Direct propagation of certain plum varieties by layering has been demonstrated to be commercially practicable.

We are interested in another form of vegetative propagation which apparently has been given little attention; namely, propagation by root cuttings. We simply worked with the material we had assembled this year: French crab seedlings, Minnesota and Vermont seedlings. The cuttings which gave the best results were about two to three inches in length and about one-eighth inch in diameter. These were lined out in nursery rows in March and April and given the simplest kind of treatment.

At the Chicago convention I was talking with a nurseryman and telling him what we were attempting to do with root cuttings. He said, "Mr. Scott, it isn't practicable; it can't be done." All I can say is, it has been done. We have been able to raise good trees and we believe it will prove practicable.

Our next step is to see whether we cannot propagate varieties themselves direct from root cuttings. Dr. Quaintance, of the bureau of entomology, has kindly turned over for our use approximately 1,000 apple trees which have developed their own roots. These trees and plants of every variety.

NOW IS THE TIME TO ORDER CANNAS TO PREPARE for SPRING BEDDING PLANTS

Place your order with us now for delivery in January or February. We will then send you fresh cut two to three-eye divisions.

If you start them up then each thousand roots should make at least 2000 plants, which if kept moving make magnificent 4 and 5-inch pot plants by planting out time.

There are no more effective bedding plants and few, if any, more profitable to grow.

The subjoined list contains the names of free, large flowering, vigorous growers, any of which will please you and your customers.

Order now and say when you want them shipped to you.

Price $5.00 per 100, $40.00 per 1000

EXCEPT WHERE OTHERWISE NOTED

BEACON—Free flowering dwarf, bright red.

CHEERFULNESS—Beautiful variegated, orange and scarlet with golden border. The florets are medium sized, but very freely produced.

CITY OF PORTLAND—A wonderfully attractive rose-pink. Excellent upright habit and free flowering. $15.00 per 100, $125.00 per 1000.

DR. E. ACKERKNECHT—The bronze foliage blends pleasingly with the carmine rose trusses. Vigorous and free.

DUKE OF MARLBOROUGH—An old favorite with deep crimson flowers.

EUREKA—The best white Canna. A very strong grower, blooming freely. The flowers are large and become pure white in the full sun. $8.00 per 100, $75.00 per 1000.

FANAL—Exceedingly free flowering deep bright red. A most effective bedder.

FEUERMEER—Another excellent old sort with a profusion of dazzling orange-scarlet flowers.

GAIETY—Wonderfully effective. Deep orange suffused with scarlet and bordered with yellow. A brilliant bedder.

GOLDEN GATE—Vigorous and free. A unique combination of yellow and golden shades, blending into rose as the flower matures. $6.00 per 100, $50.00 per 1000.

HUNGARIA—There is a quiet refinement about this delicate rose-pink Canna that charms everyone and has made it one of the most popular. $8.00 per 100, $75.00 per 1000.

KING HUMBERT—The most popular Canna of this generation. The large orange-scarlet flowers and particularly the very deep bronze foliage make it one of the most useful.

LOUIS REVERCHON—The flowers are brighter and more freely produced than on King Humbert, while the foliage is a greenish bronze.

MRS. ALFRED CONARD—Magnificent trusses of large salmon-pink flowers. Unique and very ornamental. The stock of this variety is very scarce. We have a limited quantity and advise early ordering. $15.00 per 100.

MRS. KARL KELSEY—A tall, majestic, vigorous grower surmounted by great trusses of large orchid type flowers. Orange-scarlet streaked and mottled with rose.

RICHARD WALLACE—A well known pure yellow.

THE GEM—A seedling of Hungaria, more vigorous, with a profusion of large cream colored flowers dotted with carmine. Very unusual and attractive. $7.00 per 100, $60.00 per 1000.

THE PRESIDENT—The greatest red Canna in commerce. Very heavy, vigorous growths surmounted by great trusses of immense florets of bright scarlet. We heartily endorse this as the greatest Canna introduction of recent years. $8.00 per 100, $75.00 per 1000.

WYOMING—We know of no other Canna as effective as this for large plantings. A giant in growth. Extremely vigorous, with its deep bronze foliage as an ideal background for large, bright orange colored flowers of the orchid type. It makes an ideal subject.

YELLOW KING HUMBERT—A sport from King Humbert, to which it occasionally reverts. Green foliage with yellow flowers dotted with scarlet. $8.00 per 100, $75.00 per 1000.

We have good stocks of many other varieties, prices on which will be quoted on application.

Order now for delivery in January and February.

were used in connection with some of their studies of resistance to woolly aphids. In addition to this material we expect to visit several nurseries in Minnesota, Iowa and Kansas and select trees which have developed their own roots above the graft union. Another year we shall have some pretty definite information regarding the possibilities of propagating varieties in this way.

So much for our work with fruit tree stocks.

Rose Stocks.

There seems to be a demand for information regarding rose stocks in every section of the country. In tackling this subject we are not only trying to secure information regarding commercial rose stocks now in use, but also concerning several others which look especially promising. Dr. Van Fleet's collection is of especial value to us, as he has a number of specimens which are not known in the country outside of the Arnold Arboretum or some similar collection. Of the new stocks which look especially promising are Rosa multiflora cathayensis, a hardy rose of the multiflora type, which propagates readily from soft-wood cuttings and develops a vigorous root system; Rosa odorata, introduced by the office of foreign seed and plant introduction from China, which propagates readily by soft-wood cuttings; Rosa souleana, introduced from northern Korea, which can be propagated from seed and also from soft-wood cuttings.

Others in which we are interested are a setigera-Wichuraiana hybrid of Dr. Van Fleet's, which propagates readily from soft-wood cuttings; a Jacki-Wichuraiana hybrid; Rosa multiflora polyantha, and a vigorous growing type plant of Rosa multiflora.

A word regarding our method of handling soft-wood cuttings. We used two or three eye cuttings, but we believe single eye cuttings would give equally good results. Ordinarily sandy loam soil was used in coldframes covered with glass. The sash was shaded with muslin during the middle of the day and cuttings syringed at least twice a day, sometimes oftener. On the quicker rooting sorts, such as multiflora cathayensis and odorata, roots had developed at the end of two weeks' time. For ease in handling our experimental lots, we transplanted into 2 1/2-inch pots. Commercially, they would have been transplanted into beds under partial lath shade and the shade removed. With all our newer stocks, our progenies trace back to a single individual, so that we believe we are controlling as far as we can any possibility of variation in our stocks.

In addition to these promising new stocks, we are also including rose stocks which are now in use commercially; namely, Manetti, canina, Madame Plantier, Seven Sisters, wax rose, Rosa cinnamomea, Rosa setigera and R. rugosa. For our main stock and vaican. Rose Society and the Department of Agriculture, at Arlington, Va. This, of course, will mean that we shall not have sufficient bud wood of any variety to use before 1923, as the plans for our first plantings, which will probably be made at Bell, Md., on sandy loam, and at Arlington, Va., on clay soil, call for at least fifty plants of each variety in each of the fourteen stocks, or, roughly speaking, 700 plants of each variety in each location. Next year, however, we will use one variety, Columbia, as we have sufficient bud wood of this variety to use. It will give us some preliminary information on its behavior on all the stock.

So you see, even this early in the game, our activities are varied and we are only able to undertake a few of the great number which should be undertaken. We hope we may be able from time to time to find something that may be of value. We must work in close co-operation with the nurserymen of the country; in fact, our success will be governed in large measure by their co-operation and assistance.

CAN SHIP INTO CALIFORNIA.

There has been considerable apprehension as to the enforcement of section 2139 J of the political code of California, governing the importation of nursery stock, trees, plants, vines and shrubs, from other states into California, the law demanding a fee of $10 for a permit and a bond of $1,000, conditional on the faithful discharge of the obligation. Needless to say, this law is within the restraint of trade, because practically preventing shipment into the state from other states. Touching its interpretation and application on the part of the California department of agriculture, the following opinion has been obtained by the California Association of Nurserymen from Lee A. Strong, chief quarantine officer of the state:

"For the information of the nurserymen of California, the state department of agriculture will not refuse delivery to any plants arriving in California from another state for noncompliance with section 2319 J of the political code. This section specifically relates to the registration of nurserymen outside of California who desire to ship plants into California.

"Noncompliance with the law constitutes a misdemeanor, but the misdemeanor being committed outside of California, the California law would not be operative; inasmuch as the entry of the plants is not conditioned upon com-

Greenhouse Heating

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of this department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. When information is desired regarding the capacity of boilers, or the amount of radiation required for a greenhouse, the needed temperatures should be stated in the inquiry, as well as the amount of glass in the side walls, and the dimensions and general arrangement of the greenhouses. It is often helpful, also, to have a sketch showing the location of the houses.

HEATING TWO HOUSES.

Kindly give me the requirements necessary for the heating of two houses to 60 degrees when the outside temperature is 10 degrees below zero. Each house is 18½x100 feet. The height of the houses is eleven feet six inches, with twenty-four inches of glass in the sides. What size of Lord & Burnham boiler and how many sections of flows and returns will be needed? W. W.—N. Y.

For heating a house 18½x100 feet to 60 degrees with hot water, it would be advisable to use three 2½-inch flow pipes and ten 2-inch returns. Place one flow pipe on each side wall plate and the other flow about three feet below the ridge. Give each of the flow pipes a slight fall throughout their length in the houses. Each flow pipe may start at the heater or, if preferred, a 4-inch flow pipe may be run from the heater to a point just inside the greenhouse, where it should be connected so as to supply the three 2½-inch flows.

Three of the returns should be placed on each of the side walls or under the side benches. The remaining returns should be laid under the middle benches, or if solid beds are used, these returns may be along the sides of the walks.

With the flows arranged as above, the highest point may be connected with the expansion tank and it will not be necessary to use air valves.

While a heater rated for 1,200 square feet of radiation will be large enough if hard coal is to be used, it will be better to use one rated for 1,600 square feet if soft coal is to be used as fuel.

If a round heater is to be used, select one with a 28-inch grate and five sections for hard coal, or with a 31-inch grate and four sections for soft coal. The latter, of course, would also answer if hard coal or coke is to be used.

HEATING ONE HOUSE.

Please submit plans for the heating of a greenhouse with hot water. This house is 20x100 feet and the height to the ridge pole is twelve feet. One of the sides is boarded up to the gutter. A second-hand tubular boiler is preferred, if it can be obtained. W. H.—Mo.

The sketch shows the house to be 20x100 feet, with walls six feet in height. A note indicates that one wall is boarded up to the gutter, but it does not show how the other side wall is built. There is nothing either in the letter or on the sketch to show what temperature is desired.

If there is no glass in the walls and if a temperature of 50 degrees is desired in zero weather, it would be ad-

Good Judgment in Buying a Boiler

C. H. Totty

For many years C. H. Totty has used Kroeschell Boilers. He expresses great satisfaction with the service of his boilers and highly commends the efficiency of Kroeschell Boilers in greenhouse heating.

Good judgment based on experience is what makes successful business and, naturally, the more capable a man is of using good judgment and the greater his power of utilizing his experience and the experiences of others in exercising his judgment, the greater will be the success of his business.

It is impossible to believe that the judgment of a man that is responsible for the establishment of a large, permanently successful greenhouse business is anything but good. It is sensible to let the judgment of the big men in the flower business guide you in making decisions for your own flower business.

Merit alone is responsible for the favorable opinion of Kroeschell Boilers that prevails among the largest and most successful growers. They select Kroeschell Boilers for their heating problems and recommend them for all growers, large and small. You can make no mistake by installing a boiler in your greenhouses that has gained the favor of men whose success in the greenhouse business qualifies them as experts in knowledge of greenhouse requirements.

Abundant Heat in the Coldest Weather

All florists will agree it is a delightful feeling to know and know positively that their ranges will be properly and evenly heated, no matter how cold the weather might be.

This feeling of perfect security is yours if your vacuum system is equipped with a time-tested

Fisher Vacuum Pump Governor (Type 8)

This governor will positively keep your pipe lines free of all condensation. It will do so consistently under the most rigorous conditions.

The reliability of this governor has been established by its extensive use. The John C. Moninger Company and the American Greenhouse Manufacturing Company specify Fisher Specialties as part of their regular equipment.

Fisher Vacuum Pump Governor is so constructed that unnecessary friction is eliminated. Lever and weight control is positive, never changing. Valve body can be furnished in either angle or globe type—a great convenience on many installations.

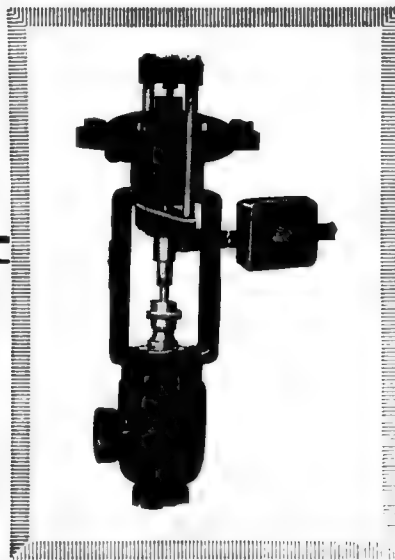

Every Florist should have our interesting book, "POWER PLANT SPECIALTIES," in his library. Write for your copy today.

visible to use three 2½-inch flow pipes and seven 2-inch returns, placing two returns on each side wall and the remaining ones under the middle bench.

For a temperature of 60 degrees, put in two additional returns. If possible, the lower end of the returns should be three or four feet or more above the top of the boiler. The boiler should have a grate the area of which should be at least thirty inches square.

DAMPER ON CHIMNEY.

I have a Wilks hot water boiler at present and am thinking of getting another as soon as I increase my glass area. I think, however, that too much of the heat goes up the chimney and have tried to devise some method of diverting the draft downward. It is my opinion that, by bricking in the area between the two boilers, I could bring the extra heat into contact with the back of the boilers and still permit the smoke to escape from below, as in an ordinary range. I shall appreciate any information you can give me concerning the solution of this problem.

O. S.—Minn.

If the draft of the chimney is sufficient, it will be advisable to put in a damper and, by securing an indirect circuit for the escaping smoke and gases, utilize a considerable amount of heat which would otherwise be lost.

If anything of the kind is arranged, have the connection with the smoke flue made in such a way that a direct draft can be obtained when starting the fire in the boiler. The arrangement proposed would probably work better with a good grade of hard coal or coke than with soft coal.

Records are as important in the growing business as in any other business. Progressive growers who spare no effort in raising highest grade stock use Standard Recording Thermometers and know the great aid of keeping records of temperatures. Your equipment is far from complete if you have no Standard Recording Thermometer.

The actuating element of the Standard Recording Thermometer is of lamina metal, which, besides being extremely sensitive to temperature changes, is practically indestructible. Record charts are furnished either daily or weekly, and the whole mechanism is contained in an attractive metal case fitted with lock and key, which insures the record from being tampered with.

The clock movement is of extremely high grade; everything about the instrument is up to the highest possible standard of manufacture.

SEATTLE NOTES.

the close of Thanksgiving week at Kenney's Home of Flowers, in addition to a satisfactory holiday business. Some fine Chieftain mums were on display during the week.

Christmas orders on holly and mistletoe are already coming in for the Seattle Fern & Moss Co., in a way that is indicative of a larger volume of business to be had this year than that of a year ago.

Rosaia Bros. handled the decorations for the annual Fine Arts ball last week, using yellow mums and greens throughout. A number of smaller events were also handled. The greenhouse is sending in some fine Premier roses at this time, along with a heavier supply of bouvardia and lily of the valley. The Thanksgiving business at this shop was better than last year's and the later rush of funeral orders cleared the floors of all desirable stock.

The evening of November 29 was the first bowling evening for the Seattle Florists' Association. There were in all about thirty members present for this sport. Allowing for lack of practice and sore arms, some good scores were chalked up, with Thomas Wylie and Lambert Pedersen as high men. So much interest has been aroused that the Woodlawn Flower Shop is planning to organize a team of its own, to compete with the other teams. The bowlers of the club have secured three alleys for alternate Tuesday evenings and expect to have an unbeatable team ready for the Tacoma club.

A decided increase in the sale of pompons and the smaller varieties of mums was noted at Melby's Flower Shop.

Stuber & Richardson, of Bryn Mawr, Wash., sent in a consignment of Sunshine mums for Thanksgiving and the trade could have moved more of these had they been ready to cut.

Among the many funeral pieces handled by Mrs. L. W. McCoy last week there was a casket cover made of roses, orchids and violets for a northwestern lumberman, who had lost his life in an airplane accident. This shop has handled some of the best Maud Dean mums seen here this season.

Thanksgiving business at the Wood-lawn Flower Shop set a new record for this shop's turkey day sales, passing the 1919 mark, which was its highest figure previously. The great interest taken by the public in the higher-priced flowers was noticeable. One design already made by this firm for Christmas is a holly wreath, twenty-two feet in diameter and three feet in thickness, containing several hundred pounds of holly. A local newspaper is giving this wreath publicity. The day after Thanksgiving this shop devoted its main window display to Christmas novelties, and a good sale of these has followed.

The City Flower Shop made up the 900 single mum corsage bouquets, with a purple "W" attached, which were used by the women students of the University of Washington for the Thanksgiving day football game.

The Pinhurst Floral Shop enjoyed a good Thanksgiving business, the novelty offerings on hand serving to attract the attention of the buyers readily. Paper White narcissi also proved attractive to holiday buyers.

The floral tribute sent to the F. S. Stimson funeral by the Seattle Florists' Association consisted of a standing wreath in lavender and white mums, handled in the cascade effect. This was produced by Gus Peterson.

Potted offerings have been steadily featured in the recent window displays of the Orpheum Floral Co. and a large amount of stock has been moved.

Irving Harris has been offering late spring bulbs to visitors at the Bon Marche, with good results. Attractive gift boxes serve to further the idea of using bulbs as a Christmas present where an inexpensive remembrance is wanted.

Asbestfalt

(REG. U. S. PATENT OFF.)

An Elastic Cement That Expands and Contracts With the Weather

Make your greenhouse weather-tight with Asbestfalt, the elastic cement that never gets hard, cracks or peels in cold weather or runs in hot weather.

$1.25 per gallon. Why pay more?

You can't get anything better no matter how much more you pay. The ingredients are of the purest; weighs but 10 pounds to the gallon.

With the scarcity of coal and its high prices, the careful application of Asbestfalt will more than pay for itself by keeping your greenhouse air-tight.

To insure best results, apply Asbestfalt with our Liquid Putty Machine, price $2.00. With every barrel purchase of Asbestfalt, one machine free.

AMARYLLIS

AMARYLLIS VITTATA HYBRIDS.

Finest strain in this country.

I have secured all stock from the estate of the late Mr. Condon, of Dickinson, Tex. Grown from a strain of Hybrids, Equestris, Johnsonii and Vittata blended to the top notch of perfection in sixteen years' labor. I will sell at the old price for this season only, giving those who have not received their orders a chance to re-order from me.

Will continue to grow this strain at its old standard and better, and will contract for quantity. I have 700 dried bulbs, 2 to 2½-in., $25.00 per 100 and more of this and larger size in ground.

10,000 1921 Condon strain seedlings, $50.00 per 1000; 2,000 1920 crop at $80.00 per 1000.

Will be obliged to have cash this season to settle estate; next season regular terms. ½ down, balance c. o. d., 10 days net to old customers.

If I can serve you, wire or write.

FERD. FISCHER'S SPECIAL OFFER of CYCLAMEN SEEDS.

20% REDUCTION.

We are in receipt of advice from Mr. Ferd. Fischer authorizing us to make a reduction of 20 per cent from the subjoined list on his well-known celebrated strain of Cyclamen seeds. Mr. Fischer is desirous of having you plant some seed about the first part of November, as seed planted at this date will develop stock for your 1922 Christmas trade in 5, 6, 7 and 8-inch pots.

NOTE: Many seeds have come over to this country, supposed to be German-grown, that in reality were grown in other countries. Many of the diseases now complained about among the florists are due to lack of good strain.

Robert Craig Co., of Norwood, Penn., has for your inspection, 50,000 plants in 5, 6, 7, 8 and 10-inch pots, all well established, true in color and healthy, all grown from Mr. Fischer's seed supplied by us.

When securing seed for November planting, we ask that you keep our seed separate from other strains and you can then determine for yourself the quality, and the vigorous growth that Mr. Fischer's strain makes.

This 20 per cent reduction is an inducement for you to plant some now. Send us your order today. It is important and it will pay you to make this experiment.

PELARGONIUMSPELARGONIUMS, TEMPLIN QUALITY.

We think the time has arrived when it is up to everyone to do just what he expects everyone else to do; reduce prices to as near pre-war times as possible. "Let George do it" is "progressing" slowly.

To practice what we preach, we now offer you a fine lot of 4-in. Easter Greeting at 15c each in any quantity. This is Templin quality, and will be packed right. Being ready for 5's they are sure to make you money for Easter or sooner. We have "oodles" of 2 1/4 and 3's coming on, which will be listed here in due time at pre-war prices.

To those who can anticipate their wants, we shall be glad to book orders for future delivery in any quantity, in any of the three sizes.

SEEDSHYBRIDIZED DAHLIA SEED.

This seed is raised from the most up-to-date Dahlias in existence. No place in the world have Dahlias been brought up to such perfection as they have been around San Francisco. This mixture contains all colors and types of Peony, Cactus and Decorative varieties. Our rainless California summers make it possible to get seed even from the very double varieties, a result extremely difficult in States where it is rainy during the time when the seed should set.

The seed we sent out in previous years was highly praised by all who raised Dahlias from it, but this seed is far superior to what we have sent out in previous years. The seedlings will commence to flower two months after sowing and almost a month earlier than plants raised from bulbs.

Walden, N. Y., Feb. 14, 1921.

Richard Diener Co., Kentfield, Cal.
Gentlemen: The Dahlia Seed received from you last year turned out fine. Could not think Dahlias could be grown from seed in such short time. Had some very fine blooms. One yellow Peony flowered that was extra fine, some 8 inches and a clear canary-yellow. Everyone who saw it was amazed at the size grown from seed. Had a clear flesh-pink; beautiful under lamp light. Respectfully, Wm. McBrier.

Sunbury, Pa.—B. Hatten Bastian has gone into business here. He runs a small store and sells flowers, plants, etc., as a side line.

Bethany, Mo.—A. S. Cumming, a lawyer of this town, has constructed a greenhouse and plans to go into the florists' business soon.

NEWS NOTES

Basin, Wyo.—Business is improving notably in this section and the firm of Robin Bonwell reports Thanksgiving business double that of a year ago.

Memphis, Tenn.—The Memphis Floral Co., of which C. H. Hune was the owner, is now in the course of liquidation. Mr. Hune is now going into business entirely "on his own" and will deal in hardy stock.

Batavia, N. Y.—Fred Walter, who recently sold his greenhouses at Warsaw, Ind., to Norton D. Gibson, of Nappanee, Ind., has purchased a half interest in the greenhouse business of Gustav Naack, of Batavia. The new firm is doing business under the name of Naack & Walter.

Pawnee City, Neb.—J. M. Atkinson, proprietor of the Northedge Nurseries, had conducted a greenhouse in connection with the nurseries for a number of years and has now opened a downtown retail flower store. The population of Pawnee is only about 1,800, but he looks forward to doing a nice business.

Congo, W. Va.—Howard's Gardens are owned and operated by A. P. Howard's Sons. This range consists of three large greenhouses and eighty acres of garden land, which are devoted entirely to growing cut flowers, fruit and vegetables. This firm has conducted its operations at its present location for the last thirty years.

7000 Cubic Feet of Fumigation in this one cone—

One cone of Hall's Nicotine Fumigator will fumigate 7000 cubic feet. Three such cones will fumigate the ordinary greenhouse (20 by 100 feet) at a cost to you of less than twenty-five cents.

Hall's Nicotine Fumigator is a tobacco powder prepared under scientific processes and saturated with 12½% pure nicotine. This we guarantee. Its dense volume of deadly nicotine fumes will rid your greenhouses of plant-lice, thrips and similar sucking insects.

It lights quickly, burns evenly and will not go out. No waste—every particle is consumed.

It retains its strength indefinitely. The air-tight tin takes care of that.

10-pound tins, $8.50; 2½-pound tins, $2.50; one-pound tins, $1.25.

FOLEY

—W. L. Rock, of the William L. Rock Flower Co., Kansas City, and Rock's Flower Gardens, Independence, Mo.

“By unanimous vote—

—it is agreed to place W. L. Rock in charge of all arrangements for the S. A. F. convention. Mr. Rock will outline the plan of campaign, appoint committees and direct the work.”

Note from Florists' Review of October 27, 1921.

This is an expression of the confidence the florists place in Mr. Rock's good judgment and sterling qualities.

During the last eighteen years Mr. Rock has bought fifteen greenhouses from FOLEY—the first in January, 1903, and the last three in November, 1920. The entire group of greenhouses, service buildings and residences are heated by the Foley Vacuum System.

This is an expression of the confidence Mr. Rock places in FOLEY'S good judgment and the sterling qualities of FOLEY ^{BETTER}_{BUILT} and Heated Greenhouses.

If you want a better built greenhouse—

Ask Mr. Rock, or——ask us TODAY.

AGMCO owners build often — —

Here is the proof that AGMCO houses are money-makers.

Inside of six years, three of which were in the war period, AGMCO owners increased their plants as follows:

One built six times,
One built five times,
Eight built three times, and Twenty-two built twice.

When such progress can be shown in building there is no one who can dispute the superiority of AGMCO houses. Before you build find out about these houses.

CHRISTMAS NUMBER

Greenhouse Builders

Would You— Or Wouldn't You?

Suppose you could buy a thousand bags of fertilizer for $5 a bag and sell it again for $5.50, making $500.

Now suppose you had such a chance and turned it down because you thought you ought to make not less than a dollar a bag. You would be out exactly $500, wouldn't you? $500 is exactly $500 better than no dollars at all.

Following exactly the same reasoning, suppose you have your mind set on one of our big iron frame houses, and won't build a thing till you can build IT. How about it?

Wouldn't it be good business to build a smaller house, even of semi-iron, and make SOMETHING out of it, than to build nothing and so make no more than you are now making?

If a man's really hungry, he doesn't refuse half a loaf when his appetite calls for a whole one. He takes what he can get, and is happy.

Whether you build now as your money permits and make half a loaf, or wait till you can build big and get all the loaf, depends on how hungry you really are for more of a bank account.

Cost of building is away down. When we say away down, we mean away down. Get our figures. They will certainly surprise you.

Let's you and I talk it over together. Let's figure out what can be built for what money you have to build with.

Christmas Roses

Our prices for this Christmas are way below the usual prices of former years, and represent the growing sentiment amongst the retail trade against the extreme high prices which have usually prevailed at this Holiday.

Red Roses are very scarce and we suggest Premier in their place.

We handle only the Roses we grow and you will find

XMAS

Our growers are, every one of them, in crop for Christmas. Our quality has never been any better at that time of the year. Our prices will be as low as it is possible to make them on the live and let live plan.

In Roses we will have a wonderful lot of Francis Scott Key, Premier, Russell and Columbia. Also a fair amount of Butterfly, Ophelia and Double White Killarney.

The Carnations are in very fine shape and we will have enough of them to fill orders in full if they are placed in reasonable time. What we will be able to do on last minute orders, it is impossible for us to say at this time.

INFLUENCE ON YOUR CREDIT-OR- THE FUNCTIONS OF A CREDIT BUREAU

Only a privately owned Credit Bureau with no other connections with the trade, except in a co-operative capacity, can be fair to all the trade and to all parties concerned. The Florists' Credit Assn., Inc., represents a national service covering, by personal representation, every city in the United States and Canada, besides functioning as the umpire for all those engaged in the Florist business.

Whether one is a success or a failure, our attitude is friendly towards creditors and debtors. We serve both — endeavor to please both, yet not forgetting that our service is a Credit and Collecting Agency. Our desire is constructive, to keep trading between the trade branches in harmony with each other.

Therefore, you can appreciate what your Credit Association intends to do for you and we ask the favor of a generous support of the entire trade of all sides.

No. 1300

TO USE ARTIFICIAL HOLLY BERRIES

Agents of Holly dealers in Sussex County, Delaware, report the Holly to be gathered this year in North and South Carolina, Virginia, Maryland and Delaware will almost all be devoid of berries. They attribute this to freezing weather late last Spring. Artificial berries will be used this year in Holly decorations at the Christmas holidays.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

VARIETIES OF CHRYSANTHEMUMS WE ARE OFFERING ABOVE

White Mistletoe	White Chadwick	White Helen Frick	White Yanoma
Pink Helen Frick	Pink Seidewitz	Mrs. Patty

These well-known favorites speak for themselves. All Florists know them and CHRISTMAS patrons will appreciate an introduction.

Best grades of Carnations and Roses are high, beyond the reach of many who shall want to "SAY IT WITH FLOWERS" this Christmas. A dozen fine MUMS, pink or white, large, medium or small, will make the same selections in Carnations or Roses look poor in comparison.

Rush your orders; WIRE will be best. By careful packing in well-made containers we can make deliveries, near or far, in perfect condition.

on PROGRESS

PROGRESS

- ¶ The most important single merchandising element in your flower store is its display refrigerator.
- ¶ Its efficiency determines the condition and salable life of your good flowers—profits.
- ¶ Upon its appearance and design rests whether it is a sluggard or the most powerful salesman your flower store can employ.

Disregarding for the moment the question of financing its purchase, Buchbinder Bros. invite every progressive florist to discuss the advantages of a new, improved, modern refrigerator as the central motif in a plan for a greater, more beautiful and more individual flower store.

Eventually every rose-grower will plant Angelus

Why not be among the first?

A seedling of Columbia on Ophelia. White with cream tinted center. A big rounded rose, like Premier in form but with higher center; very lasting, and fragrant. Foliage dark green, disease-resistant. A vigorous, upright grower and free in bloom. Resembles Kaiserin Augusta, but it blooms freely in Winter and is a specially good keeper. Was awarded Certificate of Merit of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association in 1921; also Silver Medal of the New York Flower Show, Spring 1921.

GRAFTED ROSES

FOR GREENHOUSE PLANTING

We began to graft roses the first week of this month and have started on orders already on our files. After these orders have been completed, we shall be ready to graft your requirements. Orders needed for delivery the last of February and early in March must be placed NOW if deliveries are to be prompt. We have our usual supply of Manetti from our usual sources of supply and at better prices than have prevailed for some years. This saving in Manetti costs will be reflected in our prices for plants.

Pilgrim and Crusader entail more losses of stock than any other varieties. On these two sorts our price will be $25.00 per 100; $240.00 per 1000.

Columbia
Mme. Butterfly
Milady

Ophelia
My Maryland
Premier

Double White Killarney
Mrs. Aaron Ward

are the best Roses of commerce. Our price for these varieties, grafted, will be $25.00 per 100; $220.00 per 1000.

Grafted Roses pay and the grafting of roses for the commercial trade is a big industry in itself here at Cromwell. We shall put 10,000 per day into the cases and the question is—when do you want yours?

OUTDOOR ROSES

We have available 50,000 home-grown Multiflora Japonica stock which is just right for grafting out-of-door sorts. We have, in addition to the varieties mentioned above:

Radiance
Jonkheer Mock

Red Radiance
Lady Alice Stanley
Los Angeles

Mrs. Charles Bell

and other good out-of-door roses. We can graft these for you for spring shipment on Multiflora Japonica or on Manetti, as you prefer, and deliver them as early as you want them after March 1, or when the ground opens and you are ready to plant. Our price for these sorts on either root stock from 2¼-inch pots will be $25.00 per 100; $220.00 per 1000.

BABY RAMBLERS

We have propagated, this fall, thousands of own-root Baby Ramblers:

Mrs. Cutbush
Triomphe Orleanais

Orleans
Edith Cavell
Erna Teschendorff

Jessie
Ellen Poulsen

These, for winter or spring delivery, from 2¼-inch pots, at $10.00 per 100; $90.00 per 1000.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

These are a big feature of our young plant department.

There has been no better new one in years than "White Surprise." It is a large, fine commercial white, ready to cut November 5 to 10. Rooted cuttings, for February and later, $2.00 per dozen; $15.00 per 100.

December Beauty
Rose Perfection

Sunbeam

are the best of the other new commercial, large-flowered sorts. Rooted cuttings, $5.00 per 100; $45.00 per 1000.

The Chadwick family, Golden Chadwick, Chadwick Supreme and Indian Summer, are the four finest varieties in existence for those who want late Mums and who can grow them well. We are always booked to the limit on these sorts in spite of the 20,000 stock plants of these varieties alone. Rooted Cuttings, from February until June, $5.00 per 100; $45.00 per 1000.

POMPON VARIETIES

We have seen the possibilities in these sorts and have followed the market very closely. Our own seedlings and the varieties selected and introduced by us have held to the top of the cut flower market for years and this season our seedlings have carried an average price on the market nearly 50% above the price of the named sorts of commerce. We planted 45,000 plants of seventy seedlings. Some will, naturally, be discarded, but we shall save 50 of these for another year's growing in quantity. Four of these have been named and will be offered to the trade. Hundreds of visiting florists have seen them and approve the selection. They have been widely exhibited and are in a class by themselves—the best four varieties for the commercial grower that we know:

New York
Louise Davenport
Sarah Townsend

make a succession of the bronze button type that will hold the market from November 1 to December 1. November Gold, the finest yellow of them all, is a strong-stemmed, upright grower that is equaled by no other variety. It flowers from November 1 to 15 and is a wonderful keeper, either cut or on the plant.

Rooted Cuttings of these four varieties, $15.00 per 100; $140.00 per 1000.

Our complete list will be published later, but these varieties mentioned are the ones that you certainly need. This is no year to grow poor varieties and no year in which to lessen production by planting poor plants.

Christmas Plants

Our stock of blooming and decorative plants is now in fine shape—strong, clean and vigorous. We feel confident that there is no better stock in the market today, and we know a great deal of stock now being offered is much inferior. We feel sure that we can please the most exacting buyer both in quality and price.

If stock is not wanted until later, give us your order, let us set it aside for you and ship to you when wanted. It costs no more and you can feel safe for the holidays.

Remember our central location and that our packing is free. A trial order will convince you of the value of our stock.

CYCLAMEN

Now booking orders for immediate and Christmas delivery.

This has been one of our specialties for over 20 years. In all our experience we have never seen a finer lot of plants. We are growing our stock in new houses. They are absolutely clean and perfect in every way and not to be compared with weakly, drawn stock offered at less money. We confidently feel that our four large houses containing 25,000 plants will not be enough. They have been pronounced by plant experts from all over the country as the finest stock ever grown.

TERMS: CASH WITH ORDER: Kindly send sufficient to cover the entire bill. We do not make shipments C. O. D. unless remittance has been made on account to guarantee acceptance. This does not apply to regular customers. REMITTANCES: Remittances should be made by money order or New York drafts. If money is sent, letter should be registered. All prices quoted in this list are strictly net. SHIPPING INSTRUCTIONS: Give your name, post office, county and state and the name of your nearest express office to which shipment is to be made. We have always made it prominent in our printed terms that our goods are sold F. O. B. cars at the point of shipment and are at the purchaser's risk while in transit. Because of the present unsettled conditions we wish to emphasize still further that we do not guarantee safe delivery. The ownership of all goods sold by us passes to the purchaser on delivery by us to the carrier, and the issuing of the receipt by the carrier ends our responsibility. Any claims for damage should be made promptly to the agent at the point of delivery. CORRESPONDENCE: We endeavor to answer all correspondence promptly, but owing to the pressure of business we ask that all requests be clearly and concisely stated. ERRORS: Keep a copy of your order. We aim to have our orders correctly filled. When we are at fault we shall make satisfactory correction.

CHRISTMAS

Flowers Make the Best Christmas Gifts

PREPARING for the holiday season this year, the florist finds himself facing a different set of conditions than have prevailed the last few years. A year ago, although the lavish spending which had characterized the previous season had somewhat diminished, so far as general business was concerned, florists enjoyed liberal patronage from the public at Christmas. Since that date the trend of business has been, according to the charts and statistics of those who regularly review the industrial and commercial situation, generally downward, though a recent rise has been noted in a good many lines. There are heartening reports that unemployment is not so large as it was, though there are still considerable numbers of wage-earners out of work. But it is important to note that the lack of work by a comparatively small percentage of this country's industrial forces is not so important as the tightening of the purse strings by practically all the rest of the buyers in the community.

The Difference.

Difference between the peak of prosperity and the depth of depression is chiefly in the curtailing of purchases of the necessities of life and the foregoing of some of the luxuries. It is the difference between "paying any price that is asked" and "shopping around" to see where one can buy the cheapest. This habit on the part of customers has already been noted this fall by many florists.

Those retail merchants, in other lines, whose sales for the holidays begin earlier than do ours, report that this change of attitude on the part of the buying public is extended to purchases for Christmas. For this reason we cannot expect this year the number of $50 and $100 orders which was received at Christmas a year ago. There will not be found the same willingness of a certain class of customers to pay any price that is asked. On the other hand, there will be no lack of buyers for flowers at reasonable prices. Those retailers who have seen the signs of the times and have reduced their prices in accordance with the decline in wholesale quotations, have found the public willing and ready to buy. The wholesale figures for Christmas, which have already been published, indicate that there is room for considerable reduction from the prices charged the public last year for flowers and plants.

Valuable Talking Points.

Indeed, the reduction is important enough in almost all cases to be a valuable point to retail florists in their advertising for the holiday.

As a talking point it is doubly valuable in view of the fact that this Christmas the florist faces the necessity of using the sales power of printers' ink to bring buyers into his store in the wanted numbers. In the last few years the florist's greatest need has been proper organization and system to handle the tremendous volume of business at Christmas. He will have need of similar organization and system this year, but instead of being able to count confidently on selling all the flowers and plants he can handle, he is called upon for unusual effort in order to bring in the buyers that last year came in of their own accord.

In this situation the strong talking points in possession of the florist for advertising purposes are especially valuable. He has one particularly telling one, double-barreled; namely, that flowers and plants are unusually plentiful as a result of the peculiar conditions of this autumn, and that they are, in consequence, lower in price than at Christmas time in several years.

For Gifts.

Florists have an exceedingly powerful talking point for their wares at the holiday, one which they have never adequately utilized, probably because they have not often had to talk much to sell all their stock at Christmas. This point is expressed in the slogan at the top of this page. Last year a few advertisements of members of the trade emphasized the point. Some of these are reproduced on other pages of this issue of The Review. They were considered extraordinarily successful by the florists who benefited by them. In their preparation of

For Gifts.

Florists have an exceedingly powerful talking point for their wares at the holiday, one which they have never adequately utilized, probably because they have not often had to talk much to sell all their stock at Christmas. This point is expressed in the slogan at the top of this page. Last year a few advertisements of members of the trade emphasized the point. Some of these are reproduced on other pages of this issue of The Review. They were considered extraordinarily successful by the florists who benefited by them. In their preparation of advertising copy this year, all florists should use this idea more strongly than most of them have in the past.

Taking them by and large, it is probable that the majority of purchases of flowers and plants at Christmas time are not made as really Christmas gifts. Many customers purchase them for their own homes. The housewife buys them for her Christmas decorations. The husband frequently orders something sent home, but more in the spirit with which he orders an Easter plant than in the spirit of buying a Christmas gift. Gifts of flowers are sent at Christmas, of course, by the young man to his sweetheart, though not in so many cases as might be, and he usually gives her something else as well. Of course, the well-to-do send to the florist a list of friends to whom obligation is felt, with instructions that so much worth of flowers be sent to these and so much worth to others. But in none of these cases has the florist seriously entered into competition with the so-called gift shops—the jewelers, the confectioners, the booksellers, the art shops and the department stores, with their myriad offerings for expressions of the Christmas sentiment.

Surely no tokens from these other places carry the holiday greeting, no matter how deeply it may be felt, better than do flowers. Few of them, if any, arouse any kindlier feeling in return. Certainly none are more universally welcomed with pleasure and gratitude. There is no person to whom a plant or a basket of flowers is not an appropriate gift. Men do not often receive them, but that is not because they do not appreciate them when they do. Indeed, the field that presents itself for the increase of the sale of flowers for gifts at Christmas is tremendous. It has scarcely been scratched. There need be no perplexity as to what may be sent a friend, no matter how close or how formal, or what may be given a relative, no matter what the kinship, if a person will but bethink him of the florist. The variety to be found in the flower shop is sweeping; the price range is broad. All tastes may be suited; all pocketbooks may be accommodated. Truly the florist has a wonderful sales slogan at this season: "Flowers Make the Best Christmas Gifts."

NEW YORK GREENS MARKET.

"A feature of the holiday greens trade," says a review of Christmas greens in the New York produce market, "is the use of artificial berries in holly and holly wreaths because of nature's lack of the usual quantity. Owing to frost last spring and an unfavorable summer and fall, nearby holly is not up to its usual standard and the far southern sections, like Alabama, are discriminated against because of high freight rates, the freight on crates now being $3, against $1.75 in former years. Artificial berries have proved more than satisfactory, as, in fact, they can hardly be detected from the original. Cases of holly sell at $5.50. Domestic mistletoe is bringing $8 a case, or a little more than usual. Laurel rope goes at 4 cents a yard and pine rope, according to the quality, 3½ cents to 15 cents a yard. Pine needles, more or less of a novelty in this market, are selling at $12 per hundred. Holly wreaths are quoted at $2 to $5 per dozen for 16-inch and $2 for 10-inch sizes."

ADVERTISING HINTS.

A short, snappy advertisement conspicuously placed will quickly catch the eye of prospective buyers in these days of high Christmas spirit. A small card suitable for mailing or hand distribution is one method used by the Ada Greenhouse, of Ada, Okla. This advertisement will attract a great deal of out-of-town business because it conveys information useful to every buyer of flowers. It also suggests an easy and efficient means of remembering loved ones away from home. The card contains a cut, which represents a window in a family residence decorated with a basket of roses and ribbons, and a berried wreath with a neat bow of ribbon in its center. The following is quoted from the advertisement:

It is easily possible to have your greetings of flowers or blooming plants delivered promptly in far away places on Christmas morning.

Merely tell us the addresses, even though in foreign countries, and rest assured of the receipt of your gifts in all their freshest beauty. Simply 'phone 449.

SUCCESS.

A short time ago, in listening to an address, I was somewhat affected by a remark of the speaker, who said, "Success is not made by lying awake at night, but by keeping awake in the daytime." And then and there I was reminded of how much this affects the business we love well and yet do so little for toward elevating our standards, as do other lines.

We can give more credit, however, for the progress made during the last few years, as against former years, to some force; what it is we shall leave to your own imagination. And if such be the case, is it not worth while encouraging, so that more success and more progress will come in like proportion? Does it deserve keeping awake in the day-time for? And if so, surely the evidence will be forthcoming. What the need is, we shall leave to the conscientious thinkers who ultimately reap the benefits.

Henry Penn.

FOREHANDNESS

INSTRUCTING THE CLERKS.

At Christmas time the retailer finds it necessary to add to his force a number of inexperienced hands in order to handle the customers who crowd his store. They are frequently looked upon as a necessary evil, for their mistakes are frequently costly and their judgment is not of the best, nor their skill in handling plants and cut flowers calculated to limit waste. If the florist can put on the extra hands a few days early, he is able to give them some special instructions before the time of heaviest rush comes. Often, however, the florist has no time for such "cramping." To take the place of personal instruction, a type-written or printed sheet of instructions is sometimes prepared by a florist. A copy of this is given to the new hand and he is told to study it whenever he has a moment of leisure. If the inexperienced hand has forced upon him the necessity of following such instructions to the letter, a great many petty mistakes and most of the expensive ones are eliminated. For the benefit of the florists who have not been in the habit of preparing such instructions, a copy of those handed out at holiday time by G. R. Clark, of Scranton, Pa., is given below. If you have no such instruction sheet, cut this out and pin it up in a conspicuous place and tell the new hands to read it.

Each clerk who sells goods must have a cash sheet number.

Each clerk must put this number on every tag or package that is addressed to send out for delivery.

Each tag or package is to be plainly addressed, stating when, where and to whom to be delivered. Not only the street number, but the location in the city. If you do not know the location, inquire of one of the older clerks or the customer. Many streets bear the same names and same numbers. This carefulness will prevent confusion.

Do not leave a tag or card until it is properly addressed; after writing show it to your customer and be assured you have the right name and number; this will avoid serious mistakes.

Don't be afraid to ask reasonable questions. If the article or articles are C. O. D., plainly mark same C. O. D., with the amount, and see positively that the memorandum charge is made on the book, preferably by an experienced clerk. Put the book page number on the upper left-hand corner of the tag or tags to be attached. Encourage everyone to pay rather than to have goods sent C. O. D., as C. O. D.'s are a nuisance at a rush time.

In case of a delivery bearing a high street number, always refer to an experienced clerk, and let him take the responsibility as to whether we will deliver there or not.

When your customer pays, always so mark it on the tag.

If an order is charged on the book and not C. O. D., mark your tag "Chgd." This gives your order clearance with the shipping clerk.

If an order is for a potted plant and requires crepe paper, make the paper covering and tie it to the plant. Ask experienced clerks to demonstrate. Keep your eyes open, and learn how.

If plant or any article is not priced and you do not know the price, be sure to obtain it and see that such stock is marked.

When you sell more than one plant or article, so that more than one package is to be delivered to one address, make a circle on each tag or package and inside this, mark how many go.

Tie your tags securely on the upper part of plants where they can be plainly seen. Use a soft pencil and write plainly and distinctly.

Each sale must be turned in to the cashier as soon as made. Do not wait until two or three sales are made before turning them in.

After selling plants, do not leave them standing around on tables or on the floor. Take them to the shipping department. This is imperative.

Finish with one customer completely before you wait on another. Do not become tangled up with two or three.

Do not sell plants and set them down without tagging, else someone may sell them from you and you will be very much in trouble, for your customer will make it for you.

Handle all plants carefully. If they are taken out and not sold, put them back in place before leaving. If you notice a plant that is dry and needs water, report it at once to the caretaker.

When you go to the cashier with your money, if you have the even change, mention the amount and say, "Right." If you want change, use this term, "Three out of five," or "Seven and one-half out of ten." Always give your number in either case. Do not call for change or a sale in any other way, for the cashier will not understand.

Cards should always be placed in an envelope and tied carefully and securely on the plant. Encourage people as far as possible to write their own cards and address the envelope. You then have this to compare with your tag address.

Be especially careful in handling cut flowers. Do not pull from the jars and leave out of water those which cling to those you have taken out. Do not break the heads from any flowers in removing some from the jars. Handle with care. If cards are to go in, don't fail to put them in where they will be found as the flowers are unpacked.

Don't lose your head. Keep cool and never get embarrassed. Always be courteous. If you are always polite and gentle you will make your customer feel at home, as it were, and he or she will probably ask for you when calling again. In fact, invite them to call again. If you are cool and indifferent in attention, the customer won't want you, neither will any store want you. Salesmanship demands every faculty for good you possess. It is up to you to make this the biggest Christmas the store has ever had.

PUSHING HOLIDAY SALES

CHRISTMAS ADVERTISING.

Meeting New Situation.

The Christmas advertising campaign of 1921 will be distinctly different from that of preceding years; florists have a different situation to meet. In 1920 the wealthy people were still receiving dividend checks regularly and the working class was still receiving the high wages that became common in the period immediately following the close of hostilities; there was plenty of money in circulation. This year, however, strong appeal will be needed to draw out the money, for where $10 was spent last year probably only $5 will be spent on gifts this year. Christmas shoppers will demand more for their money this year than they did last Christmas, and they will need to be shown why they should buy flowers as gifts instead of other, perhaps more utilitarian, articles.

So it will be necessary to counteract the too general propaganda that flowers are going to be scarce and high in price at the holidays. Florists' salesmen should be instructed to acquaint customers from now on with the fact that flowers will be plentiful and that the price will be reasonable. Forget the words "expensive" and "scarce" this year; substitute the words "reasonable" and "plentiful," for both will apply at this holiday. If florists will place the emphasis on these phrases and use strenuous sales effort, they need not be overcautious about stocking up.

Moderate Prices.

A moderate price scale will be productive of ample business and adequate profits, if the florist will use the means in his power to push sales. Optimistic, favorable propaganda is the need at this holiday, carrying the message of flowers, as an appropriate gift and stressing the fact that there are plenty of them and that they can be had at reasonable prices. Tell the public that flowers make the best Christmas gifts.

You have read what Penn the Florist, of Boston, says about flowers for Christmas: "The spirit of Christmas reaches its highest expression in flowers. As gifts, they are supreme in conveying to those you love all that you would have represented by your gift. The most skillful labor of the master craftsman, the richest gifts that men's hands and brains can contrive, all fall short in expressing the Christmas sentiment when compared with the message of even a single beautiful flower." Such advertising as this has sentiment with character and distingtion, and it is certain to sell flowers.

Forceful advertising will be needed for this Christmas—sales talk that gets the public's eye and its attention, then drives home its message with precision and clearness, pointing out the unassailable arguments in favor of buying flowers this Christmas. When buyers are prone to shop around, even for a festive occasion, the florist who would meet the competition that other lines of business offer—and it is large and varied at the holidays—must push his own wares strongly. "The careful expenditure of a liberal advertising appropriation will bring results. Each florist knows what mediums suit his purpose best. Some examples of excellent copy may be pointed out from among last year's newspaper advertisements.

Learning from Last Year.

Reproductions of some of last year's advertisements, gathered from several sections of the country, which were reported as highly successful, may prove beneficial to other florists in planning their campaign for the holiday at hand.

The advertisement which appears on this page, printed in the Chicago Sunday papers December 19, 1920, was considered one of the most successful efforts for any occasion of many good advertisements prepared for the Chicago florists' publicity campaign. The ever-present question of the hurrying holiday shopper is answered in striking fashion. The attention of the public is directed not only to the realization of the appropriateness of flowers as gifts, but also to the fact that by purchasing flowers the giver expresses his sentiment in a pleasing way and at the same time relieves himself of the worry connected with crowded mails and overloaded express trains in the case of out-of-town gifts. The power of this advertisement was apparent to the skillful and experienced advertisers of the trade in Chicago last year, and doubtless this year as excellent copy may be expected, with the additional sales arguments of reasonable prices and an abundant supply.

The Allied Florists' Association of Illinois employed another advertisement last year which likewise deserves honorable mention and was likewise regarded as highly successful in pulling orders. It appears on the following page. Its message, "Send a gift of flowers—Blooming plants or cut flowers tastily arranged in baskets. A gift having the distinctive quality of really pleasing the recipient. It is an ideal friendly greeting and an intimate personal gift as well. Christmas cheer and flowers are synonymous," forcefully presents the value of flowers to the Christmas shopper. The illustration in this advertisement was considered an especially appealing one. It represents a little miss who, upon arising Christmas morning, finds a heap of gifts awaiting her, and among these gifts the largest and most attractive to her is a cyclamen plant full of blooms.

Pair That Pulled.

Two quarter-page advertisements used in the St. Louis newspapers by the local cooperative publicity organization there are reproduced on page 39. One placed special emphasis on plants. The other stressed cut flowers. The florists of the city commented in most favorable terms on these advertisements, attributing to them a real share in the excellent holiday business enjoyed.

The Christmas spirit was put forward in striking fashion in the advertisement used by the Rosendale Flower Shop, Schenectady, N. Y. It presents the gift idea, unhappily too frequently neglected by florists, by saying, "Santa Claus has turned florist this year and has given us a host of novelties in cut flowers, Christmas bouquets and Christmas plants that will help you greatly in filling out your gift list." Here again is the offer to relieve the shopper of the trouble of sending gifts to points by sending flowers by wire: "Christmas flowers delivered to any part of the United States or Canada through our telegraph connection with florists everywhere. We take care of all details for you and save you the uncertainty of the holiday mails."

Probably more advertisements will be seen this year like that used last Christmas by the C. Kooyman Co., of San Francisco, Cal. In order to convince the public that flowers were gifts not only appropriate but within their means as well, a half-page advertisement was used to present a list of prices on flowering plants, ferns, wreaths and bulbs. He brought to the attention of the prospective customer the fact that mail orders would receive prompt and careful attention, something of value to florist and customers at the holidays.

Presenting chiefly the service which had made the store so famous a one, Siebrecht's House of Flowers, at Pasadena, Cal., last year carried in its quarter-page advertisement this statement: "Orders placed with us any time before midnight Christmas eve will be delivered Christmas morning with your card and greetings." This particular declaration in a florist's Christmas advertisement would surely catch the eye of the last-minute folks.

In a smaller town large space is not so frequently used by a florist as by his city brother. Continuous reminder by a series of smaller insertions is often preferred. This was true last year in the holiday advertising campaign of Joseph Bancroft & Son, Cedar Falls, Ia., who have studied the means of advertising effectively in a small town more carefully than have many other florists. This series began with an advertisement of telegraph delivery service, reading: "When you receive flowers from a friend who is far away, they bring you a message that words cannot express. They create a feeling that money cannot purchase. We are members of the F. T. D. If we cannot send safely from here, we wire or mail your order to our nearest representative." This advertisement was followed by one calling attention to wreaths, holly, greens and ruscus for decorating purposes, material which could be delivered in advance of the holiday. Then came one emphasizing the appropriateness of flowers as gifts, containing a general line of Christmas sales talk: "No gift so lovely—none so appropriate as flowers. Think what they express. They are a living, breathing message, and the cost is very reasonable." The last of the series quoted prices, particularly featuring potted plants, giving prices on poinsettias, narcissi, pepper and cherry plants, Boston ferns, cyclamens, primroses, white hyacinths, Easter lilies and palms, together with baskets of assorted plants. In this advertisement customers' attention was called to the fact that it was not necessary to wait until Christmas time to leave orders to be delivered for the holiday.

In these foregoing advertisements are embodied ideas which can be adapted by other florists, if they have not already employed them. This trade will wish to use its best publicity methods in order to sell the stock which is available to sell and which we want to sell, to make this as profitable a Christmas as those of other years. The prospect, from study of current conditions and present flower sales, seems excellent for a good holiday business for those who put forth their best efforts to make it such.

BIGGEST ROSE DISTRICT.

Inspection of some of the principal rose-growing establishments of Maywood and Elmhurst at this time indicates an abundant supply of roses at Christmas time. It is estimated by those good at figures that more roses are grown in a district inclusive of these two suburbs than in any similar-sized territory in this country. No one has questioned that estimate.

The Premier Rose Gardens is still a home of that fine rose of E. G. Hill's, though it does not occupy quite half the space at this range. There are 25,000 Russell, 25,000 Milady and 45,000 Premier. Some of the last named, in one of the big L. & B. houses, cropped especially for Christmas, carry as fine a lot of buds, even as a sheet, as one can find. Many thousand blooms will be cut here within an exceedingly few days at Christmas time. Superintendent Andrew Benson figures the total contribution of the range to the Christmas market at between 60,000 and 100,000, allowing a wide variation for that most fickle factor this autumn, the weather. Two benches of poinsettias are just beginning to be cut. They were put in so that space might be had for the grafting frames, the Manetti for which has already arrived. The poinsettias are now an even sheet of red, many two blooms to the plant, on long, sturdy stems.

Not far away is the Weiss & Meyer Co., where nearly as many Premier are grown. The census shows 35,000 of this variety, 18,000 Columbia, 9,000 Ophelia and 3,000 Butterfly. Ophelia will give way to Butterfly next season, not because the variety is not doing well, but just because, since the plants must be changed anyway, it is deemed better to put in the newer variety. The foliage on the plants in the big Lord & Burnham house is in splendid condition, and the plants hold promise of a large crop for Christmas. Mr. Meyer, conservative in his opinions, will wait until Christmas week, he says, to count his cut. Two or three score thousand blooms will be shipped, he believes.

Mention of the growers of roses in Maywood must include the Albert F. Amling Co., since its output is extremely large, the glass area being the largest in this district. The plants have never looked so well as they have this autumn, and the crop for Christmas, which includes the principal varieties on the market—a longer list than most other growers'—will probably run into six figures.

In Elmhurst one thinks of Wendland & Keimel, and the latter half of the firm knows roses as do few men. There are over 70,000 plants in the twenty-one houses, which total about 125,000 square feet. Crusader rivals Premier in number, both 15,000. Of Columbia there are 18,000; Butterfly, 12,000; Double White Killarney, 6,000; Brunner, 1,500; Golden Ophelia, 1,500. Crusader, given plenty of feeding and air, is on unusually good, stiff stems. The crop for Christmas has been skillfully handled, although from part of the plants a continuous crop is cut. A bench of new varieties and of Mr. Keimel's sports is particularly interesting.

At the other end of Elmhurst is the range of the Damm Greenhouse Co., consisting of five houses, the largest 42x400 and each one in succession fifteen feet shorter, a construction necessitated by the road. Painting last summer proved exceptionally wise foresight, in view of the limited sunshine this fall. There are prospects of a large Christmas cut here, many of the blooms of Premier and Columbia being on long, straight stems, measuring forty to forty-eight inches in length. Since there are about 44,000 rose plants in this range, the output Christmas week will run into considerable figures.

A number of smaller growers swell the rose output of this district, but an early-descending sun and imperfect roads limited the survey, sufficient to indicate an amplitude of roses for Christmas, something greatly desirable in view of already heavy orders placed on the Chicago market for the holiday.

YOUNG AT SCRANTON.

The Scranton Florists' Club met at dinner in the banquet room of the Elks' club, Tuesday evening, December 6, at 6:30, at which time John Young came as guest of the club and was elected to honorary membership. After seventy-five sons and daughters of the flower land had been served, a short business session was held. After this Mr. Young was introduced as the secretary of the S. A. F. and of the New York Florists' Club and as highly honored by these societies, already having served thirty-two years as secretary of the New York Florists' Club. This is a wonderful tribute to the efficiency and faithfulness of one who has come to be known as "Our John" all over flowerdom.

While Mr. Young is conversant with floriculture in its beauty, sale and profit, he did not dwell on these things, only to touch on the fact that we have a wonderful business to appeal to the æsthetic nature of mankind. He considered more particularly the rise of the S. A. F. and other kindred floral organizations. He showed how an organization of florists' clubs throughout the different sections and cities of the Union can develop and can continue to work out a wonderful and needed propaganda for creating in every nook and corner of our country a demand for more flowers. He gave some concrete illustrations of the way this is being done.

He had not gone far in his remarks before all felt that he thought it incumbent on all florists' clubs and on everyone in the clubs to join the S. A. F. In becoming a member one's membership fee is not a gift to the S. A. F., but really an investment. The florist becomes a help to the great organization, lending his influence and funds to help this ever-growing society to a more dignified position in our government.

His talk was so influential that every florist present, not heretofore a member, who is directly in the business, signed up as a member of the S. A. F. Mr. Young did not forget the publicity campaign of the S. A. F. Subscription blanks were passed and a number were signed for different amounts. He expressed his appreciation of the kindly feeling and interest the club had accorded him as secretary of the society he came to represent. The club extended to him a vote of thanks and appreciation for the information he gave, which was new to the younger element of the trade.

Mr. Young arrived at Scranton about 2 p. m., was met at the station by T. J. Nolan and was shown around town and introduced to the tradespeople.

Mr. Young expressed himself as most delighted to have such a good report to send to the president, S. S. Pennock, who is coming to Scranton January 10, 1922, to talk to our club members and give stereopticon illustrations of his trip abroad.

LANCASTER, PA.

Club Meeting.

The Lancaster County Florists' Association celebrated its tenth anniversary with a banquet at the Hotel Rossmere. Seventy guests sat down to a sumptuous chicken dinner. The tables were arranged in the form of the Roman numeral ten, and the hall was festooned with laurel, while the tables were decorated with blooming plants and cut chrysanthemums.

Morris J. Brinton, of Christiana, Pa., was toastmaster. Albert M. Herr, the father of the Lancaster County Club, gave a history of the club from the first call issued by himself ten years ago. B. F. Barr and Elmer J. Weaver gave interesting talks relative to the club's advancement and a silent toast was also given to the memory of the deceased ex-president, Harry A. Schroyer. (The committee on resolutions of respect for H. A. Schroyer consists of the following members: B. F. Barr, A. M. Herr and W. R. Markley.)

A short business meeting was then held, with Willis B. Girvin, of Leola, Pa., in the chair. At B. F. Barr's suggestion, a protest was filed relative to the passing of a bill to withdraw special delivery from the parcel post service.

The nomination of officers for the year 1922 resulted as follows: President, Harry K. Rohrer; vice-president, John M. Moore; secretary, Albert M. Herr; treasurer, Lemon S. Landis. Ten new members were added to the club. The meeting then adjourned, after which there was dancing, bowling and cards.

During the dancing a handsome floor lamp was presented to Albert M. Herr in recognition of his activity in founding the association. B. F. Barr was presented with a gold stickpin from the flower show committee, of which he was the active chairman, and the retiring president, Willis B. Girvin, was presented with a box of cigars.

Prizes at cards were won by Carrie Steckman, Cora F. Weaver, Mrs. W. R. Markley, Mrs. Lemon S. Landis, Edgar H. Herr, L. S. Landis, H. K. Rohrer, Ira H. Landis. Plants and flowers were won by Mrs. J. A. Sales, Mrs. John H. Schoenberger, Cora F. Weaver, Agnes Goldbach, Mrs. Elizabeth Spera, Mrs. A. F. Strickler, Mrs. Clara J. Tucker, Mrs. John F. Moore, Mrs. Albert M. Herr and Mrs. R. Nagel. Through the kindness of the S. S. Pennock Co. the club was fortunate to have a handsome vase of the new E. G. Hill Co. rose, America, and also a vase of Priscilla, the beautiful variety from "down east."

The committee on arrangements consisted of the following; Mrs. B. F. Barr, Mrs. H. K. Rohrer, A. F. Strickler, Charles B. Herr, John F. Moore, W. R. Markley and Albert M. Herr.

Various Notes.

Elmer J. Weaver and his son, Lloyd Weaver, W. B. Girvin, John Schoenberger and H. K. Rohrer motored to Philadelphia December 6, and visited the establishments of Alfred Brinton, Hatboro, Pa., and Stephen Mortensen, John Brinton, H. M. Weiss & Sons Co., Southampton, Pa. HOOSIERS HOLD MEETING.

Planning Ahead.

The December meeting of the Indiana State Florists' Association was held Tuesday evening, December 6, at the Smith & Young commission house, Indianapolis.

The chief topic of the evening was the planning of the January meeting, at which there are always a floral display and the annual election of officers. At this meeting the carnation and rose trophies are awarded for the year. It was decided to offer other prizes for special entries, to stimulate interest in the exhibit. For the first time this display will be open to the public.

The claim of the Tennessee Florists' Association that their organization was the largest and strongest state association brought a protest from the Indiana association at this time. It was conceded that Tennessee's membership may be larger, but Indiana runs a close second. But where Tennessee meets only twice a year, Indiana meets every month; thus a closer and stronger organization has been formed.

The signboard committee reported that three signs had been distributed—two to Anders Rasmussen, at New Albany, and one to Henley Bros., at Terre Haute. There are two signs yet to be disposed of.

A new drive for membership will be made before the next meeting. All Indiana florists, not affiliated with the association, will be written to and urged to join.

A. N. Grant, representing the International Order of Odd Fellows, gave a short talk telling of the plan they were fostering for a floral parade, which will be held at Indianapolis, October 7, 1922. This will be similar to the floral parades held in other cities, such as Pasadena, Cal., Portland, Ore., and various cities in Florida. The organization was seeking the endorsement of the Indiana State Florists' Association for this project and to make this a yearly event. The association gave it unanimous support.

The following auditing committee was appointed to look over the year's books: O. E. Steinkamp, Frank Rieman and E. E. Temperley.

The January meeting was left to the following committee: Morris Marer, Len Elder and Charles Randall. Lincoln Coles moved that a suitable sum be set aside for the committee to use as it saw fit as premiums for various exhibits at this next meeting. This was carried.

Discussions.

Professor Reece, of Purdue University, gave a short address on the experimental work being done at this institution and asked the members to bring their problems to him. The cyclamen diseases and pests were called to his attention and the professor said that he would make it a point to get a specimen to work upon before returning. An invitation was extended to all the members to visit the university.

The subject of publicity was brought up, and it was decided to make the association better known. E. E. Temperley was appointed publicity agent for the local papers. John Hartje was appointed as judge for the special exhibits in January.

The meeting, which was unusually well attended by out-of-town members, was presided over by President Hitz. Walter Burkoff was mentioned for membership. Forest Meeks, Herbert Tonns, Joseph E. Little and Denton Rawley, all of Indianapolis, were elected to membership.

Following the meeting a social hour was enjoyed. Refreshments were served by the hosts. E. E. T.

GLASS CLOTH.

The glass cloth mentioned on page 47 of The Review last week came from Turner Bros., Bladen, Neb.

We built the house in question last summer. It is 25x50 feet and is used to grow foliage plants. The glass cloth gives good light and seems to provide the amount of shade that is necessary in our climate here, at Ormond Beach. It keeps out perfectly wind and rain. As to lasting qualities, of course, I cannot advise at this date.

The above-mentioned firm is sending out samples, three yards for $1, and in this way interested people can form a better idea of the material.

Head gardener for John D. Rockefeller.

WE DO IT GLADLY.

I have just seen a copy of The Review of December 1, in which there was a report of the flower show given by the Portland Florists' Club recently at the Chamber of Commerce. The report was most excellent except in one respect and I write to ask if you will not please correct this.

As the Pacific coast director of the American Rose Society, I was asked by the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce to review the show and make a report. My mention of the exhibit of roses and orchids by Martin & Forbes was in some way omitted from the account in The Review. My report to the Chamber of Commerce in regard to this exhibit read as follows:

"The centerpiece of the show, a large table of roses and orchids by Martin & Forbes, could not be excelled and certainly adds to the reputation of Mr. Martin as an expert rose grower. The Crusader roses in the center indicated that this new rose has not been overrated in the announcement of its introducers and the vase of May Martin roses, strictly an Oregon product, produced by Mr. Martin, shows why this rose is in such demand by the growers of this country."

The article in The Review failed to mention this most remarkable display, and I cannot understand how it could have been overlooked by such a thorough paper as yours is. I think that credit should be given Mr. Martin for making the display that he did and if you will publish this letter it will be greatly appreciated by Jesse A. Currey.

FURNITURE SQUAWKS HORRIBLY.

In The Review for December 8 I read with much interest the letter of Carl H. Gantner on the "Say It with Furniture—Flowers Die" parody. While I agree with Mr. Gantner that it is distasteful to use such a slogan, I do not think that it can hurt our slogan, "Say It with Flowers," as this is an expression of idealism and appeals to a high standard of mind.

Flowers speak a language of their own and this language is as old as the human race; flowers convey nothing but love with their fragrance. The voices of flowers express thoughts that we ourselves cannot express. One cannot say anything with a piece of furniture. And no other object, including jewels, has a voice of pure love, as have flowers. Our slogan cannot be hurt by any ridiculous advertisements, such as the one discussed. Albert J. Mueller.

CHRISTMAS PLANTS

PLANTS FOR THE HOLIDAY.

Good Demand in Sight.

Once more we are approaching the festive season, when plants are always in large demand. Business for some time has not been up to that of a year ago, but Thanksgiving showed conclusively that the army of plant and flower purchasers has not decreased, and while sales did not quite come up in money value to those of the year 1920, this was because prices averaged lower in nearly all lines offered. The florists may congratulate themselves that their business has weathered the period of depression far better than have many others which might be named, and now that the tide of depression is receding, now that the nations of the world are earnestly endeavoring to render future wars impossible, which means reduced taxes and more money to spend for flowers and other commodities, a feeling of optimism is amply justified. The florist who has plants and flowers of good quality, presents them in the right way, sells at a fair price and lets the public hear about them is going to have a good Christmas.

Protection in Transit.

Christmas comes when days are at their shortest and when the sun is at a low angle. Occasionally it is cold; sometimes it is balmy and spring-like. In the last few years we have had more disastrous storms at Easter than at Christmas, but the weather is a pure lottery and pot plant growers never care to gamble on balmy holiday weather. This, of course, is a big country and there may be snow and zero in Chicago, rain and fog in New York, a temperature of 75 degrees in the shade in Florida and southern California and intense cold in the Rocky mountain states. The man who ships plants must cover pots and plants heavily. Paper excludes a remarkable degree of cold, and many shipments which are actually frozen can be thawed out in a low temperature gradually and sustain little injury. A cellar kept about 40 degrees is ideal to thaw out frozen shipments in, and cold water sprayed on those which seem almost hopeless will often take away all frost damage if the plants are kept in the dark until they are well thawed out.

The price of old newspapers has slumped tremendously since a year ago, and no one will make any mistake in stocking up heavily on these. Some white or light cream wrapping paper can be used over the newspapers for retail purchasers. Soft paper is necessary to protect delicate flowers like orchids, gardenias, poinsettias, camellias and begonias of the large-flowered type. Cotton batting is also of value, as it protects the blooms from bruising and is a great protector from cold.

What Is New?

It is not easy to get new plant material for each recurring holiday. A common query, especially from critical customers, is, "What have you that is new?" And the average retailer has to confess usually that he has practically nothing. The number of people well informed floriculturally is increasing steadily, due in no small manner to the formation all over the country of garden clubs, to which many thousands of well-to-do and intelligent women belong—of course, there are some men, but the women are in the overwhelming majority, and florists depend on them for their livelihood far more than on mere men. These well informed and critical persons demand novelties and the best of the older varieties. Their knowledge of flowers sometimes is greater than that of the salesman who waits upon them in flower stores. We greatly need a school for retail salesmen, to broaden their knowledge of plants and flowers, and it seems to me that a short course at one or two of our colleges, like Cornell, Amherst, Urbana, Storrs and Pennsylvania, if it could be conducted in the summer months when business is at its lowest ebb and give students opportunities to see plants growing and to ascertain their names and needs, would be vastly helpful and should command the support of all wide-awake and progressive retailers.

But to return to novelties, there are not many. But a few which are somewhat uncommon will be mentioned in these notes. While a strong call exists for scarlet and brightly colored flowers for Christmas, novelties in other colors will be found to sell. We have in former notes spoken of the necessity of careful watering in the store; few men, comparatively, know how to water properly and if this is so in greenhouses and stores, think of the difference when plants reach the warmer, more arid and less ventilated homes! Tie on a tag stating that such and such a plant should be watered daily in order to keep it in condition. It does not pay to sell plants which quickly go to pieces. This makes poor business for the florist. The better the plants stand and the longer period of pleasure they give, the more certain are buyers to come back for more.

Cyclamens in Center of Stage.

Once more cyclamens fill the center of the stage for Christmas. The improvement in them of late years has been simply marvelous. One sees a glorious picture in a well grown house of them. They are beautiful even without flowers, as the foliage is handsome and varied, just as attractive and much hardier and more durable than many so-called fine foliage plants. Each year a number of usually successful growers incur failure through the attacks of the mite and some others fail from an injudicious use of fertilizer. Extreme cleanliness is necessary for successful cyclamen culture, as, indeed, for many more plants, but all growers do not yet appreciate this fact.

Salmon-colored cyclamens seem to sell better at Christmas than all others; scarlet and blood-red are rather too dark; for pure white the call is moderate, but this color sells well later in the winter. Cyclamens are among the most satisfactory of pot plants for the store trade. They are not susceptible to temperature changes, are easily packed, ship well and last remarkably in a steam-heated room. It is safe to say that some hundreds of thousands will be sold for Christmas, from plants in 4-inch pots to the big specimens in 10-inch pots and even small tubs, with the latter wholesaling as high as $10 and $15 each. The cyclamen has taken the place of the azalea as a holiday plant and seems likely to hold the lead against all comers. A certain percentage of plants have long stalks which persist in hanging down instead of standing erect; such plants make good basket plants. A noted Massachusetts grower disposed of a large number this way last Christmas.

Begonias to Fore.

Begonias are in fine shape again this season. They are less satisfactory house plants than cyclamens, as their flowers drop rather quickly. They are, however, great sellers and undoubtedly come next to cyclamens in popularity. They can be produced in less time than cyclamens, but need staking and rather more space in the greenhouses to do them justice, and they cannot command as good prices as cyclamens. There is a large range of varieties offered, and sizes range from wee little Melior and Lorraine in 3-inch pots to specimens of Melior about four feet across. Cincinnati for several years was the favorite seller, but Melior has displaced it, and some retailers refuse to buy Cincinnati at all. Mrs. Peterson and Peerless sell in a moderate way, but do not compare with Melior in favor, while the white flowers sell rather poorly. For small-sized plants there seems to be an insatiable call and the late-struck cuttings undoubtedly pay the growers better than the big specimens.

Rather more of the large-flowered English race of begonias has been seen this season. They hold their flowers much better than does Lorraine or Melior, and all are of better Christmas colors, such as scarlet, crimson, deep orange, apricot and salmon. When we consider that these begonias propagate from leaves just as easily as the older pink sorts, and that plants three to four feet across can be produced in twelve months, there would seem to be a splendid field here for commercial men. So far the private gardeners have largely monopolized these begonias and are growing them by the houseful. Any retailer who could display well flowered plants of Emily Clibrans, Clibrans' Pride, Rosalind, Exquisite, Optima, Al-trincham Pink or Vulcan would create something of a sensation.

Poinsettias Have Christmas Color.

Poinsettias undoubtedly fill the bill better than any other plant when real Christmas brilliant coloring is needed. They are in fine condition this year, with bracts well developed early in December. Poinsettias are not the most satisfactory of store plants; the fluctuations in temperature and cold drafts soon cause yellowing foliage and wilting bracts. No plants need more careful watering, and if plants look rather sad and drooping, a soaking of water at a temperature of 110 to 112 degrees will usually stiffen them up. Sogginess at the roots and a low temperature cause leaves to turn golden; it is always safer to keep plants a little on the dry side when the bracts are well developed rather than the reverse, and try to keep your plants where they will not get "cold feet." Poinsettias are unsatisfactory holiday plants and entail considerable loss when low temperatures prevail at the holidays. They must be heavily and warmly wrapped to insure safe delivery. The practice of growing some asparagus, cyperus or ferns in the pans is a good one, as they cover the naked poinsettia stems where leaves have fallen. There are a few pink poinsettias. They sell in a moderate way, but no one seems to want the white ones at all.

Another plant closely akin to the poinsettia, which is also a euphorbia, is Euphorbia jacquiniæflora. Grown several together in pots or pans, this makes an effective Christmas plant, one splendid also for utilizing in baskets of flowering and foliage plants, as well as for cutting.

Other Red-flowered Plants.

There are some well flowered batches of Bougainvillea glabra and Sanderiana, mostly in 6-inch and 8-inch pots, and an occasional lot of B. spectabilis, also called B. brasiliensis, brick red in color and a really good Christmas plant, not, however, nearly so floriferous as glabra and more difficult of propagation. This variety makes a fine climber in California and the West Indies, but in the cold states it is yet little known. Speaking of brilliant colors for the festive season reminds me of another plant, not plentiful and of rather slow growth, which proves effective now—Anthurium Andreanum, sometimes called the "flaming plant," which has handsome green foliage and brilliant spathes of flowers, usually scarlet, but occasionally pink and white. This is a tough plant, and none other will last in fine condition so long in a warm, steam-heated house without either leaves or flowers showing any ill effects.

Ericas.

There are always some hard-wooded plants for Christmas, and some fine varieties are now in bloom. More of Erica melanthera is offered than anything else. This is a splendid keeper, stands a low temperature with impunity and will keep fresh a long time in heat, provided the plants are not allowed to dry out. Ericas have a mass of fine hair-like roots and a thorough drying out usually finishes them; so if your pots, when tapped with the knuckles, have a clear, bell-like ring, soak them at once in a pail or tub of water. There are some nice lots of King Edward VII and Wilmoreana in small sizes, mostly 4-inch and 5-inch, and also some nicely flowered gracilis and mediterranea, but melanthera is the freest bloomer of all and the best grower.

The Cyclamen Is the Leader Among Plants at Christmas.

There Is Always Considerable Demand for Such Baskets as This at the Holidays.

Camellias are not heavy sellers; they are slow of propagation and will never be sold cheap. I have just received a letter from a friend in the island of Jersey, one of the Channel islands, and he says, under date of November 27, that great beds of camellias were in full bloom outdoors, some of the plants fifteen to twenty feet across. We who handle them under glass are satisfied with plants as many inches across, and when we get specimens in tubs six to ten feet in height, are extremely proud. Camellias grow best in a low temperature. The buds will all fall off in a warm greenhouse, and in the average home. Camellias are not easy to ship when in flower and some cotton batting should be placed around each bloom.

Daphne Odora.

Speaking of woody plants reminds me of another old-fashioned, deliciously fragrant plant, of which I have seen one or two well bloomed little specimens of this season. I refer to Daphne odora, also called indica and odorata. A native of China and Japan, many plants were, before Quarantine 37 went into effect, imported via San Francisco. This source of supply being now cut off, we must perforce propagate it here. At one time a commercial grower in Connecticut specialized in this plant and had hundreds of them. During the coal shortage some years ago he lost his entire stock and at present no one seems to have taken his place. Daphne odora can be layered, grafted on other daphnes, such as Mezereum, and also rooted from cuttings. At present I have a plant in an 8-inch pan carrying over seventy-five heads of flowers, and I can imagine nothing more beautiful and fragrant. This lovely old plant grows well in a compost of peat, sand and leaf-mold and needs a cold greenhouse. The few plants obtainable of florists sell like the proverbial hot cakes.

Berried Plants.

Christmas plants are not complete without berried subjects, and while we now must perforce do without lots of beautiful berried English hollies, skimmias and similar subjects, we now have a greater abundance of berried solanums, and the variety, Cleveland, is far superior to all others and wonderfully fruited. There are various types of the Jerusalem cherry; the best is of spreading habit and displays every fruit to advantage. Seedlings planted out and potted up carefully make far the best plants. This is a most satisfactory and popular plant, which can be profitably retailed at a comparatively low price and will not fail to give satisfaction. The yellow-fruited solanum only sells moderately well and has not a taking Christmas color.

Of ardisias we have a fair number. They hold their fruits almost indefinitely and are great keepers. They will never be cheap plants, like solanums, as they are of such slow growth. Otaheite oranges make splendid holiday plants, and more growers each season seem to have mastered the knack of successfully coloring them in season. Plants with green fruits simply will not sell at all. A brisk heat, plenty of sun and free syringing is needed some time in advance of Christmas in order to have well ripened plants. The average retail price on these this season seems to be 50 cents per fruit, and at that price the number of the larger specimens sold is, of course, not great. The best call is for plants carrying eight to twelve oranges each. There are also Christmas peppers, more delicate and less valuable than the solanums, but even when plants cannot be sold they can be cut down and the fruits used in mixed Christmas wreaths.

Some Annuals.

The soft-wooded greenhouse annuals are useful at Christmas and people of moderate means are glad to purchase one of the primulas, of which several are obtainable. P. obconica is in good condition; so is P. sinensis. There are some P. malacoides, the most graceful and decorative of all the primroses, but Christmas does not see it at its best; towards spring it is vastly better.

There are in evidence some Clarkia Salmon Queen, a beautiful annual, which flowers for a long time and in a cut state is a wonderful keeper. Sown in early July, this plant comes into fine bloom for the holidays. Still another plant usually treated as an annual is Browallia speciosa major. Spring-sown seedlings are now a mass of rich violet-blue flowers. It needs a little staking, but also makes an excellent basket or hanging plant. Blue is not a Christmas color, but this is a plant which will sell after the holidays, when scarlet ones, like poinsettias, are altogether unsalable.

Some early sown cinerarias are in bloom and are quite acceptable.

Of azaleas we have practically none this season. Some are being propagated, but they do not seem to force so well as the Belgian plants formerly imported. California-grown stock has so far proved a failure in the east, but it may be the growers will yet acquire the knack of producing plants which can be forced early, for we certainly do miss the grand batches of Hexe, Firefly and one or two other Christmas sorts which were once so much in evidence.

Geraniums, especially double scarlets, make nice holiday plants, and one firm, to my knowledge, finds a quick sale for all it can produce, sending many of them hundreds of miles away.

White marguerites are better for Easter than for Christmas, but are to be noted in one or two places. Pots of Godfrey calla, dwarf Stevia serrata, Roman hyacinths in pots and pans, Paper White narcissi in pans and bowls, especially the latter, and some rather nicely flowered pots and pans of L'Innocence, Yellow Hammer and other prepared hyacinths and some tulips are also welcome additions.

Among choicer plants Cypripedium insignis and its varieties, Harefield Hall and Sanderæ, are offered. The last-named seems to be the most popular. Other orchids are scarce. A few of the small-flowered Cattleya Percivaliana only are seen. Gardenias are usually seen in small numbers at Christmas; some nice pots, however, with a few open flowers have come in and will suit critical customers.

Foliage Plants.

There is the usual grand assortment of colored-leaved dracaenas, crotons and pandanus, and separately or made up in baskets with ferns, asparagus and other foliage plants, they are most attractive and in good demand. Ferns are in abundant supply, and the old Nephrolepis bostoniensis is still far ahead of all others in quantity and demand. Verona, Macawii, Teddy, Jr., elegantissima, Scottii, Whitmanii and others all find more or less favor. Then there are cibotiums, Asplenium Nidus-avis, or bird's-nest fern; cyrtomiums, pteris and others, with special demand for small table sizes.

All plants obtainable have not been mentioned and some may have been omitted that are worthy of note, but there are in the above an excellent and varied assortment. Unless all signs fail, given reasonably good weather conditions, more plants will probably be sold during the coming Christmas week than ever before in the trade's history. Be sure to pack carefully. It eats badly into profits to be obliged to replace frozen stock which one or two thicknesses of newspaper would have saved.

PITTSBURGH, PA.

The Market.

Conditions in this market have reversed themselves. Business has shown a considerable improvement during the last week, due, no doubt, to a decrease in the supply of chrysanthemums and pompons, making the demand for roses and carnations and other seasonable flowers heavy. The supply of carnations is hardly able to take care of the demand; in many cases it is necessary to divide the cut among the retail customers. Roses, however, are being received in fair quantities, but are moving out daily. The varieties include Columbia, Premier, Richmond, Crusader, Butterfly, Pink Ophelia, White Ophelia, Killarney and Pilgrim. The quality of the roses has been exceptionally fine. American Beauties have also been in demand, especially in the better grades.

Ardisias Are Always Appreciated.

These are practically sold when the shipments are received. The shorter grades, however, do not move so rapidly.

Easter lilies are also good property, while about two weeks ago there was such a glut that it was difficult to move lilies at any price. At the present time they are bringing fair prices. Orchids are scarce, however, and the demand is light. The wholesale price of orchids in Pittsburgh has been $1.50 each. Sweet peas, calendulas, violets and stevia are also being received in the market and are moving out fairly well. Paper White narcissi take a prominent part in the market and since chrysanthemums and pompons have left the market, Paper Whites are becoming more prominent. While some shipments of violets are being received, yet the demand does not seem to be encouraging. It seems that violets are used only for special occasions or holidays. The florists do not seem to be willing to have violets on hand when they are not certain of orders. Flowers at Christmas, it seems, will be limited, although, if the weather keeps bright, there may be a chance for improvement.

It seems that this year the majority waited until the last minute before placing their Christmas orders. From all indications it is expected that this Christmas holiday season will at least equal that of last year. Christmas being celebrated on Sunday and Monday will give the florists an ideal opportunity of making their deliveries promptly.

Association Meets.

The Retail Florists' Association of the Pittsburgh District held its monthly meeting at the Hotel Chatham Thursday, December 8. There were nineteen present and, after the dinner, the committee which had been appointed to draw up a resolution for collecting funds for advertising made its report. The following is the resolution:

First, that all retail florists pay one-half of one per cent on all their purchases of flowers in the district and out of town. Collection of this assessment to be made by the wholesale commission houses monthly; second, that every retailer and grower having glass pay $2 per square foot on the total area of glass he owns. This assessment is to be made by the secretary of the association and is to be collected monthly; third, that all growers and consignors shipping to the retailers or commission houses in the Pittsburgh district be assessed one-fourth of one per cent on the sales. This assessment is to be made by the retailer and wholesale commission house making its report monthly to the treasurer of the organization.

After some discussion the above resolution of the committee was adopted. The president, G. Wessenauer, then reported that progress was being made on the securing of a charter for this organization; in fact, he reported that he had turned this over to an attorney, who was drawing up papers necessary for the procedure. As soon as the charter is granted, the organization expects to carry out the resolution as outlined above.

The principal speaker of the evening was Mrs. Ella Grant Wilson, of Cleveland, O., who spoke on "Publicity for Flowers as Developed in Other Cities." Mrs. Wilson gave an interesting talk and displayed some interesting illustrations and essays on various flowers, plants and seasons of the year. By the plan, it is expected to raise a fund for community advertising, which will be extended during the year by the committee appointed for that purpose. Mrs. Wilson's principal point was to educate the public as to how to care for plants and flowers; by so doing they will become more interested in the flower business.

The meeting was a great success. President Wessenauer said that he hoped at the January meeting, which is to be held the first Thursday in January, 1922, there will be 100 present. Let us all put forth our efforts and bring someone with us. This organization is your organization and cannot be a success unless you are represented.

Various Notes.

The stores in and about Pittsburgh are all taking on a holiday appearance, with their Christmas decorations and the showing of fancy wreaths and plant combinations.

During the last week there have been many visitors in town purchasing their needs for the Christmas holidays. Miss Jane McDowell, of Steubenville, O.; Mr. Warrick, of Washington, Pa.; John Boeh, of Blairsville, Pa., and a representative of the Alpha Floral Co., of Uniontown, Pa., were among them. H.

HILL HARKS BACK

E. G. HILL TALKS ON ROSES.

Work of Hybridizer.

I do not like to speak about myself particularly; I am afraid you will think I am egotistic. I worked along year after year without any very great success. I went to Europe and talked with Pernet and Russell and with Lambert and Soupert, of Luxemburg, and with the Dicksons. I tried to gather information, but I found that a great many of these men were stumbling along; they were not doing things on scientific lines. I do not think it is speaking in any way disrespectfully of them, but I think they were groping their way, to a certain extent. Perhaps Frank Dickson and Alex. Dickson were the most pronounced in their work in regard to scientific knowledge concerning the crossing of roses, and they certainly did get results. Pernet has accomplished much. He took the Prussian yellow and the Austrian copper, and worked for fifteen to twenty years trying to introduce a pure yellow trend in the everblooming roses. What is the result? His effort has been crowned with the finest rose, the greatest advance that has been made in the rose family in the last twenty-five years, in the variety that he has named for his son, Claudius Pernet. It is one of the most wonderful roses that I have ever beheld. It is not only of good size, but the coloring is simply superb—a clear, shining, golden yellow. I think it is going to be a great garden rose.

American Hybridizers.

I do not want to appropriate anything to myself. I think we all owe a debt of gratitude to Alexander Montgomery; he has done great things for the rose. And then John Cook, just see what he has done! He has given us a number of excellent roses, roses that have been appropriated by the nurserymen and by those who like beautiful roses for the adornment of the garden and home. M. H. Walsh has given us fine types. Dr. Van Fleet is doing wonderful work, more particularly for roses that will prove splendid outdoor-blooming and climbing varieties. Dr. Van Fleet has certainly done a lot of painstaking, careful work, and he has given us varieties that we as Americans should be proud of.

I shall not forget going down the Thames river. In looking over the back-yard fences along the railway, I saw, I think, in five out of every ten back-yards, roses hanging over the garden fences—Dorothy Perkins, Killarney and American Pillar. Those three roses were being planted in England everywhere and on every hand. I thought that was a tribute to the American rosarian.

Labors to Get a New Variety.

A good many people think, when we send out a new rose and ask the price we do, that it is exorbitant and we are kind of profiteering. But let me just put the thing to you: From the time I introduced Richmond until I got Columbia, I spent thousands and thousands of dollars in wasted space and in wasted time, and I am sure it was a trial to my

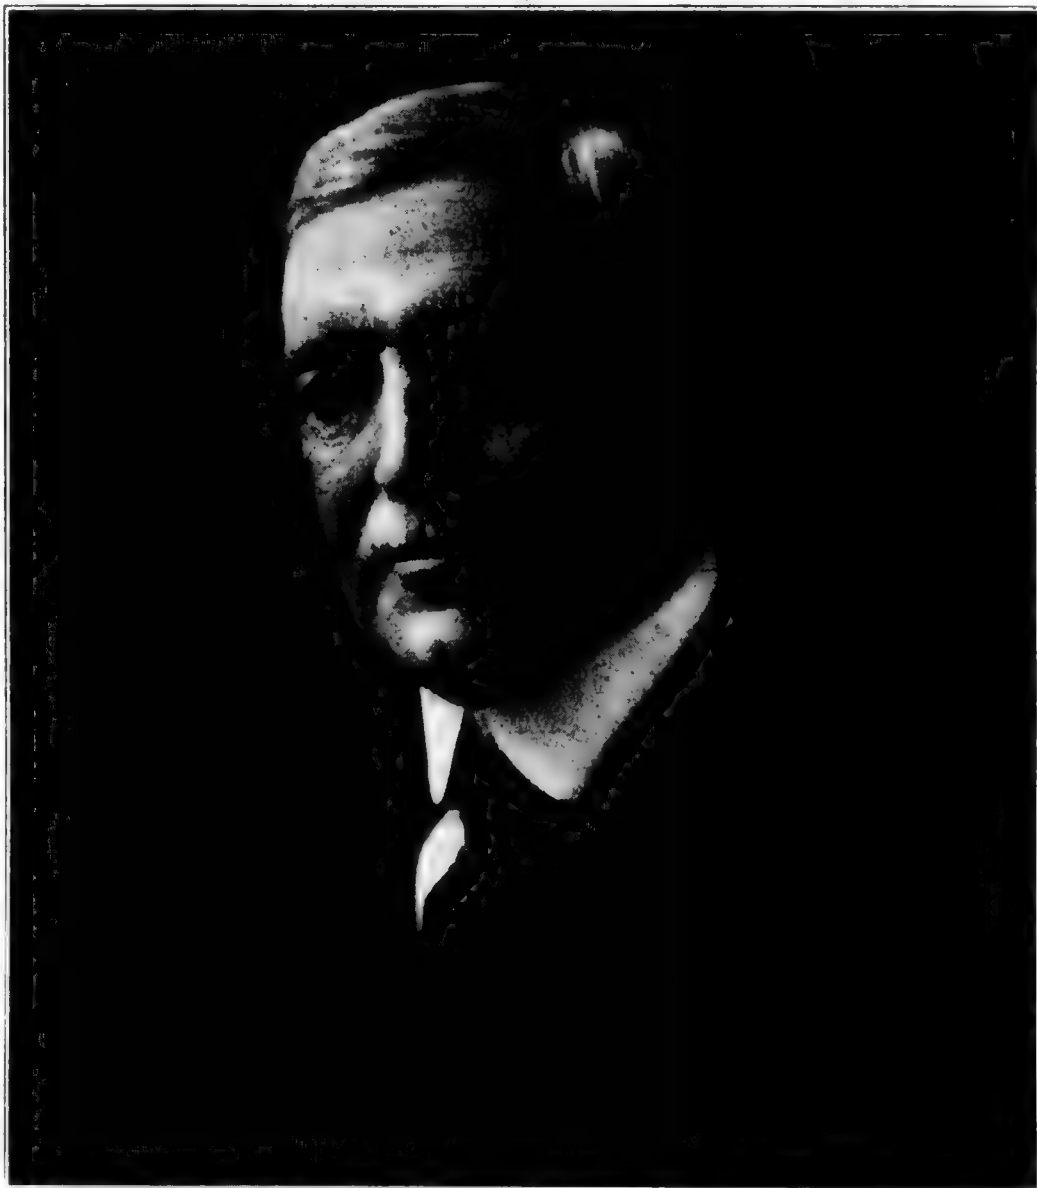

When E. G. Hill talked before the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, December 6, President A. M. Campbell knew his remarks would be worth the attention of more than the few score who heard them at the meeting. So he engaged a shorthand reporter to take down Mr. Hill's talk, and here it is—at least, most of it. Some had to be omitted because of limitations of space, but though some humorous anecdotes and some general remarks are not here, much highly interesting rose lore is given to Review readers.

patience before I got Columbia. Of course, I had a nice return from Richmond, but, do you know? the nurserymen do not plunge on a new rose that is valuable for garden purposes. I think the Dreer people are coming to put a better estimate on purely garden roses than the general run of the nurserymen have done in the past. We have had some good garden roses, but as soon as they fall they are offered for a song. I think that cheapens a thing, and I should rather burn them up, for there is nothing commensurate for the work done in regard to that type of rose. I think a better day is dawning and that there will be a better appreciation of a good garden rose, and when that day comes we shall see a revolution in our garden variety of roses. There is lots of blood that needs breeding out, and new blood that should be bred in, before we shall get satisfactory varieties that will grow and bloom for us outdoors just as they do over the water and out on the Pacific slope.

Some Reminiscences.

If I may reminisce a little, I can remember back, quite sixty years, when we had an old tea rose called Smith's Yellow. It was delightfully fragrant and it had eight or nine petals. There was another variety, called Narceross, and another, called Cheney, and I just thought those tea roses at that time were beautiful and the odor was delightful. Then along came Sofrano and Isabella Sprunt. And then we got Catherine Mermet and you know the Bride and Bridesmaid; they made thousands and thousands of dollars for the rose growers of America. Then, of course, we come on down to the present time, when we have got to the point where we may expect improvement right along. I think I can tell you where there are five or six crimson red roses and out of the lot you will get one that will fill the bill. You do not need to ask me where that location is.

Foreign Roses.

Now I am going to reminisce a little more. I remember in my quest for a new rose, I went over to Luxemburg. I saw a rose there and said to myself, "That rose will force. That is just the finest thing. I believe I will put $400 or $500 into it." That was years ago and that pretty nearly broke me at that time. I thought surely I had a jewel, and I brought it over here and tried it out. What was the result? I burnt the rose up. And then there was a fellow down in southern France who wrote me that he had a mighty fine rose, a red rose, that he thought would suit the American market and would be desirable for forcing purposes. As I had never known a fellow over there to have more than a couple of hundred plants of a new rose, fool-like I sent him a cablegram that I would take all he had. How many do you suppose I received? I got 9,400. It took some hustling around to dispose of those roses. Robert Craig helped me out; the Dreer people took a good many of them, and I came out a good deal better than I expected I would when I received the invoice. And so it has gone on from that day to this; but you know I was a fool in my quest for new roses. I was pretty nearly bankrupt one year when one of the French firms who dealt mostly in hybrids, sent me a list that just captivated me, but my wife said, "I think we need things in the house more than we need new roses." But, anyhow, I sent for them and he sent them C. O. D. They got to Richmond and I had to hustle around and take them up.

How Sunburst Came to America.

When I was at Lyons, I was going through with Mr. Pernet, and he was showing me his roses and dilating upon them, when I caught sight of a couple of yellow roses that were sticking up. Since I kept looking at them, Mr. Pernet said to me, "What are you looking at? You keep looking over there." I said, "I am looking at that yellow rose. Let's go over there and then we can come back here." But he said, "Come right along; we will get there." We got over there after a while and I was captivated by that rose. I said to Mr. Pernet, "I would like to buy that rose." "Well," he said, "what will you give?" I looked them over, and I said to myself, "I will risk $500 on that." I told him in francs. "Well," he said, "I won't take that much money for it; I would not feel right to take $500 for that rose. When we go in to dinner I will make you a price." So we got to the dinner, and the old gentleman said, "Mr. Hill, if you will give me 1,500 francs for that rose, that will be about right." I said, "That is not enough." He said, "Yes. I do not want more." It was Sunburst, and so I said, "I want you to reserve European rights. I will exploit it over in America and the information will get back to England, and I am sure you will sell a good lot of them." And it worked out that way; Mr. Pernet got more money out of Sunburst over there than I got out of it in the sale over here, and I was glad for him.

He sent me Madame Herriot, the rose for which the Daily Mail gave that $500 prize at the great international show. He thought that rose would bring far more money than Sunburst. I tried my best to get that thing to bloom in winter-time, but I did not succeed, and I think Mr. Pernet was not altogether pleased with the financial results. But, you know, when you see a rose growing over on the other side and you try to size it up, in nine cases out of ten—I might say in ninety-nine cases out of 100—if you have in view a foreign variety, you are doomed to disappointment, for outside of Catherine Mermet and Madame Ferdinand Jamain and one or two others, how many of those foreign importations have ever proved amenable to our winter-forcing conditions? Our people are highly critical when it comes to a winter-flowering rose, and there are so many essentials that enter into a winter-forcing rose, so different from a garden rose. In the first place, it has to be vigorous; it has to be everblooming; it has to have good foliage; it has to have a good stem; it should have fragrance and it should have good petalage and good color. When you get all these in one rose you have something, and that is why you get so few really up-to-date forcing varieties.

Ophelia's Arrival.

Now, I am still acting the fool; I buy everything they offer over there. They think I am an easy mark, I guess, but that's all right; I may drop on to something as good as Ophelia. Charley Totty and I went over there to see Mr. Paul, and I said to Mr. Paul, "How many have you got of that?" "Well," he said, "I set out a number this spring. I have

BEETLE SPREADS

BEETLE QUARANTINE EXTENDED.

Insect Spreading.

Increasing spread of the Japanese beetle, a serious crop insect pest, in Pennsylvania and New Jersey has necessitated an extension of the areas under federal quarantine, the Federal Horticultural Board has announced in making public a revised notice of quarantine, effective January 1, 1922. The total area is increased from ninety to 275 square miles, two classes of quarantined areas being established, depending upon whether or not they are heavily or lightly infested. Regulations governing the shipment of plants are established for each class of territory.

Classifications.

The following townships will comprise the heavily infested area, January 1, 1922:

New Jersey—Palmyra, Cinnaminson, Delran, Riverside, Chester, Mount Laurel, Northampton, Evesham, Lumberton, Westampton, Burlington, Willingboro and Beverly, in Burlington county; city of Camden, townships of Pensauken, Delaware, Haddon and Center, and the borough of Magnolia, in Camden county.

Pennsylvania—Wards No. 45, 23, 35 and 41 of the city of Philadelphia, in Philadelphia county; townships of Bensalem and Bristol, in Bucks county.

The following townships will comprise the lightly infested areas:

New Jersey—Florence, Springfield, Easthampton, Medford and Southampton, in Burlington county; Gloucester, Voorhees, Clementon and Berlin, in Camden county; West Deptford and Deptford, in Gloucester county.

Pennsylvania—Wards No. 33 and 42 of the city of Philadelphia, in Philadelphia county; townships of Cheltenham, Abington and Moreland, in Montgomery county; townships of Southampton and Middletown, in Bucks county.

In the heavily infested area all products covered by the quarantine are to be given the strictest possible inspection before being allowed shipment to outside points. In the lightly infested area inspection and certification will be maintained of all nursery, ornamental and greenhouse stock, and soil, compost and manure other than fresh manure, as being the chief source of danger in spreading the pest to distant points.

A Major Pest.

"The possibilities of danger by the Japanese beetle," declared Dr. Charles L. Marlatt, chairman of the Federal Horticultural Board, in discussing the quarantine action, "have probably not been fully realized, but this insect undoubtedly is bound to be one of the major crop pests of the country. It is fully realized by the state and federal experts associated in the effort to control this newly imported pest that from the very nature of the insect and its habits it is impossible to prevent its natural spread of several miles yearly by any reasonable restrictions that are possible of enforcement or any reasonable expenditure of money. All that can be done, therefore, we believe, is to prevent by such quarantine measures as appear to be practicable spread by wide jumps or long-distant movement with products originating in the infested area."

The insect was introduced into the United States some ten years ago with an importation of iris roots from Japan and thus far has been found only in New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

The revised notice of quarantine, effective January 1, 1922, reads as follows:

The fact has been determined by the secretary of agriculture and notice is hereby given, that an injurious insect, the Japanese beetle, Popillia japonica Newm., new to and not heretofore widely distributed within and throughout the United States, exists in portions of the states of New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Now, therefore, I, C. W. Pugsley, acting secretary of agriculture, under authority conferred by section 8 of the Plant Quarantine act, approved August 20, 1912 (37 Stat., 315), as amended by the act of Congress approved March 4, 1917 (39 Stat., 1134, 1165), do hereby quarantine the states of New Jersey and Pennsylvania, effective as to the areas in these states now, or which may hereafter be, designated by the secretary of agriculture as infested by the Japanese beetle, and by this notice of quarantine No. 48, revised, do order that (1) farm, garden and orchard products of all kinds; (2) grain and forage crops of all kinds; (3) nursery, ornamental and greenhouse stock, and all other plants; and (4) soil, compost and manure other than fresh manure shall not be moved or allowed to be moved interstate from either of said states in manner or method or under conditions other than those prescribed in the rules and regulations supplemental hereto: Provided, That the limitation of the restrictions of this quarantine and the rules and regulations supplemental thereto to the areas in a quarantined state now, or which may hereafter be, designated by the secretary of agriculture as infested by the Japanese beetle, shall be conditioned upon the establishment and enforcement by the state of such control measures in cooperation with the United States Department of Agriculture with respect to the designated infested areas as in the judgment of the secretary of agriculture shall be deemed adequate to effect the control and prevent the spread of the Japanese beetle.

CLUBS HOLD ELECTIONS

CHICAGO CLUB ELECTS.

Old Officers Retained.

Election night brought out a somewhat larger attendance at the meeting of the Chicago Florists' Club at the Hotel Randolph, Thursday evening, December 8. Balloting on the officers nominated at the November meeting resulted in the unanimous reelection of the present officers of the club. These are: President, Joseph Kohout; vice-president, A. T. Pyfer; treasurer, A. H. Schneider; secretary, F. Lautenschlager. The contest for the office of trustee, for which one candidate was to be elected for a term of three years, resulted as follows: Hans Jepsen, 11; E. Goldenstein, 7; Albert Koehler, 6. The tellers were Herman D. Schiller, Paul Weiss and Peter Pearson. As the new member of the board of trustees, Hans Jepsen was called upon and expressed his appreciation of his fellow members' vote, promising to continue as regular an attendant at the meetings as he has been in the last year. In this connection T. E. Waters called attention to a rule of the club which provides that the office of any trustee who fails to attend three consecutive meetings shall be declared vacant, commenting on the absence of the trustees at meetings during the last year. President Kohout expressed his intention of enforcing that rule during the coming year.

The following new members were elected by the unanimous vote of those present: L. Hoeckner, wholesale florist, 30 East Randolph street; Bert Chadwick, of the E. C. Amling Co.; D. Silverstein, broker, 315 South Dearborn street; Ben Bakker, salesman, 166 North Wabash avenue, and Nicholas A. Schmitz, grower, 6007 North Paulina street.

Successful Show.

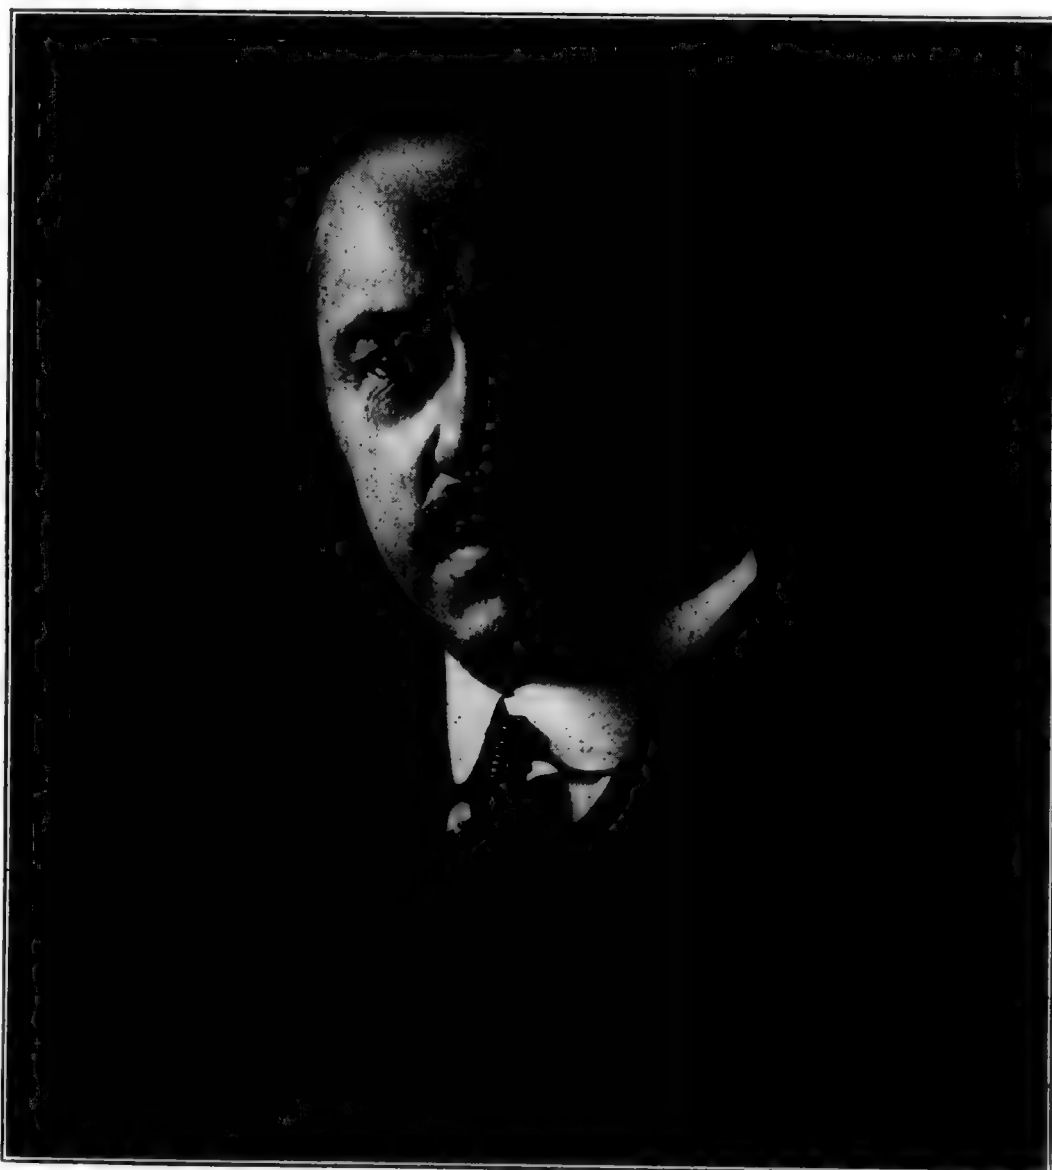

In the absence of N. J. Wieter, chairman of the flower show committee, F. Lautenschlager presented a report covering the receipts and disbursements for the flower show held in conjunction with the exhibition of the Chrysanthemum Society of America at the Auditorium hotel, November 16 and 17. Contributions from the leading Chicago houses totaled $660 and the sale of tickets for distribution by retailers brought $336, making the total receipts $996. Although an appropriation was made by the Chicago Florists' Club to cover the entertainment at the banquet held in connection with the show, all expenses connected with that feature were absorbed by the committee, and after all expenses had been defrayed and payment had been made for the show manager's services, the committee's books just balanced. The great amount of hard work done by Secretary Lautenschlager as show manager brought forth commendation by several members of the club and to express the appreciation of the organization a rising vote of thanks was tendered by those present, with much applause. Mr. Lautenschlager left a sick bed to be in attendance during the show and thereby brought on a relapse, which was so severe that he had not left his house until the day before the club meeting, to attend the meeting of the flower show committee preparatory to making its final report. The infection which resulted from a boil on his arm, aggravated by a cold, spread through his system, and for four days during his confinement he was without the use of his eyes. Mr. Lautenschlager reported feeling considerably better and anticipated returning to his office at the establishment of the Kroeschell Bros. Co. the following Monday.

A communication from W. F. Ekas, of Baltimore, led to a discussion of the advisability of forming one or more bowling teams to represent the Chicago Florists' Club. After some discussion the matter was, upon motion, referred to a committee of three to be appointed by the president.

Discussion of the club's annual novelty night, to be held in conjunction with the February meeting, led to the suggestion that a joint meeting be held of the club and the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago on the meeting night of one or the other of the organizations next February, when a large display might be brought out.

The desire for a flower show next spring has been augmented by the success of the show at the Auditorium last month and by the remarkable showing at the Uptown Chicago exposition at the Broadway Armory during the first week of November. H. D. Schiller told of the notable results of the north side show, which exceeded everyone's expectations in all ways. He stated that there had been 103,000 visitors during the five days of the show and of this number 24,000, practically one-fourth, were paid admissions, although no revenue had been anticipated from that source. Tickets had been distributed through public schools, clubs and other channels, and Mr. Schiller stated that the north side business men were so enthusiastic regarding a flower show as their drawing card at another similar exposition that some of them expressed reluctance to tell west side business men anything about that feature of the affair when an organization from that part of the city asked the north siders' advice in preparation for a similar show at a big armory on the west side. Mr. Schiller thought that a guaranty fund for a north side flower show would be speedily raised by the business men of that severe that he had not left his house until the day before the club meeting, to attend the meeting of the flower show committee preparatory to making its final report. The infection which resulted from a boil on his arm, aggravated by a cold, spread through his system, and for four days during his confinement he was without the use of his eyes. Mr. Lautenschlager reported feeling considerably better and anticipated returning to his office at the establishment of the Kroeschell Bros. Co. the following Monday.

A communication from W. F. Ekas, of Baltimore, led to a discussion of the advisability of forming one or more bowling teams to represent the Chicago Florists' Club. After some discussion the matter was, upon motion, referred to a committee of three to be appointed by the president.

Discussion of the club's annual novelty night, to be held in conjunction with the February meeting, led to the suggestion that a joint meeting be held of the club and the Commercial Flower Growers of Chicago on the meeting night of one or the other of the organizations next February, when a large display might be brought out.

The desire for a flower show next spring has been augmented by the success of the show at the Auditorium last month and by the remarkable showing at the Uptown Chicago exposition at the Broadway Armory during the first week of November. H. D. Schiller told of the notable results of the north side show, which exceeded everyone's expectations in all ways. He stated that there had been 103,000 visitors during the five days of the show and of this number 24,000, practically one-fourth, were paid admissions, although no revenue had been anticipated from that source. Tickets had been distributed through public schools, clubs and other channels, and Mr. Schiller stated that the north side business men were so enthusiastic regarding a flower show as their drawing card at another similar exposition that some of them expressed reluctance to tell west side business men anything about that feature of the affair when an organization from that part of the city asked the north siders' advice in preparation for a similar show at a big armory on the west side. Mr. Schiller thought that a guaranty fund for a north side flower show would be speedily raised by the business men of that section if plans were forthcoming for such an affair. President Kohout, A. T. Pyfer and T. E. Waters also spoke strongly in support of a flower show. Mr. Pyfer expressed the opinion that since the candy manufacturers and the jewelers were putting on strong advertising campaigns, it was necessary for florists to increase their efforts in behalf of their own products.

A communication was read from Ernest Rober, now at Sawtelle, Cal., tendering his resignation from the club, because of financial reverses and other difficulties during and since the war. His resignation was accepted.

T. E. Waters commented upon the decision of the Boston growers to throw open their wholesale markets to the public after 9 a. m. each day. Explaining the methods of wholesaling flowers in Boston, he voiced the opinion that similar action might be taken in Chicago and other wholesale centers if retailers did not make more effort to move the stock that accumulates in the wholesale houses after the morning sales were over.

The Exhibits.

The exhibition tables were well filled by a number of vases of chrysanthemums from Hans Jepsen, of Maywood, and Elmer D. Smith & Co., of Adrian, Mich., and a vase of Premier roses from the Premier Rose Gardens, Maywood. These exhibitions were judged by Herman D. Schneider, N. A. Schmitz and John Cook. They reported that the exhibit of Hans Jepsen was worthy of special mention, particularly the varieties December Queen, Seidewitz, White Seidewitz, Thanksgiving Pink and Harvard; in pompons he showed White Feather, Amaterasu, Quinola, Sunshine, Becky McLean, Mrs. Godfrey and its two sports, Mrs. Masey and Annabelle. The Japanese varieties imported by Charles H. Totty, three of which were shown by Mr. Jepsen, were interesting, though more suited to private greenhouses than to commercial use. Mr. Jepsen also showed a vase of variegated stevia, which was commended by the judges as exceedingly well grown. The vases from E. D. Smith & Co. included December Beauty, Sunshine, Adrian's Pride and two pompons, Vivian Martin and Golden Lida Thomas; these the judges reported as being worthy of special mention and exceedingly well grown. The vase of Premier from the Premier Rose Gardens, which contained large flowers on long, stiff stems and showed especially good culture, in the opinion of the judges, was given special mention also. It was suggested that the exhibitions be sent to the Speedway hospital, and Paul Weiss and Hans Jepsen volunteered to deliver them.

Treasurer A. H. Schneider reported a balance of $840.05 in the club's treasury.

The meeting was marked by an enjoyable repast, which included refreshment the more enjoyed because of its rarity in these days.

KENTUCKIANS MEET.

Banquet and Election.

No doubt, the best-attended banquet the Society of Kentucky Florists ever enjoyed was held at the Watterson hotel, Louisville, December 7. Close to 100 live-wire members were on hand. The banquet was served in one of the large parlors and, through the kindness of several of the growers and retailers, the table was elaborately decorated. Three large baskets were placed on the long table, with bronze and red chrysanthemums and stevia. On the officers' table a beautiful basket of Ophelia roses stood. Through the kindness of the F. Walker Co., at each place there was a napkin ring made of red frieze and a spray of holly. The table was, indeed, a sight and gave one the holiday spirit. A wonderful turkey dinner was served, which was enjoyed by all.

At 8:30 p. m. President Pleiss called the meeting to order. The society regretted the absence of the able secretary, Joseph Able. Mr. Able's child was taken ill suddenly and it was impossible for him to attend. August Baumer was appointed secretary pro tem, and he read the minutes of the last meeting, which were approved. The treasurer then gave his report, which also met approval. After this was held the election of officers for the year 1922. They are: President, M. A. Reimers; vice-president, Lewis Pleiss; recording secretary, Joseph Able; financial secretary, August Baumer; treasurer, Louis Kirch; sergeant-at-arms, J. S. Miller, and trustee, Anders Rasmussen.

J. S. Miller was toastmaster and called on August Baumer to get his opinion of the action of Congress in trying to discontinue special delivery on second-class mail. Mr. Baumer pointed out where this would be a great hindrance to the out-of-town business. In his opinion this was one of the biggest questions that ever came up in the florists' business. Mr. Baumer, being opposite the post office, has had several opportunities to get "behind the scenes," and he mentioned the fact that it was absolutely necessary that you put on your package a special delivery stamp. Otherwise, Mr. Baumer went on, there is no telling when your box will leave the post office.

H. G. Walker also gave a short address on the importance of the said bill and, although at the present time he is not in the retail business, he appreciates the facts, as at one time he conducted the firm of F. Walker & Co. and he knows how the florist of today depends on the parcel post.

It is the utmost desire of the new officers to work out a plan of coöperation in the trade. Heretofore, it seems that the old-fashioned way of doing business was the policy of the florists and it is expected now that the newly elected officers will try to bring the men closer and to stimulate business. Coöperative advertising will be one of the first things to discuss. It is also expected that a new way of financing the society will be tried.

Entertainment.

Thanks to Mrs. Iring, the entertainment committee, of which she is chairman, afforded a novelty in the way of entertaining. Through the kindness of the Baldwin Piano Co., an Edison talking machine was placed in the banquet hall and the members enjoyed music while they ate. After the meeting was adjourned, a representative of the above firm, Mr. McDonald, conducted an interesting experiment. He played what he called "mood music" and the object of the experiment was to see the effect of music on the particular mood which you happened to be in.

Milton A. Reimers.

(President-elect of the Society of Kentucky Florists.)

Mrs. Iring had another game which was amusing. At each member's place there was a small slip of paper on which each one was to write a question and August Baumer was to attempt to answer it. Some of the questions, however, were too much for him, but he did well, considering what these questions were.

After the meeting was adjourned, the members were invited to stay, if it was their wish, and hear some of the records that Mr. McDonald had brought with him. Most of the members took advantage of this and enjoyed it much indeed.

Everyone went home promising to attend the next meeting and to bring a new member with him. At this rate there ought to be almost 200 in attendance at the next banquet. E. G. R.

NEW YORK CLUB ELECTS.

Well Attended Meeting.

The annual election of the New York Florists' Club was held in the club's quarters in the Engineering Societies' building, Monday evening, December 12. The assembly numbered about 200 members. President Hendrickson presided, and regular business was given an impetus, in order to allow plenty of time for the election, which embodied spirited competition for the various offices, with the exception of those of secretary and treasurer, in which the club has realized it is well served by the present incumbents, and for which no nominations were made.

After the reading of the minutes of the previous meeting, Paul Rigo, chairman of the committee on transportation to the Kansas City convention of the S. A. F., presented an itinerary of travel within a circle prescribed by Kansas City as the limit, and another itinerary which had Yellowstone park as its objective. On motion of A. L. Miller, the plan for the smaller itinerary was accepted and the committee was authorized to proceed in the work of organization of a party within the prescribed limits.

A. T. De La Mare presented a report as chairman of the good of the club committee, recommending certain innovations to be worked out, which, on motion of Secretary Young, was ordered received and the recommendations adopted. Mr. De La Mare also, as chairman of the committee on revision of the club's by-laws, presented a report, which was ordered laid over for discussion at a subsequent meeting.

On motion of C. B. Weathered, these committees were given a hearty vote of thanks, the mover seeing himself free to comment on the fact that seldom was committee work better presented than in these cases, where typewritten formulæ were presented to the members for consideration.

Arthur Herrington, for the flower show committee, reported progress. In spite of the handicap, he said, due to the uncertainty of the Grand Central Palace being available for next spring's show, the certainty of it found the committee in no way unprepared, and a better show than its predecessors was insured. The big group feature, he said, was more than assured, and housing difficulties were now the problem.

Roman J. Irwin.

(President-elect of the New York Florists' Club.)

New Members.

The following were elected to membership in the club: John N. May, Jr., Summit, N. J.; Warren Mason, Cromwell, Conn.; Carter Childs, Flowerfield, L. I.; Axel Blomberg, Cromwell, Conn. Mr. Childs, being present, was formally introduced to the club.

The following were nominated for membership: Alexis T. Polchse, 231 Seventy-third street, Brooklyn; Albert A. Schanzer, 144 West Ninth street, New York; Thomas Federico, 53 West Twenty-sixth street, New York; Andrew Sauter, 55 West Twenty-sixth street, New York.

Secretary Young moved, and his motion was carried, that the club make the usual application for representation on the S. A. F. executive board, the incoming president being the representative.

An S. A. F. communication seeking the direction of the club in the matter of the appointment of a state vice-president for the district of eastern New York, was acted upon by a motion of C. H. Totty, which recommended that the retiring president, I. S. Hendrickson, be the club's choice for the office.

Philip F. Kessler had a grievance to air; he believed that the budget appropriation for the refectory on club nights was insufficient, and the matter, meeting the views of the gathering, was referred to the proper quarter.

Peter Gerlaid, chairman of the house and entertainment committee, asked for instructions as to arrangements for a ladies' night, and he was given authority to arrange such a function for the January meeting.

A communication from W. F. Ekas, Baltimore, in regard to a proposal to inaugurate an inter-city bowling league, with matches to culminate at the Kansas City convention of the S. A. F., was referred to a special committee with instructions to report later.

A communication from the commissioner of the Salvation Army asking for support in its efforts to relieve distress during the Christmas season was warmly received, and it was decided that contributions be deposited at time of balloting for officers, the result being that $130 was subscribed.

New Officers.

Election of officers was next proceeded with. On motion, the president appointed Joseph A. Manda as judge of elections, with Henry Weston and T. A. Weston tellers. The result was as follows: President, Roman J. Irwin; vice-president, Anton Schultheis, Jr.; secretary, John Young, reelected; treasurer, William C. Rickards, Jr., reelected; trustees, C. W. Knight, E. A. Manda and L. E. Dupuy.

Exhibits.

James Fraser, Westbury, L. I., N. Y., showed a vase of Plumbago coccinea, for which he was awarded a cultural certificate.

Marius Matheron, Baldwin, N. Y., showed vases of Carnations Thomas C. Joy and a pink seedling, for which he was given a vote of thanks.

A vote of thanks was awarded to the C. H. Totty Co., Madison, N. J., for vases of Japanese chrysanthemums, Tackibara and Benton. George Brenkert, Washington Park Floral Co., Denver, Col., was awarded a vote of thanks for a vase of Carnation Denver, a sport of Mrs. C. W. Ward, which arrived in excellent condition after a 4-day journey. J. H. P.

SECRETARY'S OFFICE: 43 WEST EIGHTEENTH STREET, NEW YORK

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Secretary Young Reports.

With the close of the calendar year at hand, work in the administration offices of the society is active. Secretary Young made a special trip to Scranton, Pa., last week, and was the guest of honor December 6 at a banquet given by the Scranton Florists' Club. During the evening he made a lengthy address, in the course of which he detailed the work and policies of the society, and emphasized the advantages derived through membership. As a result about twenty new members were secured, all qualifying at the time. There were promises of additional memberships, so that the Scranton district is now pretty well lined up as far as the society is concerned. The florists are to be congratulated upon having a live and active organization in their community. Miss Gertrude Schultheis, the treasurer of the club, rendered excellent service, and was instrumental in gathering in $200 in subscriptions to the national publicity campaign, the same being for one year or aggregating $800 for the four years of the campaign beginning January 1. Thanks are also due to T. J. Nolan, who met the secretary on his arrival, and was his guide on a trip taking in most of the florists' establishments of the city; to Secretary G. R. Clark, for various courtesies extended by him, and to President Edgar Louis Keuling, who showed himself to be thoroughly in harmony with the secretary's mission.

Yearbook Coming.

The attention of members in arrears for dues is called to the fact that in a short time the yearbook of the society authorized at the Cleveland convention will be issued and will contain a directory of the membership. As none but members in good standing will be listed in this valuable directory, it is important that every member be cleared of his dues for the year, and it is hoped that this matter will be given immediate attention by those interested.

Letters have been sent out to all the florists' organizations in the country urging them to name candidates for appointment as state vice-presidents of the society. This was done at the suggestion of President-elect S. S. Pennock, who in the last week or two has had lengthy conferences with the secretary in New York as to the society's work in the coming year. The appointment of proper state representatives is considered of vast importance and it is hoped that the appointees will be members who are in complete accord with the society's aims and policies, and will be prepared to give service to the society to the fullest extent of their ability.

Other letters have been sent to the various trade and horticultural organizations, reminding them that if they can qualify for representation on the executive board of the society, in accordance with the by-laws governing such affiliation, they should have their applications in the secretary's hands without delay, in order that announcement of appointments can be made January 1, with all other appointments provided for under the by-laws.

National Publicity Campaign.

A good augmentation of the fund for the 1922 campaign is to be reported, most of which comes from those members who are making personal canvasses among the trade of their communities, under the subscription book plan.

The 1921 fund now amounts to $32,370.66. If all who are in arrears on their pledges would promptly complete their payments, the total amount would approach more closely the figures of the last two or three years. The publicity committee hopes that delinquents will take this statement as a reminder that their checks would be greatly appreciated at this time, and would help materially in the publicity work.

Fifth National Flower Show.

About fifty exhibitors have made space reservations in the trade section of the big show, to open in Cleveland, March 25. Some prospective exhibitors appear to be in doubt as to the charges made for this space; therefore it may again be mentioned that a flat rate of $1.75 per square foot covers the whole expense of rental, and includes signs, a background artistically uniform with the setting of the show, and booth construction, all in accordance with the plans of the committee to insure a harmonious effect, instead of the sadly inharmonious arrangements noticed at previous shows. It should be pointed out, too, that this flat rate is much less than what is usually charged at exhibitions of this character, in other lines of trade, and really amounts to no more than the expense attaching to such details hitherto, when they were borne by exhibitors on their own account. The secretary still has on hand a good supply of floor plans covering the trade section, and will be pleased to forward plans to anyone interested.

Additional exhibitors not before reported are as follows:

F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y.
S. S. Pennock Co., Philadelphia.
Quality Brands Co., Cleveland, O.
M. Rice Co., Philadelphia, Pa.
Richmond Cedar Works, Richmond, Va.

ARMACOST ADVANCES.

Cyclamen Time.

To keep anything like abreast of the improvements constantly being made at the great place of Walter Armacost & Co., at Sawtelle, Cal., one would have to visit the firm frequently. Calling there the early part of December, the writer found the cyclamens much reduced in number by recent shipments, but still a great many thousands ready to ship, while the quality in all cases leaves nothing to be desired.

Naturally the most attractive are the large specimens in 8-inch, 9-inch and 10-inch pots. The great beauty and perfect cultural skill shown in these plants baffle descriptions. They could not be improved upon. In the first place, all the stock is grown cool under lath shade in the open air. It is brought into the greenhouses to finish and the immense, solid foliage, the myriads of flowers and the perfect contour of the plants must be seen to be realized. Descriptions fail to convince and even photographs do not carry the story, for the wonderful variety in color of the flowers, the delicately beautiful leaf markings and the flower buds absolutely jostling each other for place under the foliage cannot be shown. Between 2,000 and 3,000 of these big beauties were grown this year out of 115,000 of all sizes.

System in Handling.

It must not be thought that all the care is given the big fellows. All the way down the line, through 6-inch, 5-inch and 4-inch pots, the same ideal is aimed at. By liberal spacing the individual plants do the utmost possible in the size of pot they occupy, while the open-air treatment gives stamina and vigor to the foliage and stiffness to the stems, so that every flower stands erect; every leaf is perfect. It is no wonder that buyers receiving their first shipments of such stock immediately wire duplicating and in many cases doubling or tripling their orders.

A word as to handling: Motor trucks are kept going, loaded full, between the greenhouses and packing sheds. At the sheds the packing team takes hold and each does his part in tying, wrapping, checking and packing, each man a cog in the well oiled machine. Close by the large packing shed the packing cases are made up and these are standardized, so that there is a crate for every plant order. Every order received by 4 p. m. is shipped that day; everything after that time goes out the next morning. There are considerably over 100 men employed in the place and at rush times the packing staff can be so quickly and easily increased that the above perfect service to customers is made possible. And every afternoon, after the shipping stock has been selected from the greenhouses and packed, back come the motor trucks and fill up again with plants from the outside, so that before night-fall the houses are again filled.

"Blooding" the Roses.

As bearing on this perfect system, which is carried out in all departments, the liquid manuring may be mentioned; formerly it took five men ten days to apply blood fertilizer to the whole of the rose benches under glass. Now the blood meal is worked up in the big manure tank for a week and in four hours the entire place is "blooded" through the hose. No time is spent, as a matter of fact, for the benches would have to be watered anyway. A water agitator consisting of perforated pipes, through which the water is forced at high pressure, keeps the mixture stirred up and insures a uniform strength. Mr. Armacost has a scheme back of his head by which all spraying will be done the same way, but the details are not as yet worked out; so of this "more anon."

Improvements in Rose Houses.

Speaking of the rose houses, there are now in the new section sixteen houses, each 36x300, or approximately 300x600 feet, all under one roof. Nine of these were finished this fall and all are of the most up-to-date pipe-frame construction. So rigid are the houses that even in the highest winds there is not a quiver in them, while every possible improvement in detail has been carried out. For instance, the steam mains are carried on rollers from each end to a loop in the center of the house, where an expansion of about eight inches each way is taken care of. Condensation is taken care of by frequent drop traps, which carry it by gravity back to the boilers. Every section man has a locker in his section for boots, aprons, tools or whatever he wishes to keep there, and in every gutter a pipe is taken up and a valve fitted, so that the hose can be attached for washing the roof glass.

In this new section the varieties most grown are Russell, Premier, Milady, Hadley, Hoosier Beauty, Columbia, Crusader, Golden Ophelia, Pilgrim and a few benches of Cecile Brunner and American Beauty. The plants are in perfect health all through, while the crop now being allowed to develop for the Christmas trade is magnificent. Not only the roses, but everything else in this place is in first-class order. Mr. Armacost sprung a surprise when he said that at least two-thirds of the rose crop grown here is taken by retailers in Los Angeles and vicinity, only one-third or thereabouts being shipped away. Incidentally, this shows the really marvelous growth of the flower business in the Angel city and towns adjacent.

H. R. R.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

A slight improvement is noted in the cut flower market, due not so much to an increased demand as to a shortening supply. Chrysanthemums still are arriving heavily, chiefly of the varieties Bonnaffon, Seidewitz and Jones, and are unusually plentiful for the season. These, with a good crop of pompons, extend the season far longer than is good for other flowers more or less staple. At best, the buying is listless and is a guide to the requirements of the public, which retailers say are in small bounds. A lull is always looked for in the weeks of December preceding the holidays, and a round of the department stores shows clearly where the public cash is going.

The question of the Christmas supply is just now engaging attention, and retailers are trying to feel out Christmas price propositions. One thing is on the mind of everyone, the rose situation, and the bolstering the market got last Christmas, when roses soared to the highest imaginable point, only to leave in the trail a vast quantity of unsold stock to dominate the market at sacrifice prices for a few days; this condition has little promise of duplication this season.

The rose supply is not large, but ample for the demand, which is not at all active. American Beauty is in liberal supply and moves fairly well at last quotations. The supply of hybrid teas is good, but there is sufficient demand for them to strengthen prices and in some cases advance them.

The supply of carnations is not large, and if growers are to be believed, it is not going to be generous for Christmas. The quality is nothing to boast about; stems are shorter than might be expected at this season.

The supply of cattleyas has increased materially, but with a demand not increased in proportion the price range has gone down. Oncidiums are scarce, and cypripediums rather in oversupply.

The supply of lilies is smaller and the price range has gone to $25 to $30 per hundred flowers. Lily of the valley in supply is only regulated by the cut that growers are inclined to send in, and their best estimate precludes a better price than $6 for top being obtained. There seems to be little disposition to feed up retailers with cheap valley.

There is a good supply of miscellaneous flowers, with pansies, wallflowers, cornflowers, daisies, delphiniums and calendulas, sweet peas, stevia, Paper White and Soleil d'Or narcissi, and a few Roman hyacinths are prominent in the assembly.

Various Notes.

John A. Foley, who for many years has conducted an express business with headquarters on West Twenty-eighth street, has opened a store on Springdale avenue, West Orange, N. J., as a retail florist.

John Thielmann, who for many years was in the retail business in Brooklyn, and who some time ago moved to Los Angeles, died at his home in that city December 7. See obituary notice in another column.

The Narrows Nursery Co., of Marine avenue and Orchard street, Brooklyn, filed a petition in bankruptcy last week, with liabilities of $8,715 and assets of $2,700.

The sympathy of the trade is extended to David Faulkner, the rose grower of Chatham, N. J., whose wife died suddenly, December 9, of heart trouble. The funeral was held December 11, from the home on Hillside avenue, Chatham, N. J.

C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., was in attendance at a meeting of the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, December 6.

Visitors last week were E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind., and S. S. Pennock, Philadelphia. John Donaldson, of Patchogue, L. I., was around the markets December 9, shaking hands with his old friends.

A meeting of the flower show committee of the New York Florists' Club was held December 12 at the secretary's office, when much detail business was accomplished.

Charles L. Stanley, retail florist of Plainfield, N. J., has disposed of his retail store to J. J. Jacobs, who will continue the business under the name of the Stanley Flower Shop.

The New York Wholesale Florists' Protective Association held its annual dinner December 10 at Cavanagh's restaurant, West Twenty-third street. Frank H. Traendly was toastmaster, and a pleasant evening was spent. E. G. Hill, Richmond, Ind., and C. H. Totty, Madison, N. J., were guests. J. H. P.

Eugene Dailedouze is resting at Hotel Chalfonte, Atlantic City, N. J.

James S. Brown is no longer with the American Greenhouse Mfg. Co. Mr. Andrews, who came here from the head office at Chicago, has taken charge of the New York office.

CHRYSANTHEMUM SOCIETY.

Examining Committees' Reports.

The committees appointed by the Chrysanthemum Society of America to examine new varieties of chrysanthemums have submitted reports of the season in those that follow:

At Cincinnati, O., November 26, Elizabeth Richter, white, anemone, submitted by W. F. Richter, Cullman, Ala., scored as follows: Color, 36; form, 17; substance, 17; stem and foliage, 16; total, 86.

At Cincinnati, O., November 26, Clare, white, pompon, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows: Color, 34; form, 18; stem and foliage, 19; fullness, 17; total, 88.

At Cincinnati, O., November 26, Adrian's Pride, yellow, reflexed Japanese, submitted by Elmer D. Smith & Co., Adrian, Mich., scored as follows on the exhibition scale: Color, 18; form, 14; fullness, 10; stem, 13; foliage, 14; substance, 14; size, 9; total, 92.

SIDE BRANCHES OF STOCKS.

In growing stocks is it advisable to remove the side branches? My stocks are branching a great deal and I am at a loss as to what it is best to do.

S. M.—Kan.

Do not rub off the side branches; they will all flower. This is especially true of the giant ten weeks' stocks. C. W.

BUSINESS EMBARRASMENTS.

Baltimore, Md.—In the bankruptcy case of J. Bolgiano & Son, Willis E. Myers, referee, filed, December 7, 1921, in the district court at Baltimore, Md., an account showing final distribution to the creditors who had filed their claims. The dividend is at the rate of 18.1375 per cent on claims of general creditors filed and allowed, and payment of said dividend will be made by William Ingle, Waldo Newcomer and Albert D. Graham, trustees, after December 19, unless exceptions thereto are filed on or before that date.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—The Narrows Nursery Co., Marine avenue and Orchard street, filed a petition in bankruptcy last week. The liabilities of the firm totaled $8,715 and the assets were found to be $2,700.

Kansas City, Mo.—Creditors of the Pinehurst Floral Co. have received letters explaining the financial condition of the company, in order to ascertain the attitude of each. Upon the resignation of P. A. Manson as general manager of the company and the succession of R. L. Isherwood to his place, the latter found it necessary to place a labor lien against the company for approximately $7,000. Since there are $53,000 in bonds outstanding, secured by first mortgage deed of trust, $6,000 of which were due November 1, it is problematical, the secretary of the company states, whether creditors would receive anything unless a plan of refinancing the company were worked out, to enable it to continue.

OBITUARY

F. L. Budlong.

F. L. Budlong, senior member of the Budlong Rose Co., New England's largest commercial rose establishment, but not actively identified with the business at the time of his death, died suddenly at Fort Myers, Fla., December 6.

Mr. Budlong was born at Cranston, R. I., August 31, 1851, the son of the late James and Eunice A. Budlong. In 1873 he became interested in his father's business and many of its successful features originated with him.

Mr. Budlong's range, at Auburn, R. I., covers over 300,000 feet of glass, devoted to rose culture, and, in addition, many hundreds of acres are devoted to vegetable culture. Until a few years ago he maintained an immense cucumber pickle industry, but had to abandon it on account of disease becoming rife in this crop, and substituted others. His rose crops were shipped, many to New York and Boston, a smaller lot being sold to Providence. The deceased was a man of great energy and ambition and, thanks to his untiring work, the establishment at Auburn, R. I., became one of the most noted in America. His sons have for some time assumed the active management of the business. Funeral services were held at 594 Pontiac avenue, Auburn, his late home, December 11, and were largely attended, a great number of commercial growers being present. He is survived by his wife, two sons, one daughter, two grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

Everett E. Bruggerhoff.

Everett E. Bruggerhoff, head of the recently defunct seed firm of J. M. Thorburn & Co., New York, died suddenly during the night of December 6. He was in his usual good health on the day previous, and was going about his duties. He was much concerned in the approaching nuptials of his daughter, Lucy, and was anticipating the event, which was to be fulfilled in a few days. Mr. Bruggerhoff was about 61 years of age and spent part of his earlier years with the well known French firm of Vilmorin-Andrieux & Co., Paris. Returning to this country, he engaged in the export commission business, for some time being connected with the firm of Andreas & Co., Broad street, New York. Subsequently he became connected with the Thorburn firm, under his late father, who was president. The funeral was held December 9, with services at the St. James Episcopal church, Madison avenue and Seventy-first street. He is survived by a widow and three daughters.

John Martin Thielmann.

John Martin Thielmann, an old-time Brooklyn florist, died in Los Angeles, Cal., December 6, at the age of 64 years. He had been in business for about forty years, fifteen years on Flushing avenue and subsequently at 893 Broadway. A year or two ago he gave up business and went to Los Angeles, making the trip by motor car. He was born in Chicago, moving to Brooklyn at the age of 14, and eventually engaging in the florists' business. He is survived by a son, Frederick, one sister and one brother. His wife died suddenly about three years ago. The remains were taken to Brooklyn for burial in Evergreen cemetery, where the remains of his wife were interred, and the funeral was a Masonic one.

William K. Wood.

William K. Wood, at one time prominent in Boston's trade and horticultural circles, died at Franklin, Mass., December 7. For some years he and his brother, Elijah, operated a commercial establishment in West Newton, Mass., and specialized in chrysanthemums, the old and now almost neglected incurved types being their special favorites, and W. K. Wood was a regular visitor at the flower markets, flower shows and horticultural lectures.

The deceased was a gifted penman and wrote many excellent and interesting articles for the trade papers and daily newspapers. For some years he had dropped out of the florists' business and at the time of his decease was operating a poultry farm at Franklin successfully.

Mr. Wood had been a life member of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society since 1870. For a considerable number of years he was active in the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, acting as secretary in 1899 and 1900, when William H. Elliott was president. Mr. Wood leaves a brother, Harvey, in West Newton, and one sister. Another brother, Elijah, predeceased him by a number of years. While not known to a good many of the present generation of growers, he will be held in kind remembrance by many who were associated with him some years ago.

W. N. C.

Reuben M. Morse.

Reuben Mason Morse, a well known mason and gardener, died December 7, at his home, at Middletown, R. I., at the age of 74. About a year ago he suffered a shock, from which he had so far recovered as to be outdoors in a wheel chair many times last summer, but his strength steadily failed, and since the first of September he had been confined to his bed.

Mr. Morse belonged to an old New England family, being a direct descendant of Anthony Morse, who came from England and settled at Newburyport, Mass., in 1639. He was one of thirteen children of Edward Warren and Caroline (Ferry) Morse, of Acushnet Station, New Bedford, Mass., where he was born August 28, 1848. At an early age he learned the mason's trade, but during the late 70's he gave up that employment to work for the late Samuel Powel, as gardener on his estate on Perry street. In 1888 he purchased a farm at Middletown, where he had since lived and had devoted himself to growing flowers.

Mr. Morse had six children, four of whom, with his widow, survive. There are also two grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. Two sisters and one brother also survive.

FUNERAL OF M. A. PATTEN.

Funeral services for the late M. A. Patten, who died at his home in Lakeland, Fla., as reported in last week's Review, were held at Tewksbury, Mass., the home of the deceased for many years, and were largely attended. Many of his old florist confreres came a considerable distance to pay a last tribute of esteem to one who was always looked up to, honored and respected by his neighbors, business associates and all who came in contact with him.

Among those in attendance were W. D. Howard, president of the American Carnation Society; Ex-presidents William Nicholson, Peter Fisher and S. J. Goddard; William Sim, James Wheeler, E. Allan Peirce, Peter M. Miller, A. P. Dewar, Frank Murray, Edward Winkler, Nelson Fisher, J. C. Gibbs, J. J. McManmon, Gustave Thomen, W. R. Nicholson, T. F. Galvin, Jr., George E. Buxton, William Miller, Mrs. J. F. Flood, John Barr, E. J. Rogean, W. N. Craig, George H. Noyes, Mrs. C. S. Strout, Mrs. Peter Fisher and many others. Illness prevented Ex-president C. S. Strout from attending.

There were representatives from the American Carnation Society, the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston, the Horticultural Club, the Massachusetts Horticultural Society, the Masonic lodge, Knights of Pythias, the Congregational church and other bodies with which Mr. Patten was identified more or less actively during his lifetime. Miss Dickson, for a number of years pastor in Tewksbury of the church attended by the deceased, officiated at the services both at the home and at the grave and spoke most feelingly and sympathetically of the man who was truly one of nature's noblemen.

There was a wonderful offering of floral tributes from relatives, friends and organizations, and it seemed especially fitting that carnations, always Mr. Patten's specialty, should have been so prominent. Sprays of the new variety, Natalie, named in honor of Mr. Patten's granddaughter, covered the casket, and the sides of the grave, in Lowell cemetery, were decorated with hemlock and Morning Glow carnations.

The deceased gentleman was 74 years of age December 4, and his death occurred the following day. Mrs. Patten left for Lakeland, Fla., December 11, accompanied by her son, Wilbur, for some time in the government service in Florida. Harold J. Patten, the younger son, operates the Tewksbury greenhouses and well maintains the prestige of his lamented father.

BAGATELLE TRIALS.

As in previous years, a trial of new roses will take place in the park at Bagatelle, Paris, in 1922 and 1923. The plants, as far as possible, should have been grown in pots, and several specimens, five at least, must be sent before April 30. The roses will be planted on arrival and will remain until October, 1923, so that the jury may study their habit and flowers during two seasons. Full information may be obtained from the Conservateur des Promenades, 4, Route du Champ d'Entrainement, Neuilly (Seine), France.

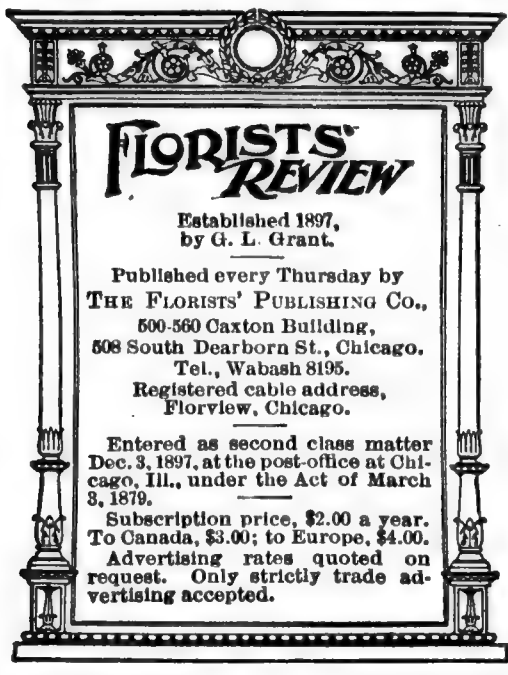

AMERICAN CARNATION SOCIETY.

Plant Registration.

The following new carnation has been offered for registration:

Valentine; parentage, Scarlet Glow x May Day; color, dark pink; size, three to three and one-half inches; good grower; early and continuous bloomer; long, wiry stems; easy rooter; good keeper and shipper; registered by John Steidle, Clayton, Mo.

A. F. J. Baur, Sec'y.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

SHIPMENTS of window glass are coming from abroad.

A HALT has come in falling prices and there will be rises in some ere long.

NEVER was the trade so well supplied with stock to sell as at this Christmas. What is needed now is lots of push to move it.

IMPERFECT postal service and a none too good transportation situation make it more than ever desirable that orders for Christmas supplies be placed early.

PREPARE for the $5 customer this Christmas. There will be many of his ilk and if florists can give good value for the money, holiday business will be good.

GIVE yourself a Christmas present in the shape of a 4-year pledge to the national publicity campaign. Send it to Secretary Young, 43 West Eighteenth street, New York.

COUNTRY florists transferring holiday orders to retailers in the larger cities should remember that $5 does not buy as much in the big centers as it does in the small towns, especially at this season.

DON'T let the Christmas rush cause neglect of the important matter of collections. You will need the money to pay your bills and cash is not easy to extract in the month after the holidays.

A. JABLONSKY, who is known for his success growing carnations for the St. Louis market, says growers cause themselves, and others, more trouble by propagating from wild growth stock than by any other error they commit.

DON'T let the public get the idea flowers will be scarce and high-priced this Christmas; if it does, buyers will stay away from our stores. Stock will be plentiful and moderate in price—tell it to your salesman, your customers and your friends.

THE comparatively few persons—out of 110,000,000—who are out of work affect our sales not so much as the tightening of the purse strings by those who have money, but fear to spend it lest they need it badly later. When once conditions dispel that fear, sales will be much easier.

THE time may not be far distant when no man will dare ship stock he would not be willing to receive if he were buying.

RICHARD VINCENT, JR., whom everybody knows, will celebrate his seventy-eighth birthday anniversary December 16.

PRICES are low on the materials that go into greenhouses and those who have been considering additions of glass area would be wise in placing their orders now.

IT is well to remember that parcel post matter does not move with the celerity of first-class mail. Sometimes it takes a week for a parcel to reach The Review from New York or Philadelphia.

JOHN YOUNG, the trade's greatest secretary, will be 53 years of age Saturday, December 17. He has been secretary of the New York Florists' Club continuously since 1890, and of the S. A. F. from 1911.

Now it is the buyers' market where a year or two ago it was the sellers'. The change will force a change of tactics on the part of those who at the time of high demand were inconsiderate of customers' interests.

RAILWAY wage cuts should be followed by reductions in freight and express rates. Agricultural interests have already obtained action on the former. Representatives of the florists, seedsmen and nurserymen should be active in behalf of these trades' interests.

THE resumption, now taking place, of imports of canaries from Germany will be of interest to those florists who carried this side line before the war. Not a few found song birds a profitable adjunct in the flower store, but hostilities restricted sales of them, since the chief supply was from abroad.

Is there a concerted movement in the furniture trade to pervert our slogan? Last week's Review told of an instance at Evansville, Ind. The Stokes Floral Co. sends a clipping from a Springfield, Mo., paper containing the headline of a local store's advertisement, "Say It with Furniture—It Doesn't Wither!" And the Monticello Floral Co. sends a clipping from a Monticello, Ind., paper in which a furniture store advertises, "Say It with Furniture—Flowers Fade." Were not such captions ridiculous, they would rouse this trade's ire.

RENTING A GREENHOUSE.

Would the following proposition of renting a greenhouse for a period of one year be fair to both owner and renter: Seven per cent on the capital invested in the greenhouse, equipment and ground for planting, the renter to buy the stock at wholesale prices when taking possession. Any information and advice from those having experience along this line will be appreciated. C. B.

WE NEED THE BEST SERVICE.

Postmaster General Hays is unquestionably correct in his position that the Postoffice department should not be operated at a loss to be met out of general taxation. Every canon of good business and good government requires that the cost of transportation and delivery of mails be paid for by the users of the postal service. If in order to remove the now habitual deficit it is necessary to choose, as Mr. Hays implies if he does not specifically state, between reduced service or more postage, then again that official is on good ground when he advocates the latter of the alternatives. Florists are willing to pay, for instance, for parcel post special delivery service rather than go without it.

But criticism of the postoffice department is directed against the quality of the service rendered as well as the quantity. For some time past, in fact ever since the war—if war it was that did it—registered its effect upon the Postoffice department, as it did upon almost everything else, the service has been far from satisfactory. To a good many it has seemed that of late it has been, if anything, worse than formerly.

It had been the hope of florists in particular that improved business methods within the department might bring better service and at least a minimum deficit without increased postage rates or restriction of services. They are, indeed, not yet convinced that such an achievement is beyond the bounds of reasonable feasibility. But if such it is, then they would rather pay for the special service they need than forego it. It is in better service, not economy and less service, that the trade is especially interested. It desires such service without greater costs if that is possible—but it wants the service.

WHY LESS MONEY IS SPENT.

Some explanation why not so much money is available for the purchase of flowers and other commodities may be found in the fact that a substantial decline in the volume of money in circulation was announced last week by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon. The total circulation December 1 was $5,676,710,653, as compared with $5,731,330,598 November 1 and $6,363,498,999 December 1 last year.

Circulation of money per capita, based on an estimated population of 108,779,000 persons, dropped to $52.19 December 1, as compared with $52.75 November 1 and $59.41 December 1 of last year.

YOUR BRANCH IN EVERY TOWN.

Did it ever occur to you that with an advertisement in The Review you have a salesman in practically every town in the United States? This is the way an advertiser puts it:

That was certainly quick work. Having an ad in The Review is like having a salesman in every town, and it sure sells the stock.—W. E. Robinson & Sons, St. Louis, Mo., December 3, 1921.

If you hear a man complain of the cost of advertising, you can be pretty certain he spends a good bit of money elsewhere than in The Review.

BRIEF ANSWERS.

Subscriber, Tex.—Queries must be signed with your name to receive attention.

J. B. T., Ill.—Cyclamen is properly pronounced with a short "y," as if the first syllable were "sick."

E. H. P., Ind.—Boxwood, or Buxus sempervirens. Consult advertisements of wholesalers in The Review. Many of them offer it.

V. S., Ind.—The small bulb is that of Fritillaria imperialis, popularly known as the crown imperial, a well known hardy garden plant. The fetid odor of the bulbs is distasteful to many people.

HARTFORD, CONN.The Market.

Business is quiet here, but all the florists appreciate a condition of this sort at this time, as it gives them leeway to prepare for the big Christmas trade. Several large truckloads of cyclamens and other plants have been ordered from growers in Boston and other local points, and will arrive here a week hence. Everything points to a big business here. At a meeting at the Bond hotel recently, all the prominent florists and growers agreed unanimously to carry advertisements in all the daily and Sunday papers concerning plants and their usefulness, bringing good cheer, etc., into the hearts of everyone, carrying this advertising jointly. Good cooperation among growers and retailers is noted here.

Chrysanthemum Named.

At a moose game dinner, given by Wallace R. Pierson at Cromwell, Conn., December 3, the new chrysanthemum, Governor Lake, was christened.

This new mum was developed at the establishment of A. N. Pierson, Inc. The flower is distinctive for its rich bronze color and form of blossom. It is a pompon and a quality that also makes it remarkable is the lateness of the season in which it blooms. It is the latest of any of the good varieties and its keeping qualities are superior to any.

A. N. Pierson has developed fifty new varieties of chrysanthemums this year, naming four. As the new varieties show their merit, more will be named next year.

It is an immense undertaking and at Cromwell upwards of 10,000 seedlings of the pompon varieties alone are being grown.

The chrysanthemum season at the range of A. N. Pierson, Inc., is at an end. The last cutting other than of the pompon, Governor Lake, was of the December Beauty variety. This flower is distinctive because of the size of its blooms, some of which are exceptional in their diameter. The stems are likewise unusual in length and strong. A. G. Bloomberg has charge of the chrysanthemums here. Governor Lake was the guest of honor at the dinner and responded appropriately to Wallace Pierson's witty stories.

Show Committee Meets.

Wallace R. Pierson, chairman of all of the committees of the carnation and rose show, called a meeting at the Hotel Bond December 6. All the members of the different committees were present and several new names were added to serve. N. C. Osborn will be superintendent of the show and will have assisting him, Charles Cawte and Al Linder. Members of the committees are as follows: Hall, Joseph Coombs, chairman, V. H. Olmstead and I. Piedmont; publicity, George Lane, chairman, Al Linder and Charles B. McDonald; finance, W. W. Thomson, chairman, Joseph Coombs, J. Albert Brodrib; hotel, Andrew Welch, chairman, Roy Thomson, Fred Cawte; transportation and reception, J. Albert Brodrib, chairman, George McClunie and Harry Anderson. Joseph McManus had to absent himself, owing to a court case. He is chairman of the banquet committee and anyone who misses this affair will be disappointed, as we know he is having prepared something new in cooperation with Harry Bond, of the Bond hotel. The following ladies will also serve on the ladies' reception committee: Mrs. Joseph McManus, Mrs. Ellen Welch, Mrs. J. Albert Brodrib, Mrs. Cawte and Mrs. Wallace Pierson. Bring your best girls along, boys, and these ladies of Hartford will welcome you and yours. It was voted to hold the show January 25 to 27. It will be free to the public at 7 p. m. the first day of the show.

Wallace Pierson is promised roses from the following: Peirce Bros., Waltham, Mass.; Gude Bros Co., Washington, D. C.; A. N. Pierson, Inc., Cromwell, Conn.; F. R. Pierson, Tarrytown, N. Y.; Duckham-Pierson Co., Madison, N. J.; Thomas Roland, Nahant, Mass.; E. G. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.; Gordon Fisher, Woburn, Mass.; Joseph H. Hill Co., Richmond, Ind.; the Stuppy Floral Co., St. Joseph, Mo.; L. B. Coddington, Murray Hill, N. J., and Robert Simpson, Clifton, N. J. Let us hear from some more. We have a beautiful hall here to display your flowers to advantage. Try to come in person, but if unable to attend, send along your flowers; they will be well taken care of and staged by N. C. Osborn, superintendent of the show and vice-president of the Carnation Society.

Various Notes.

W. M. Jones, representing Rogers Bros., Chicago, was a recent visitor. Burpee's stringless green pod beans are in short supply and prices are advancing, reports Mr. Jones.

Edward Rose, for twenty years with the Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co., in charge of the flower seed and bulb departments, has resigned and is now the New England representative of M. Van Waveren, Enkhuizen, Holland, bulb growers, and was a recent visitor here, calling on the trade. C. B. M.

CLEVELAND, O.The Market.

Business started out Monday of last week with a rush and everybody thought the annual busy season was on, but the remainder of the week brought disappointment, with the exception of Saturday, which was again busy. Business in general has been spasmodic the last few months, some days being exceedingly good and others much the other way.

Roses are still quite scarce. Carnations are better. Narcissi are coming in strongly, while mums and pompons are on their last legs.

Various Notes.

Mrs. M. Herbold, of Galion, was a week-end visitor.

The assets of Louis Brandt, of the Heights Garden Shop, were sold for $700.

Mr. Larson, of the Brown Floral Co., Canton; Mr. Aljern, of Akron, and Leo Wagner, of Sandusky, were recent visitors.

We regret to report several deaths in the trade last week; namely, those of Mrs. T. W. Lisy, the youthful son of Peter Nichols and the grandfather of Homer Fox. The trade extends heartfelt sympathy.

Christine Cares is opening a branch store downtown in the Hotel Cleveland building, on the Public square.

Joseph Marks, of A. Henderson & Co.,

Chicago, was a recent visitor, as was R. E. Blackshaw, of the Ove Gnatt Co., Laporte, Ind. W. A. R.

Visitors to Cleveland spread the fame of John Kirchner and his sons, who steadily increase the volume of their trade at Sixty-seventh and Quincy streets, where they recently have remodeled and modernized the store and converted one of the greenhouses into a conservatory for the display of plants. There are those among the trade's travelers who aver that the Kirchners do more funeral work than is turned out at any other one store in America and they also have a large business in decorations. Eight White trucks are in use, as well as three roadsters, one for each member of the firm.

CHICAGO.The Market.

As last week progressed business accelerated. There was no rush, but a steady increase, both in shipping and in local trade. It was apparent that the chrysanthemum season had at last come to an end and that, as chrysanthemums and pompons were used up in the many cities and towns within the Chicago radius, the result was felt in the Chicago market. Wholesale houses in other cities, which have bought little or nothing in the last five or six weeks, were again on the long-distance telephone seeking roses. After the period of extremely low prices there was much opposition to the advances which naturally followed the increased demand. Nothing took place which could be described as a sharp advance, but there was continuous improvement. Prices strengthened a little each day, and by the close of the week the market was nearly cleaned up, for practically the first time since chrysanthemums took the center of the stage.

The present week opened with continued good demand and there is prospect of steady improvement until Christmas. The market is not now heavily supplied with flowers. It is a little too early for Christmas crops to begin to be felt and chrysanthemums are practically gone. Here and there one sees a few bedraggled mums, but really first-class late flowers are scarce and anything that is really good is selling at nice prices. Pompons also are in such light supply that anything good sells at sight. There are enough long roses for the demand, but buyers again are hunting shorts.

Carnations are not in large supply and sweet peas and violets are scarce. Poinsettias are beginning to arrive in some quantity and there now is plenty of stevia. Narcissi have benefited by the decrease in the supply of chrysanthemums and Paper Whites now enjoy something like a steady market. Heather has begun to appear in some quantity.

The green goods market is quiet. There has been an advance in the price of ferns. Smilax, on the other hand, is more plentiful than it has been for a long time. Boxwood is finding a good market, because holly and bouquet green are in small supply.

Christmas Prospects.

Christmas now occupies most of the attention not demanded by daily routine. Orders are not exactly pouring in, but there is a good demand for certain grades of stock for Christmas shipping. It seems to be widely recognized that there will be an unusual demand this season for roses of the medium and shorter lengths and buyers who look ahead are putting in their orders. There is no present indication of an exceptionally large supply of roses for this Christmas. It probably will be possible to get all the roses anyone wants at prices from 30 cents up, but lower-priced lengths seem likely to be short of the demand. Red roses will be at a premium. There is only one supply of Beauties and $1.50 each is asked. The only thing that can prevent a shortage of carnations is the price that is asked for them, which some think will kill the demand. The wholesalers are shy about taking orders for sweet peas. Nor is there prospect of the usual supplies of violets. There will be the customary supplies of the miscellaneous flowers.

Red berries are among the scarce items this year. Dealers who have handled hundreds of cases in other seasons have this year received only a dozen or so to date. In spite of the reports that holly has no berries this year, considerable good holly is seen.

Christmas Plants.

There is an unusually large supply of Christmas plants this year, but most of them are cyclamens; the others principally are poinsettias, solanums and begonias. While the supply of cyclamens is large, the plants in most cases are small; indeed, there are so many small cyclamens and so few large ones that the prices of small stock are weak and on large plants quite stiff. The abundance of low-priced cyclamens interferes to some extent with the sale of other plants.

West Side Wants Show.

Business men of the west side plan to hold a business exhibition like that of the Up-town Chicago Exposition at the Broadway armory the first week in November. And since the flower show was admittedly the biggest drawing card of the north side affair, the west siders have wanted to learn how they could stage a similar one. At a luncheon at the Hotel Seville December 9 representatives of the west side business men's organizations met the leaders in the Up-town Chicago organization. Three able members of the trade told about how to put on a flower show; they were Herman D. Schiller, Peter Pearson and George Stollery. Some of the north side business men said, "Don't let 'em steal our flower show ideas." But these florists were bigger than that. They told the west siders how to improve on the north side show.

The west side business men's organizations, such as the West Center Business Men's Association, the Active Club and the Kiwanis Club, will unite in forming a body to put on a big exhibition in the armory at Madison and Rockwell streets next March. The presence of several live retailers in that section of the city augurs another floral event.

PUSH!

ROSES!

FOR CHRISTMAS!

ROSES, the Christmas Cut Flower, will be abundant, in both fancy and medium grades, and they will be reasonable in price for the coming holiday.

This is the year that you, Mr. Retailer, will make most money by handling Cut Flowers. Sell the public what it wants—long-stemmed stock for the most exacting, shorter lengths of good quality for more moderate tastes.

Most attractive to your customers, easier and most profitable for inexperienced store help to handle in the rush; let Roses be your big Christmas line.

located wholesale cut flower house

ROSES will be abundant at Christmas—we will cut for the holiday approximately 350,000 blooms. Prices are reasonable—see the Christmas quotations of the E. C. Amling Co., on the two preceding pages. Send your order for Christmas Roses to the E. C. Amling Co., Chicago, where our stocks are known as Numbers 1, 2, 4, 6, 9, 11, 12, 19 and 35.

Remember—

Retailers get our entire supply the year around. Our roses are never sold to drug stores, department stores or peddlers.

Poinsettias

We have grown a crop of 5000 Poinsettias especially to meet florists' Christmas needs.

These are splendid stock, long stems, brilliant color.

Push Pink Roses

While we have a large supply of all kinds of fine flowers for Christmas, we urge the trade to push Pink Roses as the most abundant item and to sell carefully on Red Roses, also Sweet Peas and Violets, as least plentiful in proportion to the truly great demand.

One of the A. B. C. wagons hauling lily bulbs to storage, December 9, was demolished when caught between a street car and one of the steel columns supporting the elevated railroad. Cases of lily bulbs were scattered all over the neighborhood and an interested crowd watched the wrecking crew reclaim them.

lengthwise. There is also a cross partition. Mr. Munzing is using hot water heat and he says he is now burning less coal than formerly. The service building was designed by the Foley Greenhouse Mfg. Co. The heating system was designed and installed by the same company.

John Poehlmann is not among those who fear a shortage of Christmas stock; he says the ranges of Poehlmann Bros. Co. never were in heavier Christmas crop than they will be this year. Since last Christmas the space then unproductively used by Beauties has been given to Russell and Premier, which are responding to good culture with full crops at a time that Beauty sulked. Ophelia, except for one house, has given place to Butterfly since last Christmas. Growers who like to see how the other fellow does it are motoring to Batavia for a look at the cyclamens at the greenhouses of the Illinois Plant Co., where Tom Conlon presides. The chief item of interest is a batch of 350 plants in 8-inch pots that are judged to be ahead of anything seen in this vicinity in many years. Many of them carry upwards of fifty flowers and all are beautifully furnished with foliage. George Wienhoeber saw an advertising opportunity and bought the entire lot, although ordinarily there would not be a large demand for such big plants. Mr. Wienhoeber will reserve part of his purchase for the opening of his new store, scheduled to take place in January.

Bonvallet & Co., of Wichert, have purchased a machine of the latest model for grading gladiolus bulbs and it has been in operation this week in the stock room of A. Henderson & Co. The machine passes the mixed bulbs over a set of screens, dividing them into ten sizes if wanted, with greater speed and accuracy than can be done by the old hand screen method. The apparatus was made by Schouten & Co., Leiden, Holland. Only one or two others of the modern type are known to be in America.

Joseph Marks has returned from a trip through Ohio and Pennsylvania. He says business is not up to last year in the cities dependent on one industry, like automobiles or steel, but that here and there a florist is met who is doing a record trade. Mr. Marks believes 1922 will be a banner year for many florists, as general business already is on the up-grade in their communities.

Improvements in the boiler room at the Premier Rose Gardens, Maywood, include not only a new boiler setting, but also a forced draft to improve combustion and a set of Swift stokers. The new equipment is being installed by the F. & B. Flasch Chimney Co.

Mrs. Lydia Goodrode, better known to the trade as Miss Hanke, which was her name during her years as a member of A. Lange's staff, has bought the Avondale Flower Shop, 3182 Milwaukee avenue, from John J. Walsh.

The A. Dietsch Co. completed the erection of five greenhouses December 10 for the D. Hill Nursery Co., at Dundee, Ill.

The counters of A. T. Pyfer & Co. have carried some excellent begonias, "for exhibition only." It was a method Ernest Oechslein took to let the retailers see samples of his Christmas crop.

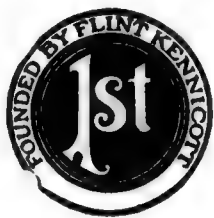

Night work by the full force is the rule at the Randall establishments at present. The rush of late orders is greater than usual this year and a record December business is being done.
